MITCHEL AGAIN ASKS FOR BAKER'S HEAD

In a Report to Mayor Gaynor He Accuses the Police Commissioner of Falsehood.

MAKES HIS LETTER PUBLIC

An Admission, Says Aldermen's President, That Baker Disobeyed Gaynor's Orders About Plainclothes Men.

John Purroy Mitchel, President of the Aldermen, whose duties as Acting Mayor ended yesterday, filed a written report of his stewardship late in the afternoon. He accuses Police Commissioner Baker of having made untrue statements and asks again that Mr. Baker be removed.

The making public of this report, which was addressed to Mayor Gaynor, came as a surprise to those at the City Hall, for earlier in the day Mr. Mitchel, upon greeting the Mayor, had asked to be allowed to tell the Mayor all about the alleged insubordination of the Police Commissioner, but had been requested to wait a few days.

Not only does Mr. Mitchel accuse the Police Commissioner of insubordination in disregarding his orders relating to the suppression of vice in the city during Mayor Gaynor's absence, but he charges that Mr. Baker also disregarded Mayor Gaynor's own orders contained in a letter written to Acting Commissioner Bugher on Aug. 4, in which the order was given to stop the use of plainclothes policemen until further notice.

Lawlessness at Coney Island.

Mr. Mitchel says that on Aug. 8 he was apprised through THE NEW YORK TIMES and by many persons of an alleged condition of lawlessness and flagrant vice at Coney Island, that he questioned Commissioner Baker about it and was informed that the conditions at Coney were not as described in the newspapers, but that he would give his personal attention to it. Mr. Mitchel then explains that an investigation made by the agents of the Commissioner of Accounts showed conditions at Coney Island "were so gross and revolting that they will not permit of description by me in this paper." He goes on to tell of acquainting the Police Commissioner of what the agents had found.

This was on the eve of Commissioner Baker's resuming his interrupted vacation. Mr. Mitchel says that Commissioner Baker refused to forego his vacation and take personal charge of the Coney Island situation, but said he would issue instructions to his men. Mr. Mitchel says he learned a few days later that several plainclothes men had been assigned to Inspector O'Brien's district.

"This, you will note, was contrary both to your instructions to the Police Commissioner and to mine," says Mr. Mitchel in his report.

After relating the contents of the letter he wrote to Mr. Baker on Aug. 28, requesting the reduction of Inspector O'Brien and the withdrawal of the plainclothes men from Coney Mr. Mitchel says that his orders were carried out. Then comes his second letter of Sept. 16 to the Police Commissioner and the latter's reply, under date of Sept. 17, which has been looked for ever since Mr. Mitchel's visit to St. James Commissioner Baker's Letter.

This letter follows:

Police Department of the City of New York, Office of the Commissioner.
New York, Sept. 17, 1910.
Hon. John Purroy Mitchel, Acting Mayor, City Hall, New York.

Sir: I beg to acknowledge receipt of your communication of Sept. 16, which reads in part as follows:

"During the past few weeks a large number of complaints of the prevalence of gambling and open prostitution throughout the city have been received at the Mayor's office. Some of these complaints were forwarded to you for investigation and report. Particularly on the 16th day of August I sent you a letter through the Executive Secretary, in which were transmitted about one hundred addresses."

You further state that many complaints, not transmitted to the Police Department, have been investigated by Inspectors under your direction, with the result that it is apparent to you that the police are grossly derelict in their failure to enforce the law in these respects.

In reply I beg to state that I left New York on Aug. 1, to be gone one month, on my annual vacation. Under date of Aug. 4 Mayor Gaynor communicated with Acting Captain Bugher and instructed him to put back in uniform all men who were out in plain clothes, until further orders. On Aug. 6, Commissioner Bugher issued to the force the following order:

"During the absence of the Police Commissioner, no details to duty in plain clothes under Rule 42, Paragraph 22, of the Rules and Regulations, will be made."

Asked for Plain-Clothes Men.

On Aug. 10 I returned to the city, owing to the shooting of Mayor Gaynor. Upon receipt of your communication of Aug. 16, I called on you and drew your attention to the fact that there were no men in plain clothes, and that it would be almost impossible to comply with your order to get evidence against the places mentioned unless men could be detailed in plain clothes for that purpose.

I also called your attention to the order issued by the department, which was to be enforced until my return. You, however, refused to permit me to assign them in plain clothes, stating that it was the general impression that Mayor Gaynor did not want any but uniformed men to do this work, and that you would not change his orders.

On or about July 7 a strike was declared by the cloak and garment makers, affecting 471 firms located in 136 buildings and employing about 17,000 people, within the Eighteenth, Nineteenth, and Twenty-third Precincts. This required a detail of about 200 members of the force and the personal attention of the Inspector and the commanding officers of these precincts. The whole strike involved from 70,000 to 80,000 men, many of whom, from other districts, congregated in this neighborhood. You are familiar with some of the important features of this strike and with the police work attached thereto. More than 500 arrests were made from July 7 to about ten days ago. The Inspector and the commanding officers had their hands full. The places that you complained most of were within this district.

Admits Presence of Vice.

For quite a few days after the shooting of Mayor Gaynor, matters pertaining to the city administration were somewhat up in the air, and there is no doubt that the gamblers and prostitutes took advantage of the situation. I informed you of the growing conditions in the city, and again requested permission to assign men to duty in plain clothes, which you refused. Some days later I learned that you had men from the office of the Commissioners of Accounts going about the city trying to secure evidence.

About ten days ago, despite your orders to the contrary, I assigned to duty in plain clothes eight members of the uniformed force for the purpose of looking up the gambling situation and of obtaining evidence wherever it was possible. The results of the work of these eight men has been seen within the last few days. Seven places were entered, arrests made, and gambling paraphernalia seized.

In the early part of the year Mayor Gaynor let it be understood that this administration was to be a government of laws and not of men, and he insisted that no arrests should be made without legal evidence. To some extent this was a revolutionary move so far as the Police Department was concerned. It meant that entrance

COOK NOT AT PEARY LECTURE

He Denies the Report—Other Denials from London Hotels.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 3.—Dr. J. Scott Keltie, Secretary of the Royal Geographical Society, received a visit this morning from a man who described himself as a personal friend of Dr. F. A. Cook of Mount McKinley and north pole fame. He stated that he had called at the special request of Dr. Cook in order to make a disclaimer of the alleged interview with the doctor which appeared in London newspapers this morning and in which it was stated that Dr. Cook was present at Commander Peary's lecture before the Royal Geographical Society in the Albert Hall last May and sat within twenty yards of Peary.

"As a matter of fact," said Dr. Keltie to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent. "Dr. Cook sent me word by his friend that he was not present at the lecture for the very good reason that he was not in London at the time."

According to the same friend, Cook left London to-day for the Continent, keeping his address secret.

Walter Lonsdale, who became Cook's secretary when the doctor arrived in Copenhagen from Greenland, accompanied him to America, and took to Copenhagen the "proofs" which made Cook a laughing stock, arrived in London in the middle of last week. Mr. Lonsdale, whom THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent saw to-day, denied that he had any hand in the interview purporting to have been obtained from Cook. All that he would say on the subject was that, so far as his knowledge went, some of the statements made in the interview as circulated by the Press Association here were in accordance with the facts.

Inquiries at the London hotels in which Dr. Cook was alleged to have stayed elicited denials that any one answering the description given of him had been there.

The London papers generally attach as much credence to Cook's reported description of his visit to London as they did to his account of his polar expedition.

KING HONORS WASHINGTON.

Negro Educator Dines with Royalties in Charlottenlund Castle.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 3.—Booker T. Washington, the first negro ever received at the Danish Court, was tonight entertained at dinner by the King and Queen of Denmark at Charlottenlund Castle, five miles outside Copenhagen.

The Queen talked for an hour with Mr. Washington, the conversation being chiefly on the Danish West Indies, in which she is greatly interested as the patroness of several charitable societies. She had read all Mr. Washington's books and wanted him to pay a visit to the islands and apply the educational system of Tuskegee there.

Mr. Washington said he would go there when an opportunity offered.

The King would have decorated Mr. Washington with the Order of Danneborg if Mr. Washington were not an American citizen, and as such, in the eyes of the Danish Court, not allowed to receive a foreign decoration.

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 3.—King Frederick to-day received Booker T. Washington and conversed at length with him on the subject of the colored race. His Majesty asked the American for a copy of one of his publications.

Later, as the guest of prominent Danes, Mr. Washington motored to Roskilde, the old capital, where he visited a school and had luncheon.

RADIUM A LITTLE CHEAPER.

Now Costs $2,100,000 an Ounce—Even to Hire It Is Very Expensive.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 3.—Sir William Ramsay, in a lecture to-day, stated that radium now costs $2,100,000 per ounce.

This price is slightly less than that which Sir William said was the value of radium a little less than a year ago, when, in an address at the laying of the cornerstone of the radium factory at Limehouse, he said that the value of the substance was $2,500,000 an ounce. That was at the rate of $90 per milligramme. Not so long previously radium had been obtainable for $2 a milligramme. Last January the price was said to be $3,000,000 an ounce.

A year ago there was about a quarter of a pound of radium in the world. The quantity now is not much greater. As a matter of fact, literally pure radium has been produced only within the last month. Sept. 5 last Mme. Curie told the Academy of Sciences in Paris that she had at last succeeded in obtaining pure radium.

A radium bank has existed for some time in Paris. Last January one was established in London, and similar institutions are to be founded in other great cities. These banks loan the precious substance to scientists and physicians. The cost is enormous. As much as $200 has been charged for the use of 100 milligrammes for a single day.

MORGAN DENIES ALLEGATION.

Says He Bought Telephone Companies Solely as an Investment.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 3.—Charges that he bought a controlling interest in the Cuyahoga Telephone Company and the United States Telephone Company of this city in order to turn over the two independent concerns to the Bell interests were denied to-day by J. P. Morgan in an answer filed by J. P. Morgan & Co. to the suits brought against the two telephone companies, Morgan, and others.

Mr. Morgan says the purchase was made solely as an investment.

WELLMAN AIRSHIP MET WEATHER CRISIS

SECTION CLOGGED WITH SAND

Asbestos Paint Used on Canvas to Avoid Fate of the Last Zeppelin Airship.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 3.—A sudden drop in the temperature at sunset tonight gave several hundred persons who were watching the Wellman-Vaniman airship America tugging at her hangar moorings an opportunity to see an aerial crew meeting a serious problem of aerial navigation. The evening breeze which sprang up as the sun dropped swept through the hangar fully five degrees colder than that which had been blowing while the sun was in the sky. The big balloon, which had tugged at her supports all day, suddenly became flabby and the steel car began to settle toward the floor.

Mr. Vaniman, the chief engineer and inventor of nearly every part of the balloon, had repeatedly spoken of the changes in gas volume that would come with sudden air and temperature changes, but new men in the crew were aghast at the transformation. Mr. Vaniman rushed to the gas plant outside to start an additional 10 per cent. to the 310,500 cubic feet in the bag, the volume having shrunk in an instant from 345,000 cubic feet. The crew was shifted in a hurry from its fancy needlework on the America shield to the gas making plant Mr. Vaniman had now a difficulty, one of the small ones on which he fears ultimate successor or failure of the flight across the Atlantic may turn. The gas began to bubble in the boilers, where iron filings were mixed with sulphuric acid, but the canvas pipe leading to the balloon would not fill.

Easy to Fix, but Hard to Find.

A careful search of the whole plant failed to reveal anything wrong, and then a wood inclosure through which the pipe ran from the gas-making plant into the hangar was torn open. It was found that the wind had sifted sand through the wooden joints, and that this had settled down upon the canvas pipe several inches deep a length of twenty feet.

To overcome the trouble was only the work of a moment, but it took thirty minutes to locate it. The sudden shrinkage of the gas volume in actual air navigation would have meant a drop of many hundreds of feet, and a rise just as sudden on the return of sunshine or warm winds. It might have meant a drop from the clouds to a collision with the tall towers of a city.

In the case of the America's proposed transatlantic voyage, upon which Marconi wireless messages will be sent to THE NEW YORK TIMES, The London Daily Telegraph, and The Chicago Record-Herald, the sudden risings and fallings through the expansion and contraction of gas in the envelope will be automatically cared for by the "equilibrator" without affecting the cruising height of the airship. The sudden drooping of the envelope until it loses all semblance of its proper shape will be prevented by the amidships engine, which will be set to work pumping air into special air compartments until the original shape is restored.

Gas Supply for Fifty Days.

Tests made this afternoon indicated that for the four weeks the America has been filled with gas the daily loss by filtration through the envelope has amounted to a lifting force of 200 pounds a day. As the cargo of gasoline carried amounts to 10,000 pounds, which in transit would be steadily consumed, Mr. Vaniman holds that the maximum aerial journey possible on a single filling of gas will be fifty days. This gives the crew a safety margin of five times the maximum period it is expected the transatlantic trip will occupy and ten times the probable period if conditions are as good as the crew expect them to be.

Weather Director Willis Moore sent another bulletin to Mr. Wellman to-day, warning him against trial flights on Tuesday. The heavy wind promised yesterday for to-day materialized in force, and with it came flocks of geese headed southward, which in the America's hangar served as an omen that the journey had better begin soon, or the sharp winds of to-night would turn into frosty ones, with possible snowfalls accompanying them, a condition not to be lightly invited in an effort to negotiate the air lanes above the steamer paths to Europe.

Learns from Zeppelin Accident.

Mr. Vaniman made several improvements in his equipment to-day. He had been somewhat worried over the fact that one of the Zeppelin airships had blown up through a fire which spread from the canvas surrounding the engines to the main envelope and thence to the gas inside of it. To prevent such a catastrophe on the America Vaniman had all the canvas near the engines coated with asbestos paint. Afterward he submitted a section of the painted cloth to a test by his welder's blowpipe. It stood the heat and flames for several minutes before it took fire and then crumpled to a cinder without making any flames. Mr. Vaniman regarded the test as wholly satisfactory, and said that beyond a doubt the abestos covering to the canvas would eliminate the fire risk from the engine.

Another improvement which he installed to make use of the prevailing bad weather was a meter device on the gasoline tank. It's reading will show him at all times the exact state of his supply and will prove a great convenience while sailing at 20 knots or more for foreign shores.

Mr. Wellman spent the day preparing a statement of the reasons for his project and the problems he was attempting to solve, his purpose being to leave it with his family so that a complete record will be in existence whatever happens at sea.

BROOKLYN MAN'S HOME BURNS

B. D. Daumont Just Escapes from Blazing Cottage on Lake Champlain.

PLATTSBURG, N. Y., Oct. 3.—News has reached here that the Summer residence of Benjamin D. Daumont of Brooklyn, located on Cumberland Head on Lake Champlain, about five miles north of this city, was totally destroyed by fire on Saturday night.

Mr. Daumont and two or three employes were still there, although the family had returned to Brooklyn Mr. Daumont barely escaped, having no time to save even his money, some $60 or $70, in his vest pocket. The cottage was valued at $12,000, partially insured.

NEXT SUNDAY'S TIMES

HUNG UNCONSCIOUS ON PALISADES LEDGE

Camper Fell Ninety Feet While He and Two Comrades Were Scaling the Cliffs.

TAKEN DOWN SENSELESS

Companions at Hermits' Camp Succeeded in Rescuing Him by the Aid of a Slip Noose.

After a fall suffered on Sunday morning while climbing the Palisades a mile and a half up the Hudson River, opposite Spuyten Duyvil, Dudley Thurman Cashmore, 24 years old, Assistant Treasurer of the Livingston Nail Company, is lying in the Washington Heights Hospital with a fighting chance for life, which he owes to the heroic efforts of his fellow-campers at Hermits' Camp. He is the son of Edward Henry Cashmore, a Dey Street tool manufacturer, and lives with his parents at 568 West 173d Street.

Young Cashmore has a double fracture of the jaw, internal injuries, and a possible fracture of the skull. He was wholly unconscious for twelve hours after the accident, and has not been more than partially conscious since. He is a member of the Knickerbocker Canoe Club, which has a boathouse at North River and 167th Street.

This club, the Inwood Canoe Club, and the Fort Washington Canoe Club have a joint camp about a mile north of Spuyten Duyvil, on the Jersey Shore of the Hudson, where many members of the three clubs spend their week-ends. They are mostly hardy young men of education and refinement, with an athletic tendency. Their camp is named Hermits' Camp. One of the rules of the organization is that canoes are the only craft which are allowed to land at the pier.

Cashmore rose early Sunday morning, and with two companions, one of them Robert J. Romlein of 542 West 162d Street, a teller in the National Park Bank, donned spiked shoes, equipped himself with an alpenstock and set of ropes, and started to scale the Palisades half a mile north of the camp, where the cliffs rise 350 feet nearly perpendicularly. The climb at this point has all the hazard of a mountain climb.

The party got up as high as 200 feet over the most difficult kind of going. They found only at intervals ledges wide enough upon which to rest. They tore their clothing making their way over jagged and rocky portions of the way. Suddenly Cashmore slipped, and with a cry disappeared from view. His companions turned and looked for him in vain. Then they hurried down to look for him.

Seventy feet below they found him. He had struck on a ledge about three feet wide. The ledge was sloping, and all that saved Cashmore from continuing his plunge to the bottom was a group of three shrubs in which his clothing had caught. Cashmore was unconscious. All efforts to revive him failed. Romlein and his other companion realized that they could not succeed in any plan to carry him down with them, and decided that the best thing to do was to go back to the camp for help. They drove their alpenstocks into the shallow earth as far as they could, wound ropes around Cashmore's body and attached them to juts of rock and the shrubbery to prevent his falling, and then made their way painfully to the bottom. Reaching the base of the Palisades exhausted, they started to run the half mile to the camp.

Cashmore's fellow campers formed a recruiting party without loss of time. One of the first members of the party to ascend was Dr. Davis, who administered first aid to the injured man. He stanched the flow of blood, but failed to restore Cashmore to consciousness. Members of the second rescue party had hauled Cashmore's cot up after them by slow and arduous stages, and arrived a quarter of an hour after the advance party with the doctor.

With great difficulty and at considerable personal danger Cashmore was lifted on to the cot and fastened to it with ropes. The cot was slung on a cradle of ropes, and then, with men above and men below, was gradually lowered from one stage of the descent to another. It took an hour and a half to complete the work, during every minute of which it was feared that Cashmore might die, and during scarcely an interval of which the members of the rescuing party did not take hazardous risks.

The wind was high and the Hudson was choppy, but the situation demanded that Cashmore be hurried to a hospital as quickly as possible. He was placed in the bottom of a canoe, manned by the two boat paddlers in the three canoe clubs. When they got into midstream, they fortunately met a motor boat, which took Cashmore the rest of the distance to the landing at Cox's boathouse, near Dyckman Street. A telephone message was sent to the Washington Heights Hospital, which sent an ambulance.

Cashmore's father, mother, and brother were notified and hurried to the hospital, which they have not left since.

TAWNEY HURT BY RUNAWAY.

Flung Into Barbed Wire Fence in Stopping Horse for Woman and Children.

Special to The New York Times.

WINONA, Minn., Oct. 3.—Congressman James A. Tawney sat in his office this morning done up in bandages, the result of hurts received late Sunday night when he stopped a runaway horse attached to a buggy containing a woman and her three children.

Mr. and Mrs. Tawney, in the automobile of a friend, were spinning along the river road when a woman in a carriage with three children signaled to the automobile party to stop. The machine was halted, and Mr. Tawney stepped out to assist in leading the horse past the machine. The woman and her children remained in the vehicle. Mr. Tawney had just laid hold of the horse's head when the animal bolted and dashed up the hill, dragging the buggy after him. Mr. Tawney swung to the bridle, but could not prevent the horse from crashing into a barbed wire fence. His hands were badly torn, his forehead was cut, and his leg bruised, but he held on, and finally brought the horse to a stop.

As a result Mr. Tawney will not be able to leave here this week for Chicago, where he is to have charge of the National Congressional headquarters. He hopes to be in condition to leave early next week.

AGREE ON ROUTE FOR TIMES AIR RACE

Pathfinding Auto to Start To-day in Advance of Chicago to New York Fliers.

TO MARK LANDING PLACES

Smoke Columns and Day Skyrockets May Be Used—Willard to Send Two Extra Engines Ahead.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 3.—After a conference which began at 8 o'clock to-night and lasted until well on toward midnight, Charles Foster Willard, J. A. D. McCurdy, and Eugene B. Ely, who are to race from here to New York, starting next Saturday for the $25,000 prize of THE NEW YORK TIMES and The Chicago Evening Post, the $5,000 offered by Clifford B. Harmon, and prizes accruing from the week's flying here, agreed upon the tentative route which they will follow in the race and perfected their plans for providing supply stations along the route.

A pathfinding automobile, in charge of Jerome S. Fanciulli, Glenn H. Curtiss's business manager, and carrying a representative of THE NEW YORK TIMES and of the Chicago Evening Post will leave here to-morrow morning to visit the various stopping points selected by the aviators and there make necessary arrangements for the care of the fliers.

Mr. Fanciulli will arrange in each place visited for a speedy auto to be placed at the disposal of the fliers, so that supplies may be carried to them at the greatest speed in case of emergency. These supplies will be provided by the aviators themselves, who plan to send their mechanicians on ahead of them with complete outfits of new parts for their engines and planes. As fast as one of the airmen reaches a station, it is planned to have his mechanicians speed ahead by the quickest fast train to the next stopping place, carrying the complete kit of parts with them.

Stations Average Fifty Miles Apart.

As the stopping places agreed on are not more than an average distance of fifty miles apart, it is thought that this plan will insure the fliers against any long waits while new parts, or men to affix them, are en route to their assistance.

A great part of the time consumed in conference to-night was devoted to the selection of stopping places. In addition to the racers, Glenn H. Curtiss was present, as were representatives of the Chicago Evening Post, who had some knowledge of the country between Chicago and Cleveland. Beyond Cleveland the aviators themselves have a general idea of the available landing places. These controls were settled on finally, those which are marked with a star being selected only tentatively, and subject to change in accordance with reports received from the pathfinder:

The selection of this schedule was the combined work of the contestants although it was pointed out there was no intention among the fliers to make the race a joint affair.

Aviators Combined Knowledge.

"We simply have taken advantage of our combined knowledge of the country between here and New York," explained Willard, "and in this way have avoided mistakes which unaided each of us must have made. The preliminary arrangement of the schedule was largely the work of Augustus Post, whose many automobile trips through that part of the country have made him more familiar than any of the rest of us with conditions to be found between the start and the finish of this long cross country flight."

How to mark the various spots selected as landing places is a question which has worried the aviators, and it was not until to-night that they finally determined to adopt every precaution and arrange to have the landing spots marked, not only by fires, which will send up large volumes of smoke, but by the shooting of daytime rockets as well, and possibly by the flying of kites above the landing places.

The flying of kites will be the means least depended upon, however, for McCurdy pointed out that some of the best flying would probably be done when there was not enough wind to lift a kite.

As the day of the start approaches the fliers, Willard, McCurdy, and Ely, are becoming more and more enthusiastic over the race. Each is equally confident that he will be the first to arrive in New York. Whereas, a day or so ago, any one of them would admit that the flight was one which would tax their resources to the utmost, none of them now will concede that he has not better than a fighting chance to get through without trouble. All have arranged for the fullest equipment of spare parts, and Willard said to-night that if it became necessary he would rebuild his machine three times on the road.

Curtiss, whose other engagements prevented his taking part in the long race, brought a laugh from the group in conference around a big table in La Salle Hotel when he exclaimed:

"By George, boys, I'll tell you what. I'll jump the fence with you on Saturday and keep you company a little way just for the sport."

"He'll be mighty likely to ask for waivers of the clause requiring an entrant to fly each day this week," whispered one of the fliers who has known him longest, "and get into this thing himself. It won't surprise me, for I don't believe he can keep out."

Storm Prevents Day's Trials.

Because of a forty-mile wind and a heavy rainstorm which started at 4 o'clock there were no flights to-day by the aviators who on Saturday will start in the race from here to New York.

Hundreds of Chicagoans who had journeyed to the track were disappointed. Those who reached Hawthorne early, however, witnessed some quick work on the part of the aviators which saved the five aeroplanes here from what seemed like certain destruction, when the southwestern wind which swept across the track threatened to blow down the big tent which the fliers have been using as an aerodome. The wind had been increasing in velocity since early morning, but it was shortly after noon when it reached a speed of forty miles an hour.

Glenn H. Curtiss and his wife, J. A. D. McCurdy, Charles Foster Willard, and Augustus Post were in the tent superintending test work on their engines when a particularly heavy gust of wind snapped half a dozen of the poles supporting the tent. The canvas side flaps were whipped loose from their fastenings and flew about to the accompaniment of a CHEMICAL HUMAN EMBRYO!

Report That Prof. Herrera, a Mexican, Has Made One.

VIENNA, Oct. 3.—The Mexican Consul at Trieste reports that Prof. Herrera, a Mexican scientist, has succeeded in forming a human embryo by chemical combination.

Philippus Theophrastus Aureolus Paracelsus Bombastes of Hohonheim, known for short as Paracelsus, was, so far as is known, the first scientist to declare that human beings could be made by artificial means. He even said that he could make a "homunculus" himself, but he said a good many other things which, even if credence were given to his statements in the sixteenth century, appear to the men of science of to-day wildly fantastic.

Recently the best known experiments in the line of the artificial generation of living embryos have been those of Prof. Jacques Loeb, who by his experiments with sea urchins at Pacific Grove, Cal., created a sensation in the scientific world a few years ago. His first feat was the artificial fertilization of the eggs of these animals, and the production, almost down to the last essential detail, of the phenomena of normal development in the eggs, which had been made to develop by chemical means.

Prof. Loeb next upset the hitherto existing theories of biologists by finding a means to make the eggs of sea urchins susceptible to cross-fertilization. By first heating the eggs with special solutions, he was able to hybridize different families and orders of marine animals.

Prof. Loeb's activities in research have been devoted almost entirely to the study of the origin of life.

Negotiations for Settlement of Metal Trades Dispute Fail.

Nearly 100,000 men are affected in Berlin alone, while it is estimated that at least 500,000 throughout Germany will be turned out on Oct. 8.

AUTO TRUCK HIT THREE BOYS.

Ran Them Down on Their Home from School and Two May Die.

Three schoolboys on their way home during the noon recess yesterday were run down by a heavy automobile emergency truck of the Consolidated Gas Company at Ninth Avenue and Seventeenth Street. Two of the boys sustained injuries from which they may die, while the third was only slightly injured.

The injured boys are John Noon, 9 years old, and his brother Martin, 6, of 420 West Seventeenth Street, and Michael Sullivan, 9 years old, of 423 West Seventeenth Street. The accident occurred within a stone's throw of the homes of the boys.

According to Policeman Hughes, the accident was due to the fact that the driver of the automobile did not heed the warning of the policeman stationed at the crossing for the purpose of protecting the children attending the school. The driver, John W. Devine of 518 East Eighteenth Street, was arested.

Devine was arraigned later before Magistrate Corrigan in the Jefferson Market Court on a charge of assault. The Magistrate held the prisoner in $500 bail for trial.

SHOT DEAD ON PLATFORM.

Wealthy Oil Operator Believed to be Victim of a Husband's Jealousy.

VINCENNES, Ind., Oct. 3.—C. Edward Gibson, a wealthy oil operator, who came to Vincennes from Pittsburg about five years ago, was shot and instantly killed on the Union Station platform early today. Nenlo E. Moore, proprietor of theatres in a half dozen Southern Indiana towns, and a well-known vaudeville producer, is charged with the crime. The shooting is said to be the result of attentions shown Moore's wife by Gibson.

After the shooting Moore jumped aboard a train and went to Washington, Ind., where he was arrested. Gibson was 42 years old and was married. Moore is 33 years old.

CALLS ROOSEVELT TRAITOR.

Gen. Miles's View of the Colonel's Criticism of the Supreme Court.

Special to The New York Times.

DENVER, Col., Oct. 3.—"In condemning and criticising the decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States and its venerable bench, Theodore Roosevelt is guilty of treason," said Lieut. Gen. Nelson A. Miles, U. S. A., retired, here today.

"Look at his political tracks," continued the General, "since he returned from the African wilds. It is a trail of discontent, bombast, disaffection, and even treason. And without one word of commendation for the existing Administration—which, in my opinion, has been eminently proper and dignified and a great improvement on the Administration that preceded it—this politician starts on a one-man tour, a personal political campaign, haranguing the people, inciting discontent, mixing with malcontents, embarrassing those in authority and power without an excuse or reason for such unprecedented conduct.

"It is disgusting," said Gen. Miles, "this constant vulgar exhibition of a former President running loose over the country surrounded by newspaper men, for whose edification he walks, talks, eats, and sleeps, hungrily swallowing calcium at its strongest pressure and reveling in the concentrated rays of the light of what should be to a sane man undesirable publicity. But that is what he lives for, and the real people are getting wise."

$1,500,000 FIRE LOSS ON THE WATER FRONT

Lumber and Coal Yards, a Hotel, and Other Buildings Destroyed Near 23d Street Ferries.

ONE MAN THOUGHT DEAD

Police Risk Lives to Rescue Women—Biggest Blaze in Area Croker Has Ever Fought.

One of the most spectacular fires New York has seen in years, one that Chief Croker said covered the greatest area of any fire since he assumed command of the Fire Department, and which, according to the Chief, destroyed at least $1,500,000 worth of property, started on the North River water front, between Twenty-third and Twenty-sixth Streets, last night. Chief Croker came on the second alarm, and immediately turned in a third, then a fourth and finally a fifth alarm, which brought all the apparatus in this part of the city, as well as the entire Manhattan fleet of fireboats. The firemen never did better work according to their Chief, and within a period of two hours the great fire was under control.

At least 40,000 persons, according to Police Inspector McClusky, gathered in the vicinity of the fire, to watch the great spectacle and it was necessary to call out all the reserves in the Second and Fourth Inspection Districts in order to keep the fire lines clear. While the Manhattan blaze was at its height another big fire was raging across the way in New Jersey. On the Jersey City heights from northern Jersey City to Weehawken another great crowd, in numbers almost as great as the one in Manhattan, gathered to watch the inter-State spectacle.

As for the blaze in Manhattan it spread over an area that was bounded by Tenth and Eleventh Avenues and extended from the southern side of West Twenty-fourth Street to the northern side of West Twenty-sixth Street. In Twenty-fourth Street from Tenth Avenue south to the middle of the north side of Twenty-fourth Street, between Eleventh and Twelfth Avenues, it burned the fiercest and it was in that part of the fire zone that the greatest damage was done.

Lumber Yards First to Go.

First to go were the big lumber yards of Moore Brothers, in Eleventh Avenue, between Twenty-fourth and Twenty-fifth Streets. Opposite the Moore yards were the yards of Clark & Wilkins, said to be the biggest kindling wood establishment in New York. That, too, was reduced to ashes. It was the burning of these two great lumber yards that made most of last night's wonderful spectacle. The flames leaped hundreds of feet into the air, while the burning fragments that were blown west by a strong wind were carried half way across the North River.

It was in the yards of the Moores that the fire started. It was seen by several civilians and by Policeman David J. Phelan about the same time. The civilians ran for the fire boxes to turn in the alarms, and Phelan, who is a young man not long on the force, scurried about the neighborhood to warn others doing business in the vicinity.

The turning in of the fire alarm was, however, unnecessary, for about fifteen minutes previous to the discovery of the fire in the Moore yards two engines and a hook and ladder company had responded to a false alarm at Thirteenth Avenue and Twenty-sixth Street, and they came down Tenth Avenue about the time that the fire alarms were turned in.

The Captain of one of the companies saw at a glance that it was a big job, and he immediately sent in a second alarm. All this happened within a few minutes, yet in that brief time the flames had spread through the Moore yards, jumped across Eleventh Avenue to the yards of Clark & Wilkins, and across Twenty-fourth Street, on the southeast corner of which is the Pennsylvania Hotel.

Women Hotel Guests Rescued.

The hotel, which is a three-story structure, the ground floor of which is a saloon, was soon in flames, and Phelan ran into the place to drive out those who might be there. On the second floor he found two panic-stricken women and on the third floor another. A stranger who had gone in with him got the two women on the second floor to safety and Phelan went to the third floor to get the third one. Phelan got there just in time to prevent the woman from jumping out of a window to Twenty-fourth Street, and then to make matters worse for him the woman fainted.

The whole Twenty-fourth Street side of the hotel was on fire by this time, while the lumber yards were solid mountains of flame. It took ten minutes for Phelan to get the woman to the street, and when he reached the Twenty-fourth Street door the heat was so intense that his helmet caught fire and his face was blistered before he was able to get out.

Policeman Guy Cobaugh, on sick leave, happened to be in the vicinity, and when one of the men who had rescued the women from the second floor told him there was a policeman still in the building, Cobaugh ran through the fire and smoke and got to the door as Phelan and his charge stumbled out into the street.

Cobaugh saw that he had two persons to save on his hands, and yelled for help, and another policeman ran up, and between them they managed to drag Phelan and the woman into Eleventh Avenue and back toward Twenty-third Street. The woman was Mrs. Helen Madden, 65 years old. She was taken to a near-by house, and a doctor was called, who bathed Phelan's blistered face with oil and then gave him oiled cloths to mop his face with. Phelan, despite his injuries and the intense pain he was suffering, insisted and was permitted to remain on duty.

Policemen Save Comrade.

Policeman Frank V. Silver of the West Twentieth Street Station was only a little while behind Phelan in entering the hotel. On the third floor he found a man and a woman. The woman was unconscious and the man was panic-stricken. Silver carried the woman and led the man downstairs. When they reached the ground floor they had to make their way through dense smoke. Silver got the man and woman out and then collapsed. Other policemen found Silver and dragged him to safety.

Very early in the fire Policeman O'Connor, of the same station as Silver, reported that he and an employe of the Dartt Company had seen a man entering the gateway of the Moore yards, apparently making for the stable. O'Connor said they rushed forward to restrain him, but that just as they reached the gateway a burst of flame drove them back and that was the last they saw of the man. They believe he was burned to death.

Chief Croker came with the second alarm, and the moment he saw the extent of the fire he sent in the third, fourth, and fifth alarms. The fire was the high-pressure territory as well as within range of the fireboats, and this fortunate combination gave the firemen an advantage. Before any of the apparatus called out by the third alarm reached the fire, the Moore yards, the yards of Clark & Wilkins, the Pennsylvania Hotel, the big coal yard of Dartt & Co. at 552 West Twenty-fourth Street, the factory of the Atlas Metal Bedstead Co. at 562 West Twenty-fifth Street, John McCauley's saloon at 216 Eleventh Avenue, and the big six-story factory building of the New York Metal Ceiling Company at 537 West Twenty-fourth Street were all on fire.

The branch building of the United States Express Building adjoining the Dartt coal yards caught fire several times, but on each occasion the fire was extinguished before much damage was done.

Car Barns in Danger.

On the southwest corner of Twenty-fourth Street and Eleventh Avenue and extending back to Twenty-third Street are the barns of the Twenty-third Street Crosstown Line of the Metropolitan, and though directly opposite the fiercely burning piles of kindling wood in the Clark & Wilkins yards, did not catch. Every car in the barns was taken out, and an emergency wagon came after the office books and records.

The cars blocked Twenty-third Street to Eighth Avenue, and the result was that thousands of commuters who take the Pennsylvania, Erie, Lackawanna, and New Jersey Central ferries at Twenty-third Street had to fight their way through the almost impassable crowds of sightseers for a distance of four long blocks to catch their boats, and it was said that hundreds were too late.

At Eleventh Avenue and Twenty-fifth Street, in the lumber yard of Ichabod T. Williams & Co., Chief Croker ordered a heavy onslaught of water, for he knew that if those yards caught and the fire got beyond his control it would probably leap Twenty-fifth Street and spread north. The Williams yards did blaze up in spots several times, but each time the blaze was put out before it gained headway.

Opposite the Williams yards in Twenty-fifth Street is the specialty department of the Standard Oil Company, and near by is the big garage of John Wanamaker in which the Wanamaker automobile delivery wagons and trucks are stored. All of the vehicles were taken out and driven to places of safety.

A few of the concerns with establishments in the fire zone that escaped with little if any damage were the Stanley Hoisting Company at 620 West Twenty-fifth Street, the John Egan lumber yards at 609 West Twenty-fourth Street, Albert Rieber's stable at 616 East Twenty-fifth Street, and two or three saloons nearer the ferries.

Under Control by 8 O'clock.

At 8 o'clock, when the fire was under control, Chief Croker came out of one of the buildings, his face black as ebony from the smoke and his clothes wringing wet. The chief had not taken time to get his oilcloth garments when he started for the fire, and had directed his fire-fighters in his street clothes, the only thing about him to designate that he was one of the firemen being his white helmet.

Chief Croker said that he had at his disposal in fighting the fire all the high pressure hydrants in Twenty-third Street west of Ninth Avenue, four fireboats, two water towers, twenty-three fire engines and tenders, and five hook and ladder trucks.

Some of the persons who came over from New Jersey in the ferryboats said that the sparks that fell in the river were as big as a man's fist. Some of these cinders set fire to the roof of the Erie pier at Twenty-eighth Street, but a fleet of tugs that was on the spot to handle just such things put it out. Every tug the Lackawanna had was in the river to protect that company's property. The Lackawanna has lost two passenger terminals within a few years, one the Hoboken and the other its Twenty-third Street terminal. The Pennsylvania and the New Jersey Central also had their tug fleets ready for use in the event of the fire spreading to the piers.

At about 10 o'clock last night employes of the Metropolitan Street Railway Company were endeavoring to lead a high-pressure hose over the tracks of the Twenty-third Street line, at the corner of Eleventh Avenue and Twenty-third Street. The high-pressure hydrant was almost directly in front of a saloon on the corner. The hose became detached from the hydrant and suddenly lashed about among the crowd gathered there.

Hurt by a Wild Hose.

A score of persons were knocked off thein feet and three were injured and the saloon flooded. The injured said they were Mrs. Anna McKenna of 529 West Twentieth Street, William Cruise of Richmond, S. I., and Milton Frye of Jersey City. They were attended by Dr. Baker of Bellevue Hospital.

It was reported last night that Moore Brothers had a large amount of money in the safe in their office. One report said the amount was $200,000, but nobody was found would verify it.

Among the things destroyed by the fire were about 1,000 copies of an illustrated fashion book of Paris styles, which William C. Popper & Co. were printing for the Bamberger-Stern Company, importers. Copies of the book were ready for distribution. Everything connected with the book was lost in the fire—the original sketches, plates, &c.—and it is said that there is no way in which the work can be done over again.

FIREMAN HURT AT A BLAZE.

Front Wall of Burning Building Falls at an East Side Fire.

Two policemen and one fireman were seriously injured yesterday morning at a fire which began in the five-story building at the southwest corner of Elm and Pearl Streets, and four firemen had the narrowest of escapes. The latter were working on the deck of Water Tower 1, when the wall of the building fell and the bricks were scattered all around them. By clinging close to the wall of the Edison Electric building adjoining, they evaded the shower.

The fire was detected by Patrolman Manley of the Elizabeth Street Station at 7:30 o'clock. It was too early for any one to be at work there. Thick clouds of smoke were pouring from the windows on the second and third floors.

Deputy Chief Binns arrived with the engines on the first alarm, and he sent in a second alarm at once. Water Tower 1 and Engine 7 took their positions on Elm Street, and Lieut D. C. Sullivan and Firemen Thomson, Creegan, and Dowd were at work raising the tower, when there was a warning roar and a burst of flame.

Quick as, thought the four firemen leaped to the street and flattened themselves against the Edison Building. Other firemen rushed from the front of the burning building at the same moment, and as they did so the entire structure, with the exception of the extreme western section, came crashing down.

A hasty rollcall was made, and it was found that no fireman had been injured at that time, but two policemen were hurt. The noise of the falling walls frightened tho fire horses, and several of them bolted in an effort to get away. Policeman Shane sprang at one team as it was growing fractious at Worth and Elm Streets. His right leg got under their feet and his ankle was trampled upon and broken.

The horses of Engine No. 7 also bolted, and Policeman Barry threw himself on them. He got hold of the bridle of one and was forced against the kiosk of the Subway. His left shoulder was pushed through the glass, although it is protected with wire netting. His tunic saved his body, but the falling glass cut through his trousers and tore his right calf. Both he and Shane were attended by Dr. Koch of Hudson Street Hospital.

Fireman William Reilly was cut by glass. He was climbing up the fire escape of 28 Elm Street when the fire burst through a window. The glass fell on him and cut an artery in his left wrist. He was looked after by Dr. Zimmerman and sent to Hudson Street Hospital.

Chief Croker arrived soon after the second alarm and found the corner building a blazing pile. He took charge and sent the reinforcements as they arrived to the top of the Edison Building. There they attached the department hose to the standpipes of the building and poured a heavy stream directly on the fire. Other firemen were stationed on the sixth floor of the Edison Building, and from the hallway attacked the blaze. The employes of the electric light company remained at work through it all.

In forty minutes the fire had reduced the corner building to a scrap heap and wrecked a building next door and another near by. The loss was estimated at $200,000.

The five-story building at the corner of Elm and Pearl Streets was completely destroyed. The first, third, and fourth floors were occupied by the C. & M. Envelope Company, the first floor rear by the Thompson Manufacturing Company, stationery and tags; the second floor by the William C. Popper Company, stationery and printing, and the fifth floor by Weinberg & Co., printing.

The six-story building adjoining, at the south of Elm Street, had the three upper stories gutted. The first and second floors were occupied by the R. C. Castner Paper Company and the upper floors by Kruse & Co., carbon paper manufacturers.

The seven-story building connecting 539 Pearl Street and 24 and 26 Duane Street was occupied by the Miller & Wright Paper Company. Two upper stories were burned away and the roof destroyed. Other floors were damaged by fire and water.

Particularly dense smoke was caused by the carbon paper in the rooms of Kruse & Co. The firemen had difficulty in getting sufficient air to breathe. The fire was watched by Fire Commissioner Waldo and First Deputy Police Commissioner Bugher. Inspector Daly was in charge of the reserves of five precincts.

FIRE NEAR A HOSPITAL.

Nurses Draw Blinds to Prevent a Panic Among the Patients.

A scare among the forty patients in the Eastern District Hospital, Williamsburg, during a fire in the rear of the institution early yesterday morning was averted by the coolheaded nurses. The blaze was in the rear yard of a tenement dwelling in South Fourth Street, and had reached a high fence close to the institution when Miss Esther Carlson, the chief nurse, discovered it. She called all the other nurses to their posts and then had the windows closed and the shades drawn. As the patients woke up and became alarmed at the glare of the flames so near to them they were quickly reassured.

An alarm was rung in two blocks away from the hospital and the fire extinguished.

$100,000 FIRE IN JERSEY CITY.

Ice and Coal Plant and an Elevator Company Reduced to Ashes.

A fire in Jersey City last night totally destroyed the plants of the New York Revolving Portable Elevator Company at 450 Princeton Avenue, and the Greenville Coal and Ice Company, adjoining, doing about $100,000 damage, most of which is covered by insurance. The blaze was spectacular and could be seen away down the Narrows, and was visible to persons living in Manhattan.

Both plants were on the western side of the Central Railroad of New Jersey and south and east of the Bayview and New York Bay Cemeteries. Thomas Golden of 362 Princeton Avenue saw flames shooting up from the centre of the coal and ice plant and sent in an alarm. This was quickly followed by a second and then a general alarm. The flames spread quickly to the elevator plant, and soon both plants were a mass of flames.

Thousands of persons in their eagerness to get to the fire trampled over the garden truck farm of Michael Flaherty, that is just east of the scene of the fire, and destroyed thousands of dollars' worth of young vegetables. Probably 10,000 people ran through the cemeteries to watch the fire, and did considerable damage to burial plots and headstones.

When the fire started the flames and sparks shot across the tracks of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, and a passenger train bound for Philadelphia was rushed through the fire and smoke. After this the wind changed and the flames and sparks went in a westerly direction, doing slight damage to awnings in the Greenville district of the city.

Many people were obliged to remain on the roofs of their houses with buckets of water to prevent fires. A signal bridge over the Central Railroad was slightly damaged by the early flames, but a crew of a light engine chopped the burning parts away. Three cars filled with ice on a siding in front of the coal and ice plant were destroyed to the trucks. For a time trains were obliged to run slowly passing the fire, but there was no great delay to traffic. Several firemen were affected by smoke and a few received slight burns, but none was seriously injured.

The plant in which the fire started was a peculiarly shaped collection of frame and brick buildings ranging from two to three stories. These, covering an area of about 150 by 150 feet, including an ice house about sixty feet high, were burned to ashes. The New York Revolving Portable Elevator Company's plant was a two-story brick structure, and covered about the same area as the coal and ice plant. It was an old building, recently refitted. It was totally destroyed, and thousands of dollars' worth of raw and finished material went up in smoke. Thirty horses were rescued from this plant, and about twenty were taken out of the coal and ice plant.

H. S. Germond, Jr., manager for the elevator company, fixed the damage to his company's plant at about $60,000.

loud whistling noise as guy ropes were flung out to their full length by the wind and then cracked as a skilled "whip" cracks his lash over his horses' heads.

There was an instant turmoil in the inside of the tent, which momentarily threatened to come down on the heads of the occupants. Bits of broken pegs flew through the air and one of them narrowly missed hitting Mr. Curtiss and his wife. Some of them did strike the guy wires of the machines and two or three of these were broken.

The tent held, though the aviators, who set to work immediately to move their machines from beneath the billowing canvas, dreaded that each moment might see the "big top" dropping down upon them. They managed at last to get the five machines out into the open space behind the paddock, and there they were left standing in the hope that the wind might subside or that a flurry of rain might beat down its strength and clear the atmosphere.

There was no sign of clearing, however. The day broke, bleak and chilly, and it was only the sudden appearance of the sun just before noon, with the implied promise of a clear afternoon, that sent the would-be spectators hurrying to the track. The feats of Curtiss, Willard, McCurdy, and Ely of the day before made all Chicago anxious for another glimpse of the fliers, and they took advantage of even this slight break in the clouds in the hope that it foreshadowed a clearing.

Shortly after 4 o'clock a bank of lowering, purple clouds climbed into the western sky and began to move steadily along toward the east until they rested over the aviation grounds. It became almost as dark as at dusk, and suddenly the gale whipped down upon the field. Fortunately the airmen had seen it coming. Every flier, with all the mechanics and a few of the spectators who were impressed into service, hastened to move the aeroplanes beneath the shelter of the covered betting ring, and the last machine was well in place when the wind burst forth with all its furry. It tossed the big tent about as though it was a kite, and Curtiss dashed across the open roadway from the shed where his automobile was housed to warn the last of his mechanics out of the big top where they were at work removing his belongings. The wind almost swept him from his feet as he crossed the roadway, but before he could get his men away the wind died out as suddenly as it had arisen, although it dropped then only as low as 20 miles an hour. Then the rain came.

It poured down in sheets, wind-driven, with a force that caused each individual drop to sting as it struck one's face. Then the crowd made a dash for the special trains that had brought them out, while the aviators hurried into automobiles and fled back to town to the shelter of their hotels.

Every one of them was disappointed at the loss of a day's practice, for Willard, McCurdy and Ely are each anxious to employ every minute before the big race to New York.

Willard has already arranged to have two extra engines, duplicates of his own 50-horse power eight-cylinder affair, shipped to different points along his line.

"With three engines to help me, I'll reach New York or smash up myself and the machine," he declared to-night. "There was a time, I confess, when I did not believe the feat would be possible. Now that I know I shall have two extra engines, I not only think it possible, but, by George! I expect to do it."

"Where will I be while you're doing it?" was McCurdy's demand, and Ely echoed it. Each of the three seemed equally confident.

International Committee Announces the Programme for Belmont Meet.

The official copy of the programme of events for the international aviation tournament at Belmont Park, Oct. 22 to 30, was finished yesterday, and now shows a list of cash prizes amounting to $64,000. This is by far the largest prize list ever offered to aviators at any one meeting and is expected to attract to this country all of the most skillful aviators in Europe.

While most of the prizes are open to general competition, a prize of $2,500 will go exclusively to such American aviators as take part in the elimination contest for the selection f the American trophy team. These prizes are divided as follows: $1,200 to the first, $800 to the second, and $500 to the third. This contest will take place on Oct. 26 and will be flown over the five-kilometer course which has been laid out for the international race on Oct. 29.

Americans who intend to take part in the elimination contest must make their entries with the Aero Club of America before 5 o'clock in the afternoon of Oct. 15. This entry wil lalso entitle the aviator to take part in all other contests at the international meeting. It is expected that all of the foremost American fliers will participate in the elimination contest.

This race will furnish one of the most interesting events of the tournament. Dark horses and surprises are being talked about in all quarters, and, while there is a moody apprehension on the part of some that the International Cup will be feebly defended, each day it becomes more apparent that at least a heroic effort is to be made to keep it in this country.

Announcement was made that an official entry had been received by cable from Paris, coming from a young American aviator who had been doing good work abroad and who, like Moissant and Weyman, has been little heard of in this country. This new candidate for international honors, is Arthur Stone of Buffalo, N. Y., who holds the Aero Club of France license as an aviator and who, within the last thirty days, has made some extraordinary flights around Paris.

Before Cortlandt F. Bishop left Paris, Mr. Stone notified him that he was coming to America and would enter for the elimination contest if he could arrange his affairs to do so. On his arrival here, Mr. Bishop received a cablegram from Mr. Stone, saying that he would come to America, and that his Blériot monoplane would be shipped to New York.

Several of the Wright machines will be here within the next two weeks, including the new racer that has recently been built at Dayton. Capt. Thomas S. Baldwin and Tod Shriver will also enter with their machines.

It was stated last night that one of the interesting surprises of the tournament is to be revealed with the appearance of John B. Moissant, the Chicago aviator, who is now returning from France to enter the cup-defending team. It was stated that Mr. Moissant would appear at Belmont Park with one of the most powerful machines ever built, and that it would be in every way equal to the 100 horse power machines to be used either by Alfred Leblanc or Hubert Latham of the French team.

Hamilton's Monoplane Arrives.

HEMPSTEAD PLAINS, L. I., Oct. 3.—Charles K. Hamilton's 110 horse power racing monoplane was brought here to-night. Dr. Henry Waldron, who was nearly killed in aviation practice work some weeks ago, had his new monoplane out to-night. Harry S. Harkness was out with his Antoinette.

Three German Aeronauts Coming.

BREMEN, Oct. 3.—Three German aeronauts, Herr Blankertz, Capt. Von Abercron, and Lieut. Vogt, will sail to-morrow on the steamer Kronprinzessin Cecilie for New York. They will take part in the international balloon race from St. Louis on Oct. 17, piloting respectively the balloons Germania, Hamburg, and Düsseldorf.

STANDARD OIL TO START A RATE WAR

Statement from 26 Broadway Taken to Presage a Campaign Against Its Foreign Rivals.

THREAT OF PRICE CUTS

Trust Intimates That This Will Be Done to Increase the Consumption of Refined Oil.

In a carefully prepared statement issued from the office of the Standard Oil Company, at 26 Broadway, yesterday, men who have grown old in the oil trade insisted that they found a formal declaration of war upon European rivals of the Standard, particularly the many concerns recently formed in London and on the Continent for exploiting new petroleum fields in all corners of the world.

These men, who have followed the Standard's fighting tactics closely for many years, devoted only passing attention to the array of statistics dealing with crude oil, stopping only to point out what they regarded as the rather significant fact that Standard Oil had seen fit to put on record its opinion that there had been enormus overproduction and that there were 115,000,000 barrels in stock, placing the emphasis upon the final paragraphs of the long statement, these reading:

> Notwithstanding the enormous overproduction of crude oil to-day, there have been floated during the last six or seven months upon the English and European markets over seventy new oil companies, which have been promoted for the purpose of exploiting and developing new petroleum fields located all over the world. It is a foregone conclusion that only a very few of these companies will ever successfully reach the actual producing stage, or in any way become even small factors in the world's petroleum business; for it is not to be expected that any of the already established petroleum companies will be willing to step aside and make room for such new production as might be developed by some of these new companies.
> In view of the conditions and circumstances as explained above, the Standard Oil Company has inaugurated a campaign to increase the world's consumption of refined oil. The level of prices for refined oil to-day in the United States is lower than at any time during recent years, and as a direct result of these prices the consumption of refined oil in this country is increasing. The same policy is now being actively pursued abroad, as, especially in the Far East, with its enormous population, there exists an unusual opportunity of increasing the consumption of refined oil, and in order to accomplish this considerable reductions in prices, not only in the East, but also in Europe, have already been made.

It has been evident for some time that the control of the world's oil trade was not as firmly held in a few hands as had been the case for a decade or more. Working agreements between the large producers, particularly in the European fields, have not been running smoothly, and reports of friction between Standard organizations and English and Russian companies have been frequent, while the trade as a whole has been the subject of heated controversy in foreign Government councils, if the cables have been right. Incidentally exports of mineral oils from this country have been falling off of late.

The latest report concerning the Standard came from Japan a few days ago, and was to the effect that an agreement under which it had been working with the principal Japanese company had been abrogated, and that a price war was on. This is interesting in connection with the statement in the last paragraph above quoted that "the same policy [of lower prices] is now being actively pursued abroad as, especially in the Far East, with its enormous population, there exists an unusual opportunity of increasing the consumption of refined oil."

Preceding the two paragraphs noted there were these:

> Replying to questions concerning prices and competition in the oil business, the Standard Oil Company has made public the following statement of conditions:
>
> During the last three years the world's production of crude oil has been increasing at a rate far in excess of the increase in the world's consumption of kerosene or refined oil. In 1906 the world's production of crude petroleum was 213,000,000 barrels. In 1909 the production was 304,000,000 barrels, an increase of 91,000,000 barrels. The increase in the crude oil production in the United States during the same period was 60,000,000 barrels, or two-thirds of the entire world's increase. The world's refined oil (kerosene) business in 1906 was 48,000,000 barrels and in 1909 53,000,000 barrels, an increase of 5,000,000 barrels.
>
> These figures show that while the world's production of crude oil has increased from 1906 to 1909 by 42¼ per cent. the world's consumption of refined oil (kerosene) has only increased by 10.4 per cent.
>
> While it is true that during the last three years a very large market in the United States has been created for oil as fuel, still even with this added outlet for crude oil the stocks are increasing rapidly, and at the present time in the United States alone there is held in tankage by the Standard Oil Company and others a stock of over 115,000,000 barrels.
>
> It must be borne in mind that in selling oil for fuel there is an enormous waste of the valuable products contained in the crude oil, fuel oil as marketed to-day in the United States being practically crude oil from which only the highly inflammable light ends have been extracted. Were the fuel oil now being sold refined in the customary manner there would be obtained from it, in addition to refined oil, lubricating oil, paraffine wax, and other valuable by-products.

While the inferences drawn from the statement as a whole by the oil trade may be too drastic, it is nevertheless confident that a real battle, however, politely explained it may be, is on for the world's trade.

MITCHEL AGAIN ASKS FOR BAKER'S HEAD

would have to be had to these various resorts of vice, and proper evidence obtained, application made for a warrant, and the warrant served. This takes considerable time.

In the old days the police at times were not so careful, and on many occasions broke into places without legal evidence, but the same result was obtained, i. e., the abolition of the gambling or disorderly house. The present way, inaugurated by Mayor Gaynor, is the right way, and the strong indorsement of his administration by the people shows that the present legal method has their approval.

Vice Hard to Control, He Says.

In regard to prostitution, that is a question that is as old as the world. It was here before you and I were born and will be here after we have departed from this world. The proper remedy for regulating it, so far as this State is concerned, has not been found. Many clergymen and citizens of the highest character have conferred with me on this subject. It is admitted that we have a great many prostitutes in New York, and the great problem is, What are we to do with them? As yet none of these men have suggested a remedy.

You order them driven off the streets; you also order houses of prostitution to be raided. If we drive them off the streets they go into the houses, and vice versa. This subject has been brought to Mayor Gaynor's attention a number of times, and under date of June 8 he wrote a letter in answer to a citizen's complaint against prostitution in this city which gave his idea of the matter. I have discussed it with him myself, and he has promised to take it up in an orderly way, and I am sure that the result of his method will be satisfactory to the public at large.

You will recall that when you asked me to return from my vacation, (which was my third trip to New York during the month of August,) in connection with matters at Coney Island—when you found that Inspector O'Brien had six plain clothes men at work under my order—you requested me to at once countermand the order and return these men to duty in uniform. This was done immediately.

There are many problems in this great city which are more important in the line of police work than the regulation of the morals of the community by the police. To-night will end the week's festivities at Coney Island, called the Mardi Gras, which, it is estimated, from two hundred thousand to four hundred thousand people visited nightly, and up to this time no serious injury has happened to any one of this great number. This is remarkable when you consider the small area of territory to which the festival is confined, and the greatly congested railroad terminals.

Detectives Kept Busy.

The Detective Bureau is kept busy ferreting out criminals, preventing crime, and protecting law-abiding citizens from the many vicious people, murderers, robbers, pickpockets, and those who live by their wits. Criminals flock to New York City from all parts of the world, and it requires the active vigilance of the members of the Detective Bureau to know what is being contemplated by these men and women.

The prevention of crime, the preservation of peace and good order, and the regulation of traffic, which requires the services of from 800 to 900 policemen, are the principal functions of the police.

In order to carry on investigations and secure evidence you cannot deprive an Inspector or Captain of the proper tools with which to do it. Do you think Commissioner Fosdick's men could have secured the evidence which you say they have if they had been in uniform?

I recall that during my first interviews with you in August I said if you would inform me as to your policy as Mayor I would carry it out, and I reiterated this statement to you. Until yesterday you never intimated what your policy was.

Your consent, which was given yesterday, to detail men in plain clothes to stop gambling and open prostitution will be effective, I am sure, and I shall detail such men throughout the city as will be necessary to carry out your wishes.

I presume that you will send to me the evidence collected by Commissioner Fosdick's men so that warrants may be secured and the nuisances abated. Respectfully,

WILLIAM F. BAKER,
Police Commissioner.

Wholly Untrue, Says Mitchel.

Following this letter Mr. Mitchel writes to Mayor Gaynor:

"I desire to point out to you the following facts, which appear from this letter and the general record on this matter.

"The Commissioner states in this letter:

> You have refused to permit me to assign men in plain clothes, stating that it was the general impression that the Mayor did not want any but uniformed men to do this work, and that you would not change his orders.

"This is wholly untrue. The Commissioner had been advised to use his detective bureau for the purpose specified.

"The Commissioner at another point states:

> About ten days ago, despite your orders to the contrary, I assigned to duty in plain clothes eight members of the uniformed force for the purpose of looking up the gambling situation and of obtaining evidence wherever it was possible.

"This is a frank admission that the Commissioner has seen fit to disregard your own orders contained in your letter to Acting Commissioner Bugher on Aug. 4.

"At the close of his letter the Commissioner states:

> Your consent, which was given yesterday, to detail men in plain clothes to stop gambling and open prostitution, will be effective, I am sure, and I shall detail such men throughout the city as will be necessary to carry out your wishes.

"This statement is also absolutely untrue. The Commissioner's orders were to use his detective bureau, and under no condition to assign plain-clothes men to Captains or Inspectors, this being my understanding of the general policy which you have laid down."

Points to Indictments.

In closing Mr. Mitchel has this to say:

"The Grand Jury of this county upon the information furnished by the Inspectors of the office of the Commissioner of Accounts have found ten indictments for gambling.

"The Grand Jury of Kings County, acting on the information furnished by the same Inspectors with respect to Coney Island, have found eleven indictments.

"The Commissioner of Accounts, acting under my instructions, has pursued his investigations since Sept. 17 in the Borough of Brooklyn, and reports to me that his Inspectors have gained access to two gambling premises in which gambling was in progress at the time of the visit.

"I beg leave to renew my recommendation that the Police Commissioner be removed from office."

With a copy of this report in his pocket a TIMES reporter went to Police Headquarters. He sent word to Commissioner Baker that Mr. Mitchel had filed the report with Mayor Gaynor, and charged him with falsehood, and again asked for a statement.

The Police Commissioner contented himself with sending word that he did not wish to see either the report or the reporter and then left his office.

Criticises Stover, Too.

In his report Mr. Mitchel also says that Park Commissioner Stover did not carry out his instructions regarding the ousting of John D. Antonopulos from his stand privilege under the Manhattan terminal of the Brooklyn Bridge, and that an injunction in the case is pending. He says that he directed the Commissioner to remove the stand and to notify Antonopulos of a cancellation of his permit to take effect on Oct. 1.

"The Commissioner of Parks for some reason not explained to me, failed to serve his representatives to remove the obstruction," says Mr. Mitchel, "but served notice on the licensee of the cancellation to take effect on and after Sept. 1."

Mr. Mitchel says that he directed the Commissioner of Accounts to begin an investigation of the affair, and that a report will doubtless be submitted to the Mayor in a few das.

VICE INQUIRY GOES ON.

Two Grand Juries Kept Busy—Charges Against Capt. John O'Brien.

With two Police Captains facing charges of neglect of duty and inefficiency, two Grand Juries investigating vice conditions in various parts of the city, eleven policemen indicted and under bail, and bench warrants or subpoenas out for many of the men who are supposed to have participated in violations of the gambling laws, the work of Commissioner of Accounts Fosdick's Examining Inspectors is beginning to bear fruit.

Police Captain John O'Brien of the Hamilton Avenue Police Station, Brooklyn, who was recently removed from command of the Tenderloin Precinct, is the latest official to have charges preferred against him. Ex-Inspector John J. O'Brien, who was reduced to the rank of Captain and taken away from the Coney Island district, was the first. The latter's trial is now in progress. That of the former will begin shortly before one of the Deputy Police Commissioners.

Capt. John O'Brien was in charge of the Tenderloin Station while the gambling and other vice conditions exposed by Commissioner Fosdick's men was flourishing in the district. Although the charges against him, preferred by Chief Inspector Schmittberger, were served on Capt. O'Brien on Saturday night, their exact nature was not made public until yesterday, following the announcement from Police Headquarters that he would appear before one of the Deputy Commissioners to-morrow and plead.

Capt. O'Brien has not been relieved from duty as yet.

The charges against O'Brien are "Neglect of duty, violation of the police rules, conduct injurious to the public peace, and inefficiency," while in command of the Tenderloin Station. The charges state that between Aug. 1 and Aug. 20 he allowed disorderly resorts to operate in his precinct; also that between Sept. 8 and Sept. 20 he allowed a poolroom and gambling house to run unchecked in Broadway. It is also charged that between July 1 and Aug. 1 he failed, in his monthly report to the Police Commissioner, to mention a disorderly resort running in Sixth Avenue, although the complaint alleges he knew of its existence.

ARRAIGN TWELVE POLICEMEN.

Capt. O'Brien and Eleven Men of the Coney Island Precinct in Court.

Capt. John J. O'Brien and eleven policemen who were detailed at Coney Island during the Summer, were arraigned in the Supreme Court in Brooklyn yesterday to answer to a blanket indictment found last week by the Kings County Grand Jury, charging them with neglect of duty. All pleaded not guilty and were held in $1,000 bail by Judge Dike. Bonds for the accused men were furnished later. No date for the trial was set.

Those indicted with Capt. O'Brien are Hugh Reynolds, Samuel Rabaum, Ernest T. Eck, William F. Nammack, James Dooley, Stanislaus Tacowski, Frederick Briskey, Giuseppe Caravetta, Francis Gillmartin, William A. Mulligan, and Walter Raleigh.

It is charged that the policemen failed to interfere with two low gambling houses at Coney Island between July 1 and Sept. 1.

OVATION TO GAYNOR ON RESUMING WORK

Thousands Turn Out to Welcome the Mayor on His Return to City Hall.

LOOKS RUDDY AND STRONG

Voice Still a Little Weak and Husky from the Shot—Citizens' Committee Greets Him.

Mayor William J. Gaynor returned to the City Hall yesterday to take up his work as the city's Chief Executive. It was his first appearance there since James J. Gallagher, a discharged city employe, attempted to assassinate him last August as the Mayor was leaving Hoboken on the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse for a vacation abroad.

The Mayor's appearance indicated that he was in the best of health. His face looks bronzed and ruddy; his step is firm and elastic, and the only indication of his recent long illness is a slight huskiness in his speech.

He came in from St. James, L. I., Sunday, and remained all night at his Brooklyn home. About 9 o'clock yesterday morning he crossed the Brooklyn Bridge in his touring car, and when he reached the City Hall he was met by a committee of 100 prominent citizens, headed by John H. Finley, President of City College, and Jacob H. Schiff, and listened to an address of welcome.

After a brief reply the Mayor called all his heads of departments together, made a short address, and then with characteristic energy plunged into work, presiding over the first series of hearings on the budget for 1911. Then, with Mrs. Gaynor, the Mayor returned to his home in Brooklyn.

Throngs Greeted Him.

On his trip over from Brooklyn, at the City Hall, and on the return trip the Mayor was cheered by large crowds, which pressed about his automobile and shouted words of cheer and encouragement to him. He appeared greatly affected by the greetings, and several times tears dimmed his eyes as he responded by lifting his hat and bowing.

On the trip over from Brooklyn the Mayor was easily recognized and a continuous cheer followed him across the bridge and along Park Row. The car was driven through the posts at the entrance to the City Hall Plaza and drew up in front of the steps leading up the front of the building.

Several hundred persons had collected there, and as the Mayor stepped from his automobile a newsboy started to cheer. The crowd took the cue and the Mayor smiled with appreciation at the ovation.

The first person to greet the Mayor as he started up the City Hall steps was Lieut. William Kennell of the Police Department, who has been stationed at the Mayor's office for years as the chief executive's personal police aid. As Lieut. Kennell grasped the Mayor's hand the later said:

"Hello, Kennell, how'd you know I was coming over?"

"Oh, I've been watching you pretty closely," replied the lieutenant. Then the Mayor recognized James Taggart and Thomas Harney, the two veteran policemen stationed at the City Hall, and spoke to them a moment. They escorted him through the corridor to his office.

When the Mayor was informed that three little school children were waiting outside to see him he sent for them, and in trooped Molly Brate, 6 years old; Morris Kapenick, also 6, and Yetta Greenberg, aged 12, from Public School 177, on the east side, which the Mayor visited some months ago. The children carried three large bouquets of old-fashioned flowers, and each made a pretty speech telling how glad they were to see him back. The Mayor asked them some questions about their studies and then the children handed the Mayor this note:

> The children of Public School 177, your friends, send this greeting to make bright the day of your return to the City Hall. It is their hope that every day will show how glad the people of our city are that you have been spared to them.

The Mayor then plunged into his work and dictated a lot of letters. After that he went up to the Board of Estimate room and presided at the budget hearing. At noon the committee of 100 representative citizens arrived to welcome him back to his duties.

The committee was formed by Dr. Finley, Mr. Schiff; A. Barton Hepburn, Acting President of the Chamber of Commerce; Cornelius N. Bliss, former Secretary of the Interior; William A. Marble, Vice President of the Merchants' Association; John Claflin, and Alderman Samuel Marx.

Among the members were Robert W. de Forest, Col. George R. Dyer of the Twelfth Regiment, Henry P. Davison, Edward M. Grout, Bishop Greer, Herbert F Gunnison, Dr. Luther H. Gulick, Joseph D. Gilder, Allen Holt, Edward Hageman Hall, Chester S. Lord, Martin W. Littleton, Charles R. Lamb, Herman A. Metz, George McAneny, Thomas M. Mulry, Rollo Ogden, Controller Prendergast, Herman Ridder, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., Erman J. Ridgway, Major Gen. Charles S. Roe, Don C. Seitz, James E. Sullivan, Nathan Straus, Cornelius Vanderbilt, John H. Van Tine, Egerton L. Winthrop, George W. Wingate, Louis Rollo, John Wanamaker, Mgr. John I. Barrett, John Jacob Astor, George C. Boldt, Winthrop Ames, W. C. Brown, President of the New York Central Railroad; Henry Clews, John D. Crimmins, and Cesare Conti.

Committee Meets Him.

The Mayor was escorted to the reception room, where the committee awaited him, by John Purroy Mitchel, President of the Aldermen. Stepping forward, Mr. Mitchel said:

> You are returned to us after a very grave peril and trying and severe illness to take up again the duties of Mayor of this city, and I need not say to you that your associates on the Board of Estimate and the heads of your various departments are rejoiced to receive you here to-day and welcome you on your return.
>
> The great body of the citizens of the city, however, have felt that they wished to make expression of their appreciation of your services in the past and their confidence in your administration in the future by a committee, and these gentlemen you meet here to-day form such committee. I have the honor of presenting to you the Chairman of the committee, Mr. Jacob H. Schiff.

Mr. Schiff said in response:

> Mr. Mayor, when you were stricken down by the hand of the would-be assassin the people of New York, whom you have so faithfully served, felt horror, and their hearts went out to you and your family, and they prayed to the Almighty that you might be spared. They are grateful that their prayers have been heard and that you are back to-day to take up again the duties which have been so beneficial to your beloved city. I have been asked to call upon Mr. Claflin to express for this committee what the whole city would say to you to-day could they all be accommodated in this City Hall.

Mr. Claflin then said:

> We have come here to tell you that we are glad to see you back and to congratulate you on your recovery. A year ago many of us opposed you politically. Now we all appreciate the splendid work you have done for the city, and we thank God that you are able to continue. We earnestly wish you health and happiness.

The Mayor in a low, firm voice, said this in reply:

> Gentlemen: I would have been very glad to avoid this if possible, but when I came to the office this morning my secretary informed me that it was a fixed fact that you were coming here to welcome me and I had to acquiesce. You will have to excuse me from saying much. I would like to extend my thanks to you in suitable words, but unfortunately my voice is still such that I find great difficulty in saying anything at all in addition to the mere words, I thank you.
>
> I may add that I am extremely glad that in some way or another, I do not exactly know how, I have had the fortitude, if I may so call it, to remain in the service of the city rather than go into any other service. And I can say with confidence, because I have not very much confidence in myself, that if the body of the intelligent citizens, without regard to clamor and to senseless noise and vituperation will continue to work with me in the three years that I have yet to serve in the same way in which they have worked with me up to today, I think that in the four years you can accomplish something through me, as poor an instrument as I may be.
>
> I do not pretend—I never have pretended—that I can accomplish anything standing alone, but as the mere voice of the intelligent and righteous people of the city I can do something at least. I am certain that with their voice back of even the bad voice that I have now I shall be able in the four years to do some little good for the city.

Official Family Sees Him.

Following this reception the Mayor received all the heads of departments in a body in his private office. He greeted each Commissioner separately. Corporation Counsel Watson, as spokesman for his fellow-Commissioners, presented the Mayor with a bound set of resolutions, signed by each department head, expressing the pleasure that all felt at the return of the Chief Executive to his duties. The resolutions were adopted at a meeting of department heads held while the Mayor was still in the hospital. Mr. Watson said:

> On behalf of your official family, Mr. Mayor, I beg to express the heartfelt joy which we all feel in that you are enabled to resume your very arduous official labors among us here. While we have all striven during your enforced absence to make such progress as we might without your ever kindly guidance and help, I fear that for the most of us it has been at best but marking time.
>
> Now that you are back we all feel that we are to execute a very vigorous and energetic forward march. I desire, Mr. Mayor, to present at this time a copy of some resolutions which were passed the latter part of August by your associates and appointees. Acting Mayor Mitchel called a meeting, which was held for that purpose, and it is my present privilege to hand to you the resolutions which were passed.

The Mayor said in reply:

> I know you all so well that I do not need to enlarge upon what I have just said in the other room, but, while I was glad to receive the Citizens' Committee, I am more glad to receive my associates in the government of the city, because I am able to say that, no matter what has been said publicly, I felt entirely certain that every head of department and everybody in any chief employment under the city was entirely loyal to the city; I shall not say to myself, because that might seem egotistical, but loyal to the city during my absence, working away, not with noise and fury and newspaper clamor, but slowly and carefully, as all good work in the world from the beginning of the world has been done, and has to be done now and in the future.
>
> There is no short cut to results. Everybody who wants to achieve has to sit down and be a man of detail. We sometimes talk about genius, but there is not any genius in the world except the genius of getting ready. If I may cite an instance, that is all the genius that even Napoleon had; he had genius enough to get ready and organize conditions before he attempted to do a thing, and that is all we can do, and I am entirely satisfied that you are all doing that to the best of your ability.

He Rebukes a Policeman.

Mrs. Gaynor arrived at the City Hall shortly after noon and the Mayor left the building with her for the day, after a brief talk with Chief Justice Russell of the Court of Special Sessions. The corridor of the City Hall was thronged with citizens as he walked to the door, and a crowd of 3,000 were gathered outside. They cheered him until he rode away. The crowd closed about his machine as it started and a policeman called roughly to the people in front of the machine:

"Get out of the way there!"

The Mayor heard the remark. He instantly knocked on the glass front of his auto and ordered the chauffeur to stop. Then the Mayor, putting his head out of the window, called the policeman to him.

"Sir," said the Mayor sternly, "do not speak to people like that. Address them politely. They are not in my way, and if they were they would get out of the way. You must learn to be polite to the people of the city. You have no right to speak like that."

The crowd yelled louder than ever at that, and many followed the automobile across the Brooklyn Bridge.

After the Mayor had left Mr. Mitchel made this statement:

> The public is to be congratulated upon Mayor Gaynor's return to the City Hall to resume the conduct of the city government. There are many important matters intimately affecting the welfare of the city, notably those relating to the police and transportation, which must be decided, and he is eminently fitted to deal with them.
>
> During my term as Acting Mayor, necessitated by the deplorable and prolonged absence of Mayor Gaynor, I have endeavored to meet such problems in the government of the city as have arisen in a manner and spirit such as it seemed to me would square with his declared principles and policies.

The Mayor will be at his office this morning and take up police matters, among other things.

MAYOR WATCHING THE BUDGET.

Shows That He Hasn't Lost Track of the City's Finances.

Mayor Gaynor, presiding at the first of the series of hearings on the city budget for 1911, in the old City Council Chamber yesterday morning, showed that he has not lost his grasp on city affairs despite his long illness and absence from the City Hall.

When the Mayor entered the Council Chamber he shook hands with the other members, all of whom were present except Borough President Cyrus C. Miller of the Bronx.

City Clerk Scully made the opening speech. He asked for an increase of $26,194, bringing his total for 1911 to $287,600. He explained that $15,000 of the amount was to defray the salaries of new attachés in the office of Mr. Mitchel and $2,400 for contingencies in the same office. He said it would be impossible for him to do the required work of his office with fewer clerks than he had at present. When asked by Controller Prendergast how he would make a cut of 10 per cent. should it be ordered, he said the salaries would have to suffer first.

"How much of the money asked for is to cover statutory salaries?" the Mayor asked.

"About $151,000," replied the City Clerk, who said his requisition was to cover the salaries of Aldermen and attachés of the board, as well as those of employes in his own office.

Bridge Commissioner Martin said his department was working to have the revised estimate, with the 10 per cent. reduction, ready by Friday.

"I'm glad to see you are disposed to comply with the request," remarked the Mayor.

"We are, in spite of the fact that we have two large bridges to care for," Mr. Martin replied.

Commissioner Thompson of the Department of Water Supply, Gas, and Electricity explained a request for an increase of $958,832 by stating that an increase in lighting facilities in outlying localities made necessary an additional expenditure of $396,000 a year, and Deputy Commissioner Bemis had recommended that $467,000 be allowed to stop water waste in Manhattan. With Brooklyn considered, he said the cost of reducing water waste would foot up to $800,000.

Dr. Brannan, for Bellevue and Allied Hospitals, said that he regarded the amount asked, $1,323,474, an increase of $181,418 over the allowance of last year, to be absolutely necessary to the welfare of the institutions and their inmates.

"Are you going to submit a budget providing for a 10 per cent. reduction?" asked Mr. Mitchel.

"We will submit a revised budget. We can't conscientiously submit an estimate providing for a 10 per cent. reduction, however," said Dr. Brannan, and after he had protested several times the Mayor interrupted him to say:

"It's not for you to say you won't do this, Mr. Brannan."

CROWD AT OPENING OF BUDGET EXHIBIT

Mayor Gaynor, Unable to be Present, Is Represented by President Mitchel.

ECONOMY THE WATCHWORD

Total Appropriation for 1911 Will Not Exceed That for 1910, Says the Controller—McAneny Speaks To-day.

Controller Prendergast, speaking yesterday morning at the opening of the budget exhibit in the old Tefft-Weller Building, 330 Broadway, announced that the Board of Estimate was about to consider the estimates for next year, with the determination of keeping the budget down to its figure for this year, $163,000,000. In doing this, he did not say that there would be no improvements and no increases in salary, but that the money must be found by requiring each Commissioner to effect a 10 per cent. economy in the activities of his department.

The rooms of the exhibition were crowded as soon as the doors were opened. Mayor Gaynor found it inadvisable in his present state of health to be present, and his place was taken by President Mitchel. At the back of the ground floor an auditorium has been set up where each noontide meetings will be held, at which department heads will explain what they have accomplished, what they hope to do, and what it will cost.

President Mitchel opened the meeting with a short address, in which he explained that he was there to represent Mayor Gaynor. The budget exhibit, he said, was an effort to lay before the public the needs of departments and how the proceeds of the tax levies are spent.

Borough President McAneny pointed out that the exhibit was of things which touch the pocket of each citizen, and it was hoped that the information derived by the public would assist in keeping the budget down. He reminded his hearers that from the $163,000,000 which the city will spend this year, no permanent improvements will be made, but the interest on the cost of past permanent improvements is being met. If the exhibit is a success, it will be repeated next year, he said.

Controller Prendergast, as a member of the Board of Estimate, declared that the board was determined to keep the figures of the budget for 1911 within those of 1910.

"We are not going to meet that problem from the speculative point of view. We actually propose to keep the figures down.

"Of course many proposals will be brought before us. We shall be told that they are of great public importance, and that, however much money is spent on them, the benefit to the entire city will be well worth it. We shall take them into consideration, and shall try to provide the funds for them, while still keeping within the figures for 1910.

"We hope to do this by economy. President McAneny has already presented for his departments estimates 7 per cent. less than the amount granted to the Borough President for last year. He hopes to make a still further cut, so as to fall in line with the horizontal cut of 10 per cent. all around at which the departments should aim. We are going to prove whether the departments can live up to the scientific economy for which this administration stands."

The Controller stated that he had succeeded in making the 10 per cent. decrease in the demands of the Finance Department, and that he believed the other departments could do as well. He continued:

"No doubt there will be suggestions that this man or that has been so many years in the city's employ and that he ought to be paid more. That is very attractive. But what if we can't afford it? What would be said of a man in private business who started out to spend more money in a year than he could possibly afford? That would mean bankruptcy for him.

"A good deal has been said about the credit of New York City. No political entity in the world enjoys a higher credit than the City of New York. But the public can do much to increase this. They can persuade those who buy its securities that it is being conducted with scientific economy. We cannot now afford certain projects for improvements or increases of salaries. We must lay them aside for a time. I know that this is not popular, but it is right, and like the man who once said he would rather be right than be President, the Board of Estimate prefers to be right to being popular.

"By keeping down the expenditure now the time will come when we can afford all these things. No city can be properly conducted when increases of salary are made without consideration of the services rendered or the conditions, when the pay of any man is doubled under one administration because he is the friend of the boss—not the political boss, I mean, but the office boss. Let us grade the offices and their duties, so that every one will receive what is due to him and not more."

The Controller went on to say that the public could help the Board of Estimate considerably if it would stand behind it in this campaign for scientific economy.

"Let it be clearly understood that the budget is not to be a dollar more than it was last year. We have the support of the Mayor in that. He said so this morning."

All the Commissioners, Mr. Prendergast explained, would have to come before the Board of Estimate and answer direct questions as to what economies they had effected and what improvements they had carried out, and they would be expected to show real results.

Borough President McAneny reminded the audience of the three public hearings on the budget to be held by the Board of Estimate, and invited an inspection of the exhibit with these in view.

The exhibit will be open on every week day from 10 o'clock to 7 and on Tuesday and Thursday evenings till 10:30 o'clock. It will also be on view on Sunday afternoons from 1 o'clock till 5. At noon today Dr. Ernst J. Lederle, Health Commissioner, will speak on the needs of the Health Department, and at 12:30 o'clock Borough President McAneny will give an account of his own departmental work.

EXPLOSION NEAR POST OFFICE

Driver of a Fish Wagon Stunned and Others Frightened by Discharge.

As a fish wagon clattered through Mail Street behind the Post Office at 2 o'clock this morning, one of the wheels struck some explosive. In an instant there was a vivid flash and a stunning report. A dozen or more horses attached to mail wagons started to run, but the drivers were on the seats of the vehicles and soon pulled the frightened animals to a standstill. Several policemen ran to the spot where the explosion occurred, and there found John Fleck, 34 years old, a driver for Pope & Company, fish dealers of Fulton Market, sitting on the seat of his wagon. Fleck seemed stunned. He was clutching his right leg, and when asked if he had been hurt he cried out that his leg had been blown off. Such was not the case, however, and an examination failed to reveal even the slightest injury to the limb.

Policeman Cunningham of the Elizabeth Street Station made a careful investigation, but he could find no fragment of a bomb. There was some red dust upon the pavement where the flash of flame had been seen, but the street was not torn up and Fleck's horse and wagon had not suffered from the peculiar explosion.

The sleepers on the benches in City Hall Park jumped to their feet and ran when the concussion shock awakened them.

BEGIN BROKER TRACY'S TRIAL

Prosecutor Says His Firm Was in Trouble for a Year Before It Failed.

William W. Tracy, formerly head of the firm of W. W. Tracy & Co., 40 Wall Street, which failed on May 17, 1909, was put on trial yesterday before Justice O'Gorman in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court charged with grand larceny. It is alleged that on April 13, 1909, Tracy sold 600 shares of Goldfield Consolidated Mining stock belonging to Herman Hahle of 774 Forrest Avenue for $5,200 and refused to give Hahle the proceeds.

Assistant District Attorney Buckner for the prosecution said he intended to prove that the firm was in a bad condition financially for a year and a half before they suspended and that they kept going by juggling accounts of their customers. He said that every time they got an order to buy stock they made an offsetting sale to some fictitious house.

Buckner said that Hahle gave Tracy a block of Nevada Consolidated and ordered him to buy 600 shares of Goldfield Consolidated. Tracy did so, but instead of turning the shares over to Hahle he resold them and refused to give Hahle the money. He said that Tracy put off paying Hahle and that when the company suspended the money was still unpaid.

The prosecution did not expect to show that Tracy had actual knowledge of the transaction, Mr. Buckner said, but he did expect to show that Tracy was directing the operations of his firm and that everything his partners did had his approval.

The case was adjourned at 4:30 o'clock until to-day, when it is expected that Tracy's former partner, Robert D. Covington, will testify for the prosecution.

HOTEL'S CASH WAS STOLEN.

Police Say a Clerk at the Cumberland Admits Taking About $3,000.

Harry W. Murphy, cashier and clerk at the Hotel Cumberland, Fifty-fourth Street and Broadway, was arrested last night charged with theft. Detectives who made the arrest say that he has confessed to having juggled his accounts to the extent of $3,000 in the last few months, although the specific charge against him is the theft of only $52.

A week or so ago, according to the detectives, Henry P. Stimson, manager of the hotel, became suspicious of Murphy. Without saying anything to the cashier, he employed expert accountants to go over the books. Their investigation resulted in Murphy's arrest.

The detectives say that Murphy admitted having taken money. They say also that he told them he had been living beyond his means for many months, and that, being pressed for funds, he took money from the cash drawer, failed to enter receipts in the cash book, and juggled his balance sheets so that his accounts would appear to be correct.

Murphy was formerly employed at the Waldorf-Astoria. He entered the employ of the Cumberland about eighteen months ago. He is married and has been living at 519 West 135th Street.

The prisoner was taken to Headquarters last night and will be arraigned this morning.

GREET CARDINAL VANNUTELLI

A Thousand Children from Parochial Schools to Meet Him on Landing.

Cardinal Vannutelli, who is to be one of the principal assistants in the consecration of St. Patrick's Cathedral, was to leave Cresson, Penn., last night and arrive in Newark to-day, where, with his party, he will be the guest of Bishop O'Connor of St. Patrick's Cathedral. The Cardinal will be met by Mgr. Whelen, with a party of Catholic laymen, and escorted to the residence of the Bishop. With Cardinal Vannutelli will be Bishop O'Connell of San Francisco, Monsignor De Croy, Templero, Lega; Father Galese Uginet, and the Cardinal's two nephews, Counts Galileo and Enrico Vannutelli; Mgr. They will be met by Archbishop Farley and a party of New York churchmen and laymen at the North German Lloyd pier in Hoboken. From there a special boat will be taken for a ride up the Hudson as far as Grant's Tomb, and returning, will disembark at the Columbia Yacht Club, at the foot of West Eighty-sixth Street, where a few thousand children from the city's parochial schools will welcome the Cardinal and escort him to Archbishop Farley's residence.

Bishop Cornelius Van den Ven of Alexandria, La.; Bishop Theophile Meerschaert of Oklahoma, and Bishop John J. Monahan of Wilmington, Del., arrived in this city yesterday and are the guests of Mgr. Murphy.

HE'S "A BAD BOY" AT 62.

Father, 87 Years Old, Has Son Arrested as Unmanageable.

George W. Wilmust, 84 years old, who lives at 259 Hewes Street, Williamsburg, yesterday had his sixty-two-year-old son, Frank P. Wilmust, before Magistrate O'Reilly, in the Bedford Avenue Police Court for being "a bad boy and unmanageable."

The aged man declared that for a long time he had had considerable trouble with his "boy," because he drank to excess and was getting to be a disgrace.

"Really," said the old man, "Frank is getting to be a very bad boy, and I'm sorry that he is getting unmanageable. Something must be done to him."

The son admitted his father's allegations and was held in $800 bail for a hearing to-morrow.

EXPECTS TO CATCH DYNAMITERS SOON

Los Angeles Chief of Police Learns Three Men Bought Explosive at San Francisco.

HAD IT SENT TO LAUNCH

Rewards for Apprehension of Men Who Blew Up Times Building Now Approximate $100,000.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 3.—Chief of Police Galloway said to-night that he expected to have in custody soon one or more of the conspirators concerned in dynamiting The Los Angeles Times Building and placing bombs near the residences of Gen. Otis, proprietor of The Times, and F. J. Zeehandelaar, Secretary of the Merchants and Manufacturers' Association. He said he expected momentarily to receive definite news from San Francisco, whence has come the most promising clue thus far developed.

William J. Burns, a detective employed in the graft cases in San Francisco, is at work in that city with Los Angeles detectives, who were sent there on receipt of information that dynamite, believed to have been the same as that found in the bomb at Zeehandelaar's home, had been purchased near San Francisco by men giving the names of Leonard, Bryson, and Morris. Burns and the other detectives, with Attorney Earl Rogers and a powder expert, left for San Francisco last night immediately after reports concerning Leonard, Bryson, and Morris were received. This clue came from officers of the Giant Powder Company in San Francisco, where they reported the three men purchased 500 pounds of the explosive.

Believe Five Men Concerned.

The police believe five men were directly concerned in placing the bomb that wrecked the Times Building and in constructing the time bomb found under the Zeehandelaar home and the infernal machine found at the residence of Gen. Otis. According to the detectives, five men were seen loitering near the house of Mr. Zeehandelaar on Friday afternoon. Two men first appeared and casually inspected the premises. Later they were joined by three others, and the five held a short conversation and left, going in different directions.

A person living in the neighborhood is said to have noticed the men, and later, when the bomb was found, notified the officers. It is understood that the police have a fair description of the men, and every effort is being made to trace their movements from the Zeehandelaar home Friday afternoon.

It is believed by the police that the men planted the explosives at The Times office, at Gen. Otis's home, and at Mr. Zeehandelaar's residence within a period of one hour.

The entire police force is working twelve hours a day and will be worked on this schedule until conditions become normal. Patrolmen are kept in reserve at the Central Police Station and two motor cycle officers are held on duty to answer emergency calls. Everything is being done to maintain order and protect property. The City Council passed an emergency ordinance at a special meeting to-day, which authorized the immediate appointment of forty additional patrolmen, ten Sergeants, and one Lieutenant.

These men will be used to hunt down and imprison or drive out of the city men who have been known to express commendation of acts of violence, and others who have been in trouble with the Police Department since the labor difficulties began in Los Angeles, several months ago.

Many clues are under investigation, and in compliance with orders from the Chief of Police to apprehend all persons coming under the classification of "undesirable and dangerous," arrests are made almost hourly. Seventeen men are now in the city jail, booked as dynamite suspects. These arrests, however, are regarded as merely perfunctory.

Rewards Aggregate $100,000.

Under the stimulus of proffered rewards aggregating $100,000, hundreds of policemen, detectives, and private citizens in all Pacific coast cities are searching for clues that may lead to the arrest of the conspirators. The city has put a price of $10,000 on the head of each. The county voted to-day an additional reward of $5,000 for every man captured and convicted, and members of the Merchants and Manufacturers' Association offered a reward of $50,000, of which $25,000 has been subscribed. On the assumption that at least three men were responsible for the explosion, the combined offers thus approximate $100,000.

The entire city is thoroughly aroused. One newspaper that has been friendly to union labor printed a first-page editorial to-day, demanding that in view of the strictures directed at the unions in connection with the explosion the strikes now on be called off. The State Federation of Labor, which met in convention here to-day, will probably take action to-morrow looking toward the appointment of investigators, who will work in connection with the committee named by city officials.

A boy found to-day a box containing clockwork and a cylinder which looked like a battery at the home of a Mrs. Parkman, in Grand Avenue. When policemen arrived they found several women in the Parkman home in a hysterical condition. The machine was a hoax. Shortly afterward a workman in the Llewellyn Warehouse heard a buzzing noise and found a square oil can, one side of which had been cut to admit two dry batteries and clockwork. He warned his fellow-workmen, and every one fled from the building. The police took the machine away. It also was probably a hoax.

Two iron foundries, the Craig Shipyard at Long Beach, the Alexandria Hotel Annex, now in course of construction, and several other large steel buildings where there are strikes are heavily guarded. Gen. Otis is protected by a bodyguard, as are his offices and the branch office that houses the editorial and business departments of The Times, and the auxiliary plant, where the paper is printed.

Coroner Begins Investigation.

Coroner Hartwell impaneled a jury to-day to begin the inquest. After taking the nine members over the ruins of The Times building he announced that nothing further would be done until the investigating committee appointed by the Mayor and the Chief of Police is ready to report. It is doubted that the bodies of any more victims will be recovered, as it is believed they were consumed by the flames.

Gen. Otis again inspected the wrecked building to-day. He was accompanied by two officers in plain clothes, who kept watch and remained close to him.

Chief of Detectives Flammer photographed to-day every twisted piece of steel brought from the wreckage, with the purpose of submitting the photographs to experts on explosives and determining, if possible, the kind of explosive used in blowing up the building.

Gen. Otis and Harry Chandler, assistant general manager of The Times, are making arrangements for holding one funeral service for all the victims of the disaster.

"If the families of the men don't object we will have them buried in one grave in my lot," said Gen. Otis, "and we will raise a monument to their memory, which will bear the names of all."

The funeral of Churchill Harvey Elder, night editor of The Times, who died of his injuries a few hours after the explosion and fire, will be held to-morrow.

A committee consisting of editors and managers of all the papers in the city is gathering a fund to relieve the families of the victims. Mayor Alexander appointed a committee of seven to-day to receive contributions for the same purpose.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 3.—The theory advanced by the Los Angeles police that the explosive used to blow up The Times building was purchased in the Giant Powder Works at Giant, Cal., has been strengthened by investigations here. The strongest evidence is in regard to the dynamite found at the residence of F. J. Zeehandelaar, which bore the label: "Eighty per cent. giant gelatine, Giant Powder Company, Giant, Calif., Sept. 20."

Frank Rollar, Superintendent of the Giant Works, has identified the dynamite by a telegraphed description. He said:

"The only 80 per cent. gelatine dynamite we have manufactured in several months was made about Sept. 2, on an order from our San Francisco office, to be delivered to the launch Peerless. It was a special order for 500 pounds, and was stamped with our label in the same manner as the dynamite found by the Los Angeles police was labeled. Three men carried on the transaction at our office in San Francisco."

Bruce McCaul, chief invoice clerk of the Giant Powder Company, said to-day that he could identify the three men who purchased 500 pounds of gelatine dynamite from his company on Sept. 23. McCaul said the men impressed him by their speech and clothing as being college bred. Bryson wanted 85 per cent. dynamite, saying he wanted to use it to clear his ranch, near Auburn, of stumps.

McCaul said that a few days later one of the men came for the explosive, which was delivered to the launch Peerless.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Col., Oct. 3.—At a meeting of Colorado Springs Typographical Union No. 82 yesterday, resolutions were adopted deploring the explosion which destroyed the plant of The Los Angeles Times and the resulting loss of life. At the same time it censured the management of The Times for charging organized labor "with complicity in the outrage without reasonable grounds, and in view of the law-abiding attitude of the unions throughout its entire history."

ANSWER FATHER VAUGHAN.

Presbyterian Ministers Deny That Protestantism Is Dying in America.

A spirited discussion was precipitated at the Presbyterian Ministers' Association at its meeting yesterday afternoon at Assembly Hall, 156 Fifth Avenue, by the report of the sermon delivered by Father Bernard Vaughan at St. Patrick's Cathedral on Sunday. The following resolution, introduced by Dr. S. Edward Young, pastor of the Bedford Presbyterian Church, Brooklyn, was unanimously adopted:

> Resolved, That this association repudiates the statement quoted by the Rev. Father Vaughan in this city, to the effect that Protestanism in America is dying, and combats his assertion that Catholicism is the only hope of the American Republic.
>
> In an hour when we desire the fullest cordiality of Catholics and Protestants toward each other, we would merely mention Father Vaughan's utter unfamiliarity with American conditions—being a foreigner and having arrived here but two days ago—and we would cite as samples of Roman Catholic influence in elevating countries where that Church has long had absolute domination, the conditions in Spain and France, and South American nations, and in Italy, until Mazzini and Victor Immanuel secured civil liberty and ushered in the modern and better Italy by fighting and triumphing over the Papal power.
>
> Our Nation was born a Protestant Nation, several of the original thirteen colonies being exclusively Protestant, and has attained its present high place as a Protestant Nation, and until the Roman Church can cite some nation that has arisen under Catholicism as rapidly and gloriously as ours, Father Vaughan's pronunciamento needs no refutation.

Lewis W. Barney, Secretary of the association, made the resolutions public.

CHINESE SENATE OPENED BY REGENT

Second Stage in the Development of Popular Representative Government.

PARLIAMENT TO COME IN 1915

Half the Senators Appointed by Throne and the Rest Carefully Selected So as to Restrain Radicalism.

PEKING, Oct. 3.—China took another forward step to-day when at noon the newly constituted Imperial Senate was opened by the Regent, Prince Chun.

There was little or no ceremony to mark the historic event. In a brief address Prince Chun stated that the wish of the people was for a Parliamentary Government, and he commanded the Senators to labor for this consummation.

A Parliamentary building of ample dimensions will be constructed, but pending its completion the sessions of the Senate will be held in the rather narrow quarters of the Law College. The lack of room was given as the reason for the exclusion of representatives of the press from to-day's proceedings. The same rule was applied to other outsiders, not even the members of the Diplomatic Corps being invited.

The Imperial Senate constitutes the second stage in the development of a popular representative Government. The first was the inauguration a year ago of the Provincial Assemblies. The crowning event will be the establishment of a general Parliament, which is promised for 1915.

The Imperial Senate is expected to demonstrate the fitness of the Chinese to help rule themselves and so prepare the way for a genuinely representative Government. Certain classes, especially the merchants, are impatient for the fulfillment of the plans of the Throne, and last June a delegation from the Provincial Assemblies came to Peking and demanded the immediate convocation of a national Parliament. The memorial was rejected and its authors were told that a constitutional Government proper would come only at the end of the nine-year period of preparation fixed by the late Dowager Empress.

Affairs will move slowly, and the make-up of the Senate is sufficient guarantee that the Throne will keep a firm hand on that body and directly influence its actions. The radical reform element will be held in restraint. Of the 200 members 100 were appointed by the Throne, while none of the others, though they were chosen by the Provincial Assemblies, was admitted until his selection had been approved by the Viceroy of his province.

Those named by the Throne include Imperial Manchu Princes and nobles, distinguished scholars, and representatives of the official class and of the high taxpayers.

TOLSTOY OPPOSES THE PALE.

Says It Violates the Rights of All Beings to Move Upon the Earth.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 3.—A protest against the Jewish Pale by Count Tolstoy is published to-day.

The regulations setting aside a restricted district, only within which may Jews reside legally, are described by Tolstoy as not only absurd and ineffectual, but as violating the natural right of all beings to live and move upon the earth.

A Jewish watchmaker, 50 years old, has committed suicide by poison in a suburb of this city after receiving a police notice of expulsion.

PLEA MADE FOR QUEENSTOWN

Irish Delegation Wants It Retained as Port of Call.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—An all-Irish deputation, headed by the Lord Mayor of Dublin, Michael Doyle, called on Postmaster General Hitchcock to-day to protest against the abandonment of Queenstown as a port of call for mail steamers of the Cunard Company on their eastward passages from New York. Besides the Lord Mayor, the following addressed the Postmaster General: J. H. Campbell of Queenstown, W. A. Lindsay of Belfast, Sir Edward Fitzgerald, Bart., of Cork; Sir James Long of Cork, E. J. Long of Limerick, Charles O'Callaghan of Queenstown, and M. Loughrane of Killarney.

Arguments were presented in favor of the restoration of Queenstown as a port of call by the Cunard Company or the use by the United States of another steamship line in the transportation of its mails to Great Britain and the Continent. It was explained that the stopping of the Cunard vessels at Queenstown would cause a delay of less than an hour and would insure the delivery of mail intended for the North of England, Ireland, and Scotland substantially twenty-four hours earlier than it is now delivered after passing through the London office.

Mr. Hitchcock said the representations made were excellent grounds for appeal to the Cunard Company. He promised his callers that he would take up their cause with the Cunard Company and do what he could to comply with their request.

GRIFFIN HALSTEAD INDICTED.

Son of Murat Halstead Charged with Embezzlement and Larceny.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Griffin Halstead, son of the famous journalist, the late Murat Halstead, whose well-known brokerage firm failed Jan. 17 last, was indicted by the Federal Grand Jury to-day on charges of embezzlement, false pretenses, and larceny.

Two indictments were returned. One deals with Halstead's alleged wrongful conversion to his own use of two notes aggregating $5,500 given to him by John H. Howell, a customer, and the alleged embezzlement of $4,800 in cash which Howell never had credited to his account.

Another charge embraced in the second indictment relates to an alleged similar transaction with Orinda E. Yerkes in which Halstead is alleged to have misappropriated 200 shares of U. S. Steel preferred stock certificates, valued at $25,200 and bonds of a Florida corporation of the market value of $960.

TO ABANDON HOLYHEAD.

White Star Line Will Give It Up as a Port of Call.

LONDON, Oct. 3.—The White Star Steamship Company has decided definitely to abandon Holyhead, Wales, as a port of call.

There have been reports recently that such action would be taken.

To Represent Panama at Washington.

PANAMA, Oct. 3.—It is announced that the next Minister from Panama to the United States will be Dr. Belisario Porras, the distinguished lawyer and political leader who was Panama's representative at The Hague Conference of 1907 and at the Pan-American Congress at Buenos Ayres last Summer. Dr. Porras, who has been Minister to Brazil, is a great admirer of the American people and institutions. Carlos Arosemena, the present Minister at Washington, will receive the offer of the position of Secretary of Public Works.

To be Twelve New Cardinals.

PARIS, Oct. 3.—The Rome correspondent of La Liberté says that a Consistory has been definitely fixed for Nov. 21, when Pope Pius will name twelve Cardinals, of whom ten will be Italians and two Frenchmen.

CHINA LOOKS TO US FOR HER FUTURE

So Says Capt. Kirton, English Publisher of Shanghai, Who Brings a Message to America.

FRIENDLY TO THIS COUNTRY

Anxious to Enlist Our Capital and Skill in the Development of Her Resources.

Capt. Walter Kirton, co-proprietor and managing editor of the National Review of Shanghai, China, who arrived here from England on Saturday, is making a flying trip through the United States on his way back to the field of his labors. His publication is the voice of the progressive party in China, and it is from that party that he brings a message to America.

"I can do very little in the time that is left to me before I must leave for Shanghai," Capt. Kirton said last night, "but I want the people here to know the work we are doing. I want the publicists of America to be familiar with the National Review and its purposes. This is my message to America that China is now receptive, and is growing more and more eager for the investment there of foreign capital, foreign enterprise and foreign skill. My message is one of extreme amity toward America.

"The doctrine of the progressive party and of the National Review, which is its voice, is that the social and political development of China must be accompanied, if not preceded by, economic development. And for her economic development China needs the help of the outside world, a truth which we have been hammering into the heads of her people, so that now the old resentment and hostility toward foreign influence of any kind has become a negligible feature.

"With China once in the field of wide French, English, and American investment, she can demand recognition as an international power, and thus preserve her national integrity. Had such investment been made some years ago, the encroachments of Russia and Japan would have been impossible, and that is why, to-day, the Russians and Japanese are doing all in their power to thwart the purposes of the progressive party, and in their virtual alliance they are striving to subvert China's development."

Capt. Kirton spoke with the eagerness of one devoted heart and soul to a cause, when he discussed last night the purpose of his visit. He was talking in his rooms at the Hotel Woodstock. Before he leaves for China by way of San Francisco he will review the situation with President Taft, whom he met in the Far East.

The National Review is only three years old, and Capt. Kirton's co-proprietor is his Excellency Taotai Yuen-cham, better known as Y. C. Tong, a Columbia University graduate of the seventies. It was founded to give the English-speaking world a correct understanding of the Chinese opinion on international questions.

It is supplied by order of the Government to all provincial headquarters, to all Ministries and Consulates, to every educational establishment in China. The State Department in Washington takes two copies. Its important articles are translated by order of the Government for the instruction of Government officials, including the Prince Regent. With this as its clientele, the paper, a 5-cent weekly of 5,000 circulation, is able to advertise in such terms as these:

> Advertise in every paper in the United States and you reach indirectly 93,000,000 people. Advertise in The National Review and you reach directly the responsible leaders of 400,000,000 people.

The paper's motto is "China for the Chinese."

"One thing for which we have worked, and which I can announce now as a thing accomplished, is the establishment of English as the secondary official language of the empire," said Capt. Kirton. Then reverting to the matter of investment and the economic development of China, he said:

"It is such a fertile field, such a matchless market! Think of it! There are 400,000,000 people living in 4,000,000 square miles of land, an average of 100 persons to the square mile, and that average is made up of vast untouched areas, comparable to young Wyoming. Those people are supported almost entirely by agriculture.

"Think what it means as a commentary on the thrift and the industry of the Chinese. Think what it means as a field for economic adventure. Foreign skill and foreign capital would reap its profit, and to China would go the benefit of the completed undertakings as well as the benefit that accrues to any people from the presence of a developing enterprise."

Capt. Kirton is an Englishman and saw service in the British Army in the South African and other campaigns. As war correspondent he accompanied the first army of Japan, under Gen. Kuroki, during the Russo-Japanese war. The possibilities of China appealed to his fighting spirit, his spirit of adventure, and to his optimism. He threw in his lot with the party of progress and reform, and has given up everything else. He left Shanghai on Feb. 1 and has been in England up to two weeks ago. At Salt Lake City, in 1906, he married an American woman. Mrs. Kirton is with him on his journey.

Capt. Kirton spoke with the greatest regard for his associate, Y. C. Tong, a man of wide influence in Chinese affairs. Just now he is the host of a group of American business men visiting the Orient, having personally conducted them from Yokohama to Shanghai. On his way to Yokohama for this purpose, he took under his wing the detachment of sixty-nine young Celestials bound for America to be educated under the returned boxer indemnity plan.

NORRIS SEES TARIFF BOARD.

Considerable Progress Made Toward Revision of Tariff on Paper.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—John Norris, representing the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, conferred to-day with Chairman H. C. Emery and Alvin H. Sanders of the Tariff Board concerning the investigation preceding revision of the pulp wood and print paper schedule.

The Tariff Board has made more progress on the pulp and paper schedule than on any other. Chairman Emery has given it some personal attention, and an expert has been in the field for several weeks. Furthermore, the Tariff Board has a great deal of information at hand which was gathered by the Mann committee for Congress.

The Commissioner of Corporations made public to-day the August report of the American Paper and Pulp Association. It shows a substantial increase in production during the month and an increase of stocks of news paper on hand.

The month's production, 102,930 tons, represents the output of all the mills but one in the United States. The production for the first seven months of 1910 averages 88,000 tons, the largest ever reported to the Commissioner. The August production was 94 per cent. of the so-called normal.

Stocks on hand increased from 28,220 tons to 42,420, the largest total since September, 1909. A representative of the association, however, says the increase of stocks in August is largely by a few companies, and that it represents chiefly paper for specific customers.

MISSING SAILORS RETURN TO THE SHIP

Five Bluejackets Reported Lost from New Hampshire's Barge Are Safe—Drowned Now 24.

SERVICES HELD FOR THE DEAD

Naval Seaman from the Kansas Drowned While Attempting to Rescue a Woman.

The number of sailors reported by Capt. Thomas S. Rodgers of the battleship New Hampshire as being among those who it was feared had been drowned when the New Hampshire's sailing barge No. 2 was swamped in the Hudson River, off 157th Street, Saturday night, was reduced from 29 to 24 yesterday, when five of the missing men returned to the battleship.

Seven of the sailors who were reported by Capt. Rodgers as having overstayed their leave, some of whom, it was thought, might have been on the sailing barge unrecognized by their comrades, also showed up yesterday on the big fighter, leaving only five of those named in the absentee list still to be heard from.

Those reported missing from the sailing barge who returned aboard the New Hampshire yesterday are M. Blight, coal passer, Roxbury, Mass.; T. Bonsall, ordinary seaman, Philadelphia; J. Greene, oiler, Cleveland, Ohio; E. W. Sieber, ordinary seaman, Chicago, and E. J. Turner, seaman, East Liverpool, Ohio. Those among the absent and unaccounted for who turned up all right were A. R. Chambers of the marines, Worcester, Mass.; E. A. Herbert, ordinary seaman, Boluntown, Conn.; J. A. Segel, coal passer, Philadelphia; D. Mahoney, ordinary seaman, Wilmington, Del.; G. O. Thompson, fireman, Bloomingdale, Penn., and J. Van Peer, fireman, Paterson, N. J.

There is a hope on the New Hampshire that more of the twenty-four still missing from the sailing barge list may return to the ship.

Eugene Audit, a twenty-year-old seaman of the battleship Kansas, was drowned early yesterday morning in rescuing a woman from drowning off the pier at the foot of West 156th Street.

It was about an hour after midnight when a launch put off from the battleship Kansas, in which were three women, a young officer of the battleship, and the crew of the launch. Audit, who was known among his comrades as "Frenchy," was one of the crew. When the launch reached the pier one of the women in the boat lost her footing as she was stepping from the boat and fell into the water. Midshipman Blackburn, the officer in charge, and Audit sprang into the water after her. Blackburn got to the woman first, and swam with her to the pier, where they were pulled out by policemen.

Audit was carried away by the swift current though he was a good swimmer. Blackburn and the sailors made a search for Audit, but no trace of him was found. The sailor was said to have been one of the best seamen on the Kansas. His body had not been recovered last night.

On the Louisiana the board appointed by Rear Admiral Vreeland, commanding the second division of the fleet, to inquire into the causes of the swamping of the sailing barge Saturday night continued in session all day yesterday. The board expects to finish its inquiry today, and to-night its report will be forwarded to Rear Admiral Schroeder, the Commander in Chief.

No officer would say whether or not in his opinion a court-martial will be ordered. The impression, however, is that somebody will have to face such a court as soon as the Winterhalter board, named by Admiral Vreeland, files its report.

Midshipman Godfrey De C. Chevalier, who was in command of the launch that had the sailing barge in tow, was still in great mental distress yesterday. It was said that he may appear before the board to-day and tell what he knows about the sinking of the barge and the heroic work of rescue that followed.

On Board the New Hampshire yesterday afternoon Chaplain W. G. Cassard, U. S. N., held services in memory of the sailors who were drowned when the barge went down. There were officers and bluejackets present from each of the battleships now in New York. The services were impressive and lasted from 3 until 4 P. M.

An officer of the New Hampshire said that among the visitors to that battleship Sunday afternoon was a comely girl, a sister of E. F. Blomgren, a sailor, who is believed to have been drowned. She collapsed when told that her brother was among the missing.

The dragging of the river for the bodies of the drowned sailors continued yesterday, but late in the afternoon the police, who have the work in charge, said that no bodies had been recovered. They doubted if any would be until the end of the week, when they would rise to the surface.

Coroner Feinberg went on board the hospital ship Solace yesterday to arrange for the inquests after the bodies are recovered. While he was on that ship, he said afterward, a sailor fell overboard and was drowned. A sailor jumped over after him, but the first man had been carried under the Solace. The rescuing sailor was himself rescued by the police boat Patrol.

Most of the battleships will sail for their "home" yards on Friday, where they will be overhauled for the European cruise that is scheduled to begin in November.

IDENTIFY WOMAN SUICIDE.

Miss Howe Killed Herself Because of Unrequited Love.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 3.—The body of Miss Anna M. Howe, which was found floating in Rainbow Channel, near Somers Point, on last Friday, was claimed to-night by her brother, Frank Howe, manager of the Walnut Street and Garrick Theatres, Philadelphia. Identification of the body followed the discovery of articles of clothing belonging to the dead woman on a jetty at the end of Atlantic Avenue.

Two letters found in a handbag indicate that she ended her life because of unrequited love. She had been missing since Sept. 25 from a fashionable beachfront hotel where she had a room. Miss Howe had been separated from her family for more than two years, and was employed here as a milliner.

PLEADS FOR MORGANTHAU.

Counsel Asks Clemency on Smuggling Charge—Court Reserves Decision.

Judge Hand will announce to-morrow morning what punishment he will administer to Mengo L. Morganthau, President of the Mirror Candy Company, who tried to smuggle jewelry and wearing apparel worth $17,000 into the country when he arrived recently in the Cunard liner Mauretania. His counsel, W. Eickham Smith, who sometimes represents the Government and sometimes the defendant in smuggling cases, made a fervent plea for leniency, to which, however, Judge Hand did not appear to lend a very kindly ear.

After several well-known persons, among them Louis Marshall and Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, had testified to Morganthau's previous good character, Mr. Smith said his client could not be considered a smuggler, but merely one who had "yielded to the temptation of committing an infraction of the revenue laws." He was quite sure that a nominal fine was adequate, inasmuch as Morganthau would have to pay the Government upward of $10,000 in settling the financial end of his episode.

Judge Hand said he would take until to-morrow morning to look over the testimonials, and allowed Mr. Morganthau to withdraw his plea of guilty until that time, continuing his original bail.

SEIZE $10,000 IN OLD JEWELS.

Mrs. Forsch Says She Didn't Declare It Because Husband Bought It Years Ago

When Mrs. Henrietta Forsch of 31 West Eighty-sixth Street arrived here yesterday in the North German Lloyd liner Prinz Friedrich Welhelm with her daughters, Henrietta and Addie, they had in their trunks jewelry worth $10,000 which they did not declare. Mrs. Forsch told the Custom House Inspectors this had been presented to them by her husband, Ferdinand, who died some years ago. She said he bought most of the jewelry in Paris, but she could not tell whether he had paid duty on it.

Special Deputy Surveyor Smyth investigated, but was not satisfied that duty ever had been paid, so the jewels were seized, pending a further inquiry. It consisted of two pearl necklaces, two diamond barettes, an emerald and diamond brooch, two gold watches, three gold and pearl chains, and a chain with a diamond and pearl pendant. All of these, except the watches and one of the chains were purchased in Paris. If it cannot be shown that duty was paid on them by Forsch it may be called for now and a penalty inflicted.

Inspector Timothy Donahue found in the pockets of Wachyslaw Miliuski, a shoe dealer of 4,119 Montrose Avenue, Chicago, when he landed from the Deutschland yesterday undeclared jewelry valued at $100. He also had a fur coat, which he said he had bought in Chicago. The coat was held, pending investigation, and Miliuski was asked to explain why he had not declared the valuables. Mrs. Amelia Wilkowska, a passenger in the same ship, also had her baggage held for investigation, her declaration being badly made.

Customs Inspectors raided yesterday the store of Vincenzo Menella of 530 West Thirty-fourth Street. A quantity of sweaters and men's underwear was found there, which Menella admitted he had obtained from sailors. The customs officers also found knives and forks with the name of an Italian steamship line.

IMPORTS LOWER THIS YEAR.

Report Shows a Decrease, but Trade Is Normal, Says Appraiser.

The report of George W. Wanmaker, Appraiser of the Port, for September, issued yesterday, shows that the transactions of the office for the month aggregated $70,957,727, compared with $72,057,947, the corresponding month a year ago, and $59,166,034 in September, 1908. While last month's valuation of foreign merchandise shows a falling off of $1,100,220, compared with the same period last year, the appraiser regards the present volume of imports as an indication of the healthy condition of trade.

The appraised value of precious stones and pearls for the month of September is $3,038,737, as compared with $3,318,341 in September, 1909, and $1,912,402 in September, 1908.

Two hundred and twleve automobiles of the total appraised value of $685,086, were imported in September in comparison with 296 cars valued at $884,202 in September, 1909, and 290 cars valued at $687,354 in September, 1908. One thousand and eighty-nine cars have been imported at this port since January, valued at $2,686,803, as compared with 1,487 cars valued at $3,394,553, and 1,179 cars valued at $2,693,186, during the same period of 1909 and 1908, respectively.

LANCES LEOPARD'S THROAT.

Central Park Keeper Snyder Also Extracts Two Teeth and Clips Its Palate.

Armed only with an iron hook, and carrying a stout canvas bag under his left arm, Head Keeper Snyder entered the cage of the ten months' old leopard cub in the lion house of the Central Park menagerie yesterday to capture the animal, which has been sick for several months.

Snyder discovered yesterday that the animal's throat was swollen on either side, and while Assistant Keeper Hurton improvised an operating table in the zoo hospital, Snyder set about trapping the leopard.

When Snyder entered the cage the animal crouched back into a corner as Snyder opened the bag ready to pass over the leopard's head. With a spring the animal bounded toward Snyder, who caught its head in the opening. As the animal dropped to the floor he shook off the bag, and Snyder had to defend himself with the hook. He gave the leopard a jab when it approached, and as the animal retreated for another leap Snyder made ready for him.

This time Snyder drew the bag over the animal's body, and the task of capturing him was ended. He was carried to the hospital, his hind legs tied, and then he was fastened so he could not move.

After Snyder had lanced the swellings he trimmed the leopard's palate a trifle, and then extracted two molar teeth that had been troublesome. When the operation was over the leopard was put in a hospital cage to recover. He will be put on a diet of pigeons and other dainties until he has recovered.

Last June the leopard escaped from his cage by crawling up through the bars at the top, and several hundred women and children in the lion house were thrown into a panic. Snyder did not catch the animal until he had climbed over half a dozen cages.

ATLANTIC GARDEN CHANGES ITS WAYS

Famous Old Bowery Resort Turned Into a Yiddish Vaudeville Theatre.

FIRST OPENED IN 1858

Charles Eschert Stays as Leader of the Orchestra Until the Last, Then Breaks His Baton.

Dwellers of the Bowery paused and rubbed their eyes yesterday when they passed Atlantic Garden, for the front of the famous old resort, which has stood almost unchanged on its site just below Canal Street since before the civil war, was plastered over with billboards in Yiddish announcing a Hebrew variety programme.

The old Atlantic Garden that William Kramer established in 1858 is a thing of the past. Kramer died some time ago and his two sons are now in charge. "There is the sentimental side to it, of course," said William Kramer, Jr., yesterday, "but from a business standpoint there was nothing else to do. The German and Irish population that formerly supported us has moved far away from the Bowery, and we must adapt ourselves to the changed conditions."

The Atlantic Garden is a large hall which extends from 50 Bowery back to Elizabeth Street. In the front is a barroom and in the rear a concert hall with a stage, where vaudeville performances went on while the patrons ate and drank at the tables. In 1858, when it was first opened, it was in the centre of what was the popular section for the better class of Germans. To the east was the district where the Irish centred.

The new resort became very popular, and it was customary, particularly among the Germans, to take their families there in the evening and enjoy the music, which was a special feature, and the "variety"—which was at that time a conspicuous novelty. It was the only place of its kind, and gradually became famous. Owing to its proximity to the theatres of that time it was not without its patronage by well known people, for the Bowery was not then so far removed from the centre of things.

Mr. Kramer took advantage of the new form of entertainment at that time known as "variety" and the forerunner of the present vaudeville craze. One of the specialties was "teams" of negro performers. At that time negroes were none too plentiful in New York, and their appearance was looked on as something of a novelty. In 1884 Charles Eschert came to the Atlantic as musical director and brought with him the first "ladies' orchestra." He has been the leader there ever since, and the ladies' orchestra has been kept up.

In 1879 Mr. Kramer changed the Thalia Theatre, which he had come into control of several years previously, into a Yiddish playhouse. It was the general opinion along the Bowery that he was foolhardy, since there did not seem to them to be enough possible patronage for a theatre of that kind there. The Thalia adjoins Atlantic Garden. But the latter, after the heyday of its fame had passed, began to find itself deserted as its patrons moved away.

Of late years the proprietors have made concession to the march of events by adding moving pictures to their programme. But this was not enough to stem the tide, and William Kramer, Jr., and his brother, Albert, decided recently that the day of the Atlantic Garden, under its old policy, had passed.

Sunday night was the last under the old order of things. When the performance was over Charles Eschert broke the baton he had wielded twenty-six years there and gave the fragments to certain old patrons sitting nearby who had been informed of what was going to happen. A farewell dinner was held in the gallery, attended by the Kramer brothers, Eschert, the ladies' orchestra, and some of the old patrons.

Yesterday the resort was closed for the first time in fifty-two years, outside of regular closing hours, because of the fact that it was the first day of the Jewish holidays, so quickly did the place adapt itself to new conditions.

WIRELESS FOR 5,600 MILES.

Marconi Received Dispatches in Argentina from Nova Scotia.

A new long-distance record for wireless transmission was announced by the Marconi Wireless Telegraph Company yesterday. The officials of the company here were informed in a dispatch from London that Mr. Marconi, who is now in the Argentine Republic, had successfully received signals direct from Glace Bay, Nova Scotia, and from Clifden, Ireland, at the high power station now almost completed in the Argentine. The distance covered is estimated at 5,600 miles.

TAKE UP PECK'S CASE.

Columbia Trustees to Announce Their Decision To-day.

When the Trustees of Columbia University held their first meeting of the year in the library building on Morningside Heights yesterday it was expected that they would take some action on the case of Dr. Harry Thurston Peck, Professor of Greek, who was recently suspended after it became known that he was being sued for breach of promise by Miss Esther Quinn, a stenographer of Boston. After the meeting it was announced that the Trustees would issue a statement about the case this afternoon. Prof. Peck was at the university yesterday morning, but he could not be found later in the day.

Gifts were announced by the Trustees as follows: $2,500 from Marcellus Hartley Dodge, Alexander Smith Cochran, Clarence H. Mackay, and W. K. Vanderbilt, to the special maintenance fund; $1,300 from Mrs. Louis K. McClymonds for the Louis K. McClymonds scholarships, $1,000 from Homer E. Sargent, and $700 from Mrs. Villard for work the Department of Anthropology is carrying on in the Salish Tribes; $500 each from Mrs. Juilliard and Mrs. H. S. Redman for medical equipment.

The Trustees also announced the following appointments: Sir Frederic Pollock as Charpentier lecturer, 1911-12; Dr. Ferdinand Brunot, professor in the University of Paris as visiting French professor in 1910-11; Fred W. Withercil, B. S., 1900, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, as lecturer in civil engineering to give the work of Prof. Black, who is on leave of absence; Prof. J. F. McClelland, head of the Yale School of Mines, as lecturer in mining, to give the work of Profs. Munroe and Peele, who will be absent on leave; Lyman F. Wells, Ph. D., Lecturer in Psychology; Maurice Prevot, Associate in Architecture, vice W. A. Delano, who resigned because of ill health.

Broderick, Under Indictment, Wants Questioning Limited.

CHICAGO, Oct. 3.—State Senator John Broderick, who is accused by his colleague, Senator D. W. Holstlaw of Iuka, of paying him $2,500 which Holstlaw supposed was for voting for Lorimer for United States Senator, was called as a witness to-day before the Lorimer Investigating Committee. He did not testify because his counsel, Thomas Dawson, asked that the examination be confined to the main question of his client having promised or paid a bribe to Holstlaw or any other person and that he be not questioned specifically concerning the time and place of the alleged payment of the money to Holstlaw. The committee, after considering the request in executive session, announced that it would be decided to-morrow morning.

Broderick is under indictment and his counsel maintained that cross-examination would prejudice his case.

It is expected that Minority Leader Lee O'Neil Browne will appear before the committee to-morrow and the ruling to be announced on the Broderick request will probably be extended to his case, should he make a similar petition.

A number of witnesses were called by the defense to disprove statements made by Representative Charles A. White, the first witness to make charges of bribery.

William M. Rossell, Vice President of the International Association of Machinists, and for years a labor lobbyist at Springfield, Ill., told of a conversation he said he had had with Representative White in Chicago last Spring in which he said that White declared that he had not been treated right by the leaders and was "going to make them put him on easy street or make it hot for them."

Cashier Newton of the State Bank of Chicago testified that State Senator Holstlaw deposited $2,500 in the bank on June 16, 1909, which is the day Holstlaw alleges he received a bribe of that amount from State Senator John Broderick.

LEDERLE WANTS MORE MONEY

Health Commissioner Calls for Budget Increase of $1,332,975 for 1911.

Health Commissioner Lederle sent yesterday to the Board of Estimate a communication requesting an increase of $1,332,975 in the budget allowance of the Department of Health for 1911. In asking for an increase of $316,145 in the Division of Child Hygiene Dr. Lederle said:

"The increase requested includes provision for the employment of 266 nurses in addition to the present force of 142, and 49 medical inspectors in addition to the present force of 161, in order to admit of the physical examination of the children attending all the free schools of the city instead of, as at the present, the public schools only, and to continue throughout the year the instruction of mothers in the care of newly born infants instead of, as at the present, only during the Summer months."

An increase of $60,300 is asked for the Bureau of Milk Inspection. The largest increase asked for is for the Division of Hospitals. Dr. Lederle wants $487,796 additional to be able to provide "one hospital doctor to every forty patients, one day nurse to every ten patients, and one night nurse to every fifteen patients." The present appropriation makes allowance for only one doctor to every ninety patients, one day nurse to every sixteen patients, and one night nurse to every twenty-one patients.

Dr. Lederle also asks $96,311 additional for the municipal tuberculosis sanitarium at Otisville.

Arrest of the Rev. Mr. Tinel for Shoplifting Due to Mistake, Friends Say.

Believing that the arrest of the Rev. John Tinel in a Harlem five and ten cent store Saturday was due to a misunderstanding, and accepting his statement that he was selecting articles expecting to pay for them all at once, the Scandinavian Ministers' Association of New York and New Jersey issued this statement yesterday:

> We, members of the Scandinavian Ministers' Association of New York and New Jersey, are grieved to hear of the arrest of the Rev. John Tinel, Saturday last.
>
> We hereby certify that we know Mr. Tinel to be an honest, intelligent man, and minister of the Gospel, and also a member in good standing in our association.
>
> It is our firm belief that his arrest must be the result of a sad misunderstanding.

"We only learned of our brother's arrest through the press," said the Rev. A. E. Elmquist, President of the association. "We immediately called a meeting. It is the custom in Finland, from where Mr. Tinel came a year ago, as in other countries in Europe, to gather together a few articles one intends to purchase and then pay for them at once. We will stand by Mr. Tinel to the end."

TAXES PAID QUICKLY NOW.

Takes Only 5 Minutes to Get the Bill and 10 to Get It Receipted Under New System.

A new system for the collection of taxes was put into operation yesterday by Controller Prendergast, and except in Brooklyn practically no difficulty was met. In the Manhattan office, although the carpenters were at work all day setting up furniture and otherwise disturbing the office routine, the average time required to obtain bills was between three and five minutes.

The average time to pay taxes and obtain receipted bills was from ten to fifteen minutes, but this will be reduced to about five minutes as soon as the full physical equipment is installed. The time needed under the old system was more than an hour.

THE YEAR'S RECORD IN MORAL BENEFITS

Dr. Harris Draws a Lesson at Temple Israel on the Beginning of the Jewish New Year.

AGE CLEVER, BUT DISHONEST

Points to the Payne-Aldrich Tariff as an Example—Hope in Reform Legislation.

Speaking last night at Temple Israel, Lenox Avenue and 120th Street, on the occasion of the Jewish New Year's Eve, the Rev. Dr. Maurice H. Harris summed up the events of the last twelve months and balanced against each other the tendencies for good and evil. He declared that there is not enough light for passive equanimity, but enough for vigilance and hope.

He began by speaking of the advances in material things and referred to the aeroplane, wireless telegraphy, the advances in exact diagnosis of tuberculosis, and the discoveries of Ehrlich. Then he went on:

"Granted we can master Nature, can we master ourselves? A Haffkine can slay the microbe of the bubonic plague; can we slay the microbe of sin? Our watchman's ethical horoscope gives us a sadder picture of the year. Materially man advances by leaps and bounds; morally it is not certain that man is advancing at all."

Dr. Harris thus stated the indictment against the human race:

"In the affairs of nations, Japan seized Corea, which it originally planned to protect. It but follows the precedent of the so-called 'civilized' lands. Russia has crushed out the independence of Finland. It is breaking up Jewish homes and has exiled over 30,000 innocent people as part of its brutal Pan-Slavic crusade. The German Rip Van Winkle, Kaiser Wilhelm, talks of his 'divine right,' unaware that the world has moved since the days of Barbarossa.

"The United States is not expelling any of its old inhabitants like Russia, but it is not overhospitable to new settlers. The immigrant laws passed and the still severer immigrant laws threatened are making it annually harder for the refugee. The deported this year included more than the criminal and the diseased.

"The Payne-Aldrich programme shows that the tariff is instituted not for National revenue, nor for the protection of infant industry, nor to safeguard the working classes against foreign pauper labor. Many duties are imposed at the personal solicitation of powerful monopolies that our Congressmen have not the courage to withstand. Though foreign sugar costs less than 2½ cents a pound in New York, the Sugar Trust gets nearly 5 cents. Here is one of the explanations of our alarming higher prices.

"Need the duty on steel be so high when the Steel Trust owns all sources of supply and can undersell abroad at a profit? Is it not true that our wool duties are so excessive that the poor must wear shoddy? Why should the tax on such a necessity as blankets be 150 per cent.? Was not the cotton duty in the Dingley tariff high enough in all conscience that it should have been raised to more than 50 per cent.? Was not a recent critic therefore justified in declaring: 'This is not protection but plunder'?

"The year's story of our State Legislature has been largely a story of bribery. And our watchman, turning from State to municipal Government, sees Mayor Gaynor and his Cabinet cleaning Augean stables soiled by graft and corruption.

"The age is clever, but it is not honest. The Sugar Trust that obtained such high protective duties is the Sugar Trust that had trick scales. What wonder the year's record of adulterations, defalcations, and absconding clerks! Shall the employe be better than his master?

"If a Payne gives us a dishonest tariff, the traveler will dishonestly smuggle. American women of social standing have not hesitated this year to swear falsely before the customs officers, to train their daughters in duplicity and to craftily conceal pearls like a common thief on the highway. One hundred and six millionaires caught red-handed, with a State Governor in the lead!

"The climax of the year's record of dishonesty was reached when a bold adventurer tried to rob an arctic explorer of his discovery and was brazen enough to lie to all mankind.

"Actors play at marriage and railroad kings at divorce. Marauders did not hesitate to kill for sordid gain, and a Gallagher to shoot our Mayor in chagrin. The sanctity of life is lessened and the year's story of suicide shows men and women taking their lives as lightly as in the pagan days of Rome.

"Yes, the age is savage, and just as the masses gathered to witness gladiatorial combats in Nero's day, so twenty thousand gathered to witness the Jeffries-Johnson prizefight. The moralist in despair explains recent burglaries on the ground of 'a wave of crime.' Is that wave to overwhelm us—a second flood?"

Then the preacher took up the defense of mankind and said:

"Crime makes more noise than virtue. A murder is an event to be told in lurid colors, while a million souls respectable and responsible supply no copy for the press. This fact often gives us a false conception of life.

"If some men plot against their fellowmen for gain, others have entered into a conspiracy for their welfare. Not all our Congressmen are tarred by the same brush. Let us not forget Tom Johnson, who moved that the tax on steel rails be removed, though the motion was against his personal interest.

"Liberalism has made advance in the world. England no longer finds it necessary to cast a slur on Catholicism in administering the oath of allegiance to its King. If Russia is moving back the hand of time, Spain and Portugal are moving it forward. Ferrero, the radical, did not die in vain.

"The Rome that once confined the Jew to the Ghetto has now appointed a Jew, Nathan, as its Mayor. Once Jews were driven out of the Papal States. To-day Italy is celebrating the fortieth anniversary of the withdrawal of those States from the Pope's rule, and that same Jewish Mayor has become spokesman for the occasion.

"In the realm of economics we are also advancing. President Taft, a man of action rather than words, is clipping the wings of corporations. The Employers' Liability law is the beginning of responsibility for the workingman.

"Temperance is spreading in the United States; drunkenness is declining in England. The emancipation of woman has progressed a step further. She is beginning to take her fate in her own hands. Where man has failed in grappling with the social evil, woman may possibly succeed.

"The rights of the child are being more tenderly considered than ever before. Child labor legislation has made great strides. Rescues are being made of victimized youth from glass factories and cotton plantations. Juvenile courts are growing and the probation system is developing into a permanent function of our social organism. The note of greatest promise this year is the discovery that child blindness is largely preventable. Here the impelling motive of science is love."

So Dr. Harris held the balance and declared:

"Yes, the dawn cometh as well as the night. Take good and bad together, our energy in the year before us may yet turn the scale in the conflict between Ormuzd and Ahriman, between light and darkness. Not enough light for passive equanimity, but enough for vigilance and hope."

ESTATE GONE IN FEES.

Lawyer Cowen Accused of Having Absorbed It in Big Charges.

"If these charges are true I ought to be disbarred," cried Sidney J. Cowen, an attorney, in the Supreme Court before Justice McCall yesterday in reply to attacks by Harry W. Mack, attorney for the State Lunacy Commission, and Gilbert H. Montague, special guardian of Mary Ann Dunn, an inmate of the Hudson River Hospital.

"If they are not true these men should be compelled to make a public apology," he continued. He held up his accountings as committee of Mrs. Dunn's estate and said:

"Here are my accountings, all approved by the Standing Referee of the Appellate Division and confirmed by the courts," and he let them fall on the counsel table.

Cowen had appeared to argue for the signing of an order which would empower him to take $6,250 out of the estate on claims. According to Special Guardian Montague the whole estate does not amount to more than $6,500 or $7,000 at the present time, while Mr. Mack asserted that the estate had dwindled from $12,000 to that amount under Mr. Cowen's management.

Mr. Montague told Justice McCall that Mrs. Dunn was pronounced an incompetent in 1881 and Cowen was appointed the committee of her estate. In 1883, after an intermediate accounting of the estate, he obtained a court order which allowed him $10 a month above his commissions. The Appellate Division in 1904 ordered that Cowen's allowance to himself and attorneys in litigation concerning the estate be cut and that from the remainder be subtracted the special allowance of $10 a month he had received from the estate. The Appellate Division in the same order directed that the estate be partitioned.

It was charged that $5,500 of the estate had gone in extravagant charges by counsel. Mrs. Dunn's board and lodging at the Hudson River Hospital had cost $30 a month up to 1908, and since that time, Cowen had devoted but 50 cents a day to the woman's support there.

GET THIEF AFTER TWO YEARS.

Youth Who Stole $28,750 in Gems in 1908 Arrested as He Left the Steamer.

Louis Fieldhammer, 20 years old, an Austrian diamond cutter, who confessed that he stole $28,750 worth of fine stones from Clara and Jacques Halman of 561 Broadway, Brooklyn, and who was indicted by the Kings County Grand Jury in October, 1908, was arrested on Sunday night, two hours after he had arrived from Vienna. Magistrate Freschi, in Harlem Court, ordered him turned over to the Brooklyn police to await trial.

The youth did not deny the theft, and declared he had come here to make restitution. When arrested he had only 25 cents, and when he was asked how he got into the country without being held up at Ellis Island, he swore he had been robbed on shipboard.

Detective Meyers, who arrested Fieldhammer, said the loss of the diamonds threw Halman into bankruptcy, and that he now is working as a diamond cutter in Vienna.

Fieldhammer, who had been employed by Halman in his jewelry store, disappeared on Oct. 29, 1908, taking the diamonds with him. Soon a letter came from Austria from Fieldhammer, inclosing six pawn tickets representing $1,500 worth of the diamonds, and advising Halman that he would return and make good the gems he stole. Subsequent letters showed that he would reach here yesterday. Detective Meyers saw him as he left the boat and followed him to Manhattan, where he arrested him.

RUSSELL GIRL HOME AGAIN.

Father, Who Asked Police to Look for Her, Says She Is Safe.

Within two hours after the police had issued yesterday a general alarm for Maud Russell, 18 years old, she returned to her home, in Blue Point, L. I. Russell telephoned to the Detective Bureau after midnight, stating that his daughter had left home Saturday night to go to a theatre in Manhattan. He said he had received a telephone message saying that she would be home at 10:30, but she had failed to appear all day Sunday.

A general alarm was sent to all precincts, but two hours later Russell again telephoned that his daughter had returned home. He did not say where she had been.

Homestake Cave-In Not Serious.

It is officially stated that the recent cave-in at the Homestake Mine, at Lead, S. D., took place in one of its small stopes on an upper level connecting with an old shaft sunk by the original locators of one of its mining claims, that it is a quarter of a mile from the mills, and amounts to nothing. No one was hurt, and the cost of repairs will be trifling.

ARTISTS WELCOME FORNARO FROM JAIL

Friends Greet Him Warmly on His Release After Eight Months on Blackwell's Island.

SENTENCED FOR A LIBEL

Says He Will Write Two Books Expressly to Bring About Some Prison Reforms.

When the steward of the National Arts Club got orders to prepare a luncheon yesterday, given by Vagabonds in honor of a released convict, his astonishment knew no bounds. Still, he did his duty, and the luncheon went off as announced, Gramercy Park, within whose precincts the club stands, losing none of its dignity.

There was a prelude to the luncheon when J. T. Kelley took a ferryboat to Blackwell's Island early in the morning and waited at the gates for the release of Carlo de Fornaro, which occurred at 9 o'clock. When the ferryboat bearing the released artist reached Manhattan, Fornaro was greeted by Leonard Abbott of Current Literature and other friends and was hustled off to the luncheon given in his honor at the Arts Club by the Vagabond Club.

This is the first of a series of functions to be given in honor of the man who was convicted of criminal libel and sentenced to the Island for one year as a result of the publication of his book, "Diaz the Czar of Mexico." On account of good behavior his sentence was commuted to eight months.

Last night in a prominent artist's studio a dinner was given for him, and to-night at Joel's, 206 West Forty-first Street, many of his friends will gather at another informal dinner to give an idea of how Fornaro stands in their estimation.

About thirty members of the Vagabond Club gathered at the luncheon yesterday, and when P. J. Wheeler, editor of Current Literature, rapped for order and introduced Fornaro there was great applause.

"We never can tell when another of us may have to go to Blackwell's Island," said Mr. Wheeler, "and we want you to tell us what it is like."

Fornaro indicated very soon that his visit to the prison he considered as precious for literary material as his sojourn in Mexico, and he told a TIMES reporter that he would set to work immediately on two books, both intended to bring about prison reform. The first of these will be a work of fiction, the second a pamphlet. Fornaro will also continue his work as a cartoonist, and a new edition of "Diaz, Czar of Mexico," is to be issued, illustrated with cartoons. It is probable, however, that the libelous passages in the first book which resulted in Rafael Espindola coming to New York for the purpose of bringing a suit will be omitted.

"It is very nice to be able to be a respectable man once more and not have to wear stripes," said Fornaro at the luncheon. "They say a man makes the bed he sleeps in. Well, in this case I took a risk with my eyes open. I didn't think I'd get a year, but I expected to be jailed for a week or so. Some thought I didn't know perhaps the meaning of some of the English words I used. I knew very well. You see, I had been in Mexico for a long time, and had studied that country from the inside.

"At one time I tried for six months to get into a jail, but the Governor wouldn't let me. He finally admitted to me that the place was in such a condition that he couldn't let me see it. I asked him why he couldn't get it changed, and he said it was impossible. Gradually I came across other things, and, being a newspaper man, I realized that I had run into the biggest story of the day. But as I began to acquire knowledge I also realized my danger, and left.

"While I was in the North working on my book I had offers to return to Mexico at my own price, but these I refused. Under the circumstances I preferred staying here.

"When I had finished the book I showed it to a lawyer, and he said: 'It's libelous. Are you sure of your facts?' I was, and so I published the book and sent it to all the big officials in America and Mexico. Then things began happening. When I heard that Espindola was coming to New York I knew that he had been sent for me.

"I was convicted. The evidence from Mexico naturally was all against me. I knew I would be in for a while, but I couldn't understand the year. Several thousand miles away I wrote a book about a man in English, and he couldn't read English. There was an opportunity for me to be pardoned, but I didn't want a pardon. It would have seemed as if I had got favor at the hands of what I was attacking. I would have been guilty then.

"Besides, I wanted to stay in prison to get more experience, and I'm glad that I did now. I talked with pickpockets, safe blowers, and what not who have been in prisons all over America, and I shall have a great deal to say about the system. It's better here than anywhere else, probably. The treatment here, in fact, is excellent, and the food good enough. The Warden does all he can, and yet I believe the system is all wrong. And I am going to devote a good many years of my life to trying to help matters. A nation is judged by its schools and its prisons, and a prison is often a training school for crime."

A New Comic Masterpiece by

O. HENRY

This is the last bit of inimitable humor which O. Henry put his hand to. He was able to see the ridiculous side to his own ill-fated search for health, and you will chuckle and laugh aloud over his genuine fun-making. It has all the old humor, broad and subtle, and it is touched with pathos and fun.

GIMBELS---A Piano Store That Can Be Relied Upon

We devote more than one-half of our eighth floor to a Piano Store that we intend shall be famous. And whether or not we succeed in making it famous it shall at least be safe.

In this Piano Store we shall make no effort to show how cheaply a piano can be built. The meanest form of worthlessness we know is a worthless piano. In pianos, as in all other goods, we shall handle only lines that we know will give lasting satisfaction---therefore, the too-cheap piano is barred from our stocks.

We shall, however, have some really good pianos at prices as low as good pianos ever sold---perhaps at prices lower than good pianos have ever before been marked.

We shall have several famous makes of pianos that command and deserve the highest prices that should, in fairness and common sense, be asked.

We shall have a remarkable line of Player-Pianos representing various approved playing devices for the customer's choice.

And, on all, an unwavering policy: The same price to everybody and that price the lowest that is asked.

WILL NOT ABANDON GRAND PRIZE RACE

Conference of Officials Held at Garden City Results in Changes in Plans.

RACE WILL START AT 10 A. M.

Motor Parkway Course on Long Island to be Improved for Event, Which Will Be Held on Oct. 15.

The Grand Prize race for automobiles will be held this year over the Vanderbilt Cup course, and no proposition to hold it elsewhere will be considered. The plan to abandon it has been dropped, and despite the accidents of last Saturday incident to the Vanderbilt Cup event, the contest will be held over the motor parkway and the same county roads over which the Vanderbilt Cup race was held.

To eliminate a part of the crowd and some of the conditions which made for danger the race will not be started until 10 o'clock in the morning of Oct. 15. Thus the all-night vigil, the rush through the early hours to the course, and the staying up all night prior to the race will be cut out. When the Vanderbilt race was run last year during the middle of the day the rush of automobiles did not begin until daylight, when the drivers could see where they were going. There was no great crowd at any point of the course, and the percentage of persons who had been indulging in liquor while waiting for the race was small.

On the trains to the course in the early morning hours there has been considerable drinking, following more or less drinking during the wait at the course, and as a result there were many unruly and unreasoning men and boys at the track. Last year this element was largely eliminated. The race was not so popular and it did not bring so much money into Nassau County, but it brought some, and there were fewer objectionable persons present, and the element of danger was not great.

The Board of Supervisors of Nassau county met yesterday afternoon and talked the matter over. A. R. Pardington appeared before them as the representative and manager of the races. He asked that no hasty action be taken. It was decided there should be a conference between the officials of the county and the representatives of the Motor Cups Holding Company. Mr. Pardington was informed that unless his company would be able to give the Supervisors a guarantee that there would not be a repetition of the disasters of Saturday last he need not expect to go ahead with the second race. It was expected that Supervisor Painter of Oyster Bay would make a motion that the consent of the Board for the race be recalled, but he did not do so. Later he explained that he understood that in case the consent was recalled the county could be sued for damages, as the consent was in effect a franchise which had involved the spending of money in the preparations for the event.

The conference of the officials and the Executive Committee of the Motor Cups Holding Company, took place at the Garden City Hotel and lasted most of the afternoon. The county was represented by Supervisors Smith Cox, Philip A. Christ and C. C. Painter, District Attorney Coles and Sheriff Joseph H. Foster. Those representing the Motor Cups Holding Company were A. R. Pardington, William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., Colgate Hoyt and H. F. Anderson.

The following statement was issued yesterday from the office of the Motor Cups Holding Company, by A. R. Pardington:

"In view of the difficulties involved in policing the course and the many conditions which attend a daybreak start, it was decided at a meeting held to-day at Mineola, L. I., at which were present the District Attorney, the Board of Supervisors of Nassau County, and the Executive Committee of the Motor Cups Holding Company, to start the Grand Prize race at 10 o'clock in the morning instead of at daybreak, Saturday morning, Oct. 15.

"In view of the protests of certain persons against the holding of the Grand Prize race, the contestants and entrants in that race were requested to forego practice on Tuesday morning, Oct. 4."

The above statement sets at rest all doubt as to the holding of that race. Morning practice will begin to-morrow at 5 o'clock and continue until 8 o'clock each morning except Sunday, Oct. 9. All entrants and contestants must be provided with the regular radiator plates, such as were used in the Vanderbilt Cup race practice. These Grand Prize plates are white with blue letters, to differentiate them from the Vanderbilt Cup race tags. Contestants will find flagmen at numerous points and at all turns around the course. Work on repairing the roads has already begun, and the long drought and the recent race have made it necessary to repair the entire stretch of the country roads. The roads are to be entirely broken up, rerolled, and oiled.

That the Benz drivers who took part in the Vanderbilt Cup race are highly incensed over the inadequate policing of the course is shown by the following statement issued yesterday by the Benz Company:

Referring to your inquiry as to what our disposition is regarding the Grand Prize race, permit me to say that when we entered our three Benz cars for the Vanderbilt and Grand Prize races I was led to believe that the course would be patrolled by a sufficient number of Pinkerton policemen to properly protect the public and our drivers. This assurance from the management impressed me so favorably that I did not carry any insurance on any of the drivers or mechanics for personal injury. Unless I am absolutely assured that the course will be properly guarded in a way that the races are guarded in Europe, as well as the way the public has been protected at Savannah, Lowell, Philadelphia, and Elgin, I positively will not permit our cars to start in the Grand Prize race scheduled for Oct. 15. I, as well as the other contestants in this race, are furnishing the entertainment to the public, and instead of being paid for it we are paying $1,000 a car each in entrance fees, and in return receive absolutely no protection for our drivers and mechanics. We paid our entrance fee with the distinct understanding that we were to be safely guarded and protected. This has not been done, and unless the Motor Cups Holding Company can protect the public as well as the drivers, I for one positively will refuse to permit our cars to run in the Grand Prize race.

From our experience in racing, the Savannah race for the Grand Prize, held in November, 1908, was the best-managed contest ever held in the country, and I advise all contestants for the Grand Prize race to co-operate and send this race to Savannah, where it is managed strictly for the sport, and not to see how successful the race can be made financially."

The monthly meeting of the Automobile Club of America will be held this afternoon and it takes on added interest because it is said the board will discuss the Vanderbilt race and, some of the members are very likely to have something to say about the club's sanction of the coming Grand Prize race over the same course. As it is an international meet, the sanction came from this club, and the outcome of last Saturday's race has excited so much comment that the topic is sure to arouse some discussion at to-day's meeting.

SAVANNAH ASKS FOR RACE.

Committee May Come Here to Request Transfer from Long Island.

Special to The New York Times.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Oct. 3.—Arthur W. Solomon, Secretary of the Savannah Automobile Club, encouraged in his efforts to get the great international race transferred from the Motor Parkway course by the general condemnation of the course following the many casualties of the Vanderbilt race Saturday, has taken the question up with W. K. Vanderbilt, Chairman of the Motor Cup Holding Company, under whose direct supervision the race is to be held. No answer has yet been received to Mr. Solomon's suggestion to Robert Lee Morrell, Chairman of the Contest Board of the Automobile Club of America, that the race be transferred to Savannah.

Telegrams from New York show that the feelings of the drivers are being expressed in no uncertain terms over the guarding of the Long Island course, and that some of them have already refused to compete unless a remedy, which it is not believed can be applied, is found to give them and the spectators safety of life and limb during the running of the race. There are but seven makes of cars represented in the entries for the race on Oct. 15, and a majority of the drivers of the fourteen cars have competed on the Savannah course, and have had an opportunity to compare it with the course where so many accidents happened on Saturday.

The Savannah Automobile Club held an enthusiastic meeting to-night, at which time it was decided to officially ask for the transfer of the Grand Prize race from New York to Savannah, the club to guarantee the condition of the course and proper military control and suggesting that a committee be prepared to go to New York and make final arrangements and discuss details, if the proposition is considered. Telegrams to this effect were forwarded to A. R. Pardington of the Motor Cup Holding Company, under the auspices of which the race will be held, and Charles E. Fosdyck, Secretary of the Automobile Club of America, the sanction of which is necessary to the holding of the race.

It was agreed that the course can be got ready for practice by Nov. 1. It is the consensus of opinion that the races had better be held on some day other than Thanksgiving Day, but near that date. The matter of getting the course in condition was discussed fully, and it was agreed that there is very little work necessary to be done. Time will be needed, however, in which to erect a grand stand, work on which will be begun just as soon as it is determined to hold the races in Savannah.

A committee will go to New York to talk over the situation just as quickly as it is indicated that there is a probability of securing the race.

"KNOCKOUT" BROWN WINS.

Left-Hand Blows to Body Vanquish "Fighting" Joe Hyland.

"Knockout" Brown, through his ability to deliver his one best punch, which is a hard left to the body, completely outclassed "Fighting" Joe Hyland for ten rounds last night at the Olympic A. C. Brown's best asset is his trusty left, and if he is successful in getting it home often is always sure to defeat his opponent, and in last night's contest he mastered the blow, to perfection, it never once missing its mark.

The bout was a one-sided affair after the second round, as Hyland took an awful beating despite the fact that Brown was unable to dispose of him.

Hyland displayed exceeding gameness in staying through the contest, and occasionally made a rally that was only short-lived, but brought the favor of the crowd when he did so. He repeatedly led off, but would draw back when he should have continued, and failed to land, while Brown would wade right in and pound away at his body with both hands. Brown had the upper hand in each of the ten rounds, but in the eighth and tenth rounds Hyland came back fairly strong and caused him to extend himself a trifle more than in the other rounds.

While in close quarters in Brown's corner the latter slipped to the floor, and as he arose Hyland made a wild rush at him and struck him a left hand blow on the head before he had fully recovered himself. This infuriated Brown, and he sailed in wildly, landing with both hands on Hyland's body, forcing him to cover up, and finally brought the blood from his mouth. Not forgetting the incident of the last round, Brown came out of his corner set with revenge and steadily got over the left to the body that at times could be heard all through the clubhouse, and before the bell sounded Hyland was in bad shape and almost out when the gong did sound.

Hyland stood up gamely under the terrific assault, refusing to be stopped, and after a hard right hand smash that he received in the sixth round his eye puffed out.

At the opening of the eighth round the boys went to close quarters, and in an exceedingly fast mix-up exchanged and landed on each other's body in great style, but before the round ended Hyland slowed up and Brown continued to shoot his left to the body and had Hyland holding on at the sound of the bell.

Brown did all the work in the ninth and dealt out a hard beating to Hyland, but he managed to last to the bell, and after the short rest came back strong and fought hard in the last round. He staggered Brown twice during this period with hard lefts on the head, and also held his own in the mix-up that followed, but the best that could be said of his work in this round would be a draw. Both boys were tired at the final bell, Brown from the constant work while Hyland was equally tired from the body punishment.

HOPPE WINS EASILY.

Defeats Morningstar in First Game of Series by Score of 400 to 137.

Willie Hoppe, holder of the world's championship at 18.1 balk line billiards, had no trouble defeating Ora Morningstar at this style of play at Daly's academy last night. The score was 400 to 137. They will meet every night this week, playing 400 points each night, in a match of 2,400 points for a side bet, a purse hung up by Mr. Daly, and the entire gate receipts, which will be divided 75 per cent. to the winner and 25 per cent. to the loser.

The champion played steady but not spectacular billiards at all stages last evening. His control of both the cue and object balls was little short of perfect, and his fine position play made it possible for him to run up some high scores without being forced to execute difficult shots. He resorted continually to two and three cushion shots in his position play, and was quite successful. Morningstar showed several flashes of brilliancy, but found much difficulty in controlling the ivories, and was continually putting himself in difficult positions.

Hoppe won the break and started off with a run of 29. He followed up with 18, and at the end of the second inning was leading, 47 to 14. A run of 13 against Hoppe's 2 in the third inning allowed Morningstar to come within 21 of the champion, and he jumped ahead in the fourth inning with his best run of the evening, 38. From this stage to the end of the night's play the game was a procession for Hoppe, who made high runs of 71, 58, and 50, and ran out in the twentieth inning with an unfinished run of 5. Hoppe's average for the first night's play was 19 1-21. The score by innings:

Hoppe—29 18 2 7 58 0 1 0 6 0 37 0 2 50 71 13 26 0 29 46 5. Total—400. Average, 19 1-21; high runs, 71, 58, 50.

Morningstar—5 9 13 38 9 14 0 0 5 0 0 1 2 0 0 5 12 20 0 4. Total—137. Average, 6 17-20; high runs, 38, 20, 14.

Time of game—One hour and forty-five minutes. Umpires—Messrs. O'Loughlin and Dineen.

Walter Johnson pitched up to his usual form in yesterday's clash between the Senators and the Yanks on the Hilltop and the answer is a long row of blanks for Chase's boys. McAleer's crowd turned in a quartet of counts in the fifth and sixth innings, and these proved enough to salt the game away without any trouble. Manager Chase was out of the game as the result of an injury to his finger Saturday, and Wolter held down Hal's position in proper style.

The Yanks put up a hard fight up to the seventh inning, but it was entirely a defensive fight, as they were never able to become familiar enough with Johnson's offerings to appear very dangerous. The big Senator had his benders behaving beautifully and the straight ones all carried the sizzle which has made Johnson so respected by opposing batsmen. Only two Yankees had the pleasure of digging their spikes into third base during the afternoon, and on each occasion the runner moved up from second on an error. In each of the first five innings one Hilltopper saw first base and then things became very quiet until the ninth inning, when two more got on the paths. Johnson did not fan as many batsmen as usual, but he was always in the limelight as the big noise of the battle.

Manager Chase, who directed the team from the bench and coaching lines, used three twirlers in the attempt to hold down the Senators. Jim Vaughn was first choice, and he went along finely for five innings in spite of the fact that the Senators were in position to score in each frame. Errors and wildness were mainly responsible, as Vaughn allowed only two hits during this time. In the sixth inning, with one out and a runner on first base as the result of a scratch single, Vaughn made a poor throw to first base, which allowed Schaefer to reach third base, and he followed with a wild pitch which sent in the first run of the game. This cost Vaughn his assignment. Laporte went to bat in his place in the sixth inning and Caldwell was sent to the mound in the following frame.

Caldwell didn't last long enough to get his name on the big board in centre field. The first batsman to face him walloped out a sharp single, the next fanned, and, after the third had hit to Caldwell and drawn a throw to the wrong place, Manager Chase used the derrick. Caldwell carelessly pegged the ball to the box as he walked off the field, and both Ainsmith and Lelivelt moved up a base each, only to be chased back a moment later by Umpire O'Loughlin. Tom Hughes finished the engagement, and it was during his term that the Senators put the game in their grip. Tom helped along in his first inning with a poor throw and a pass, and then Cunningham reached him for a long triple, which started many of the fans on their way to dinner.

Some stellar grabbing by McAleer's infielders helped Johnson on two or three occasions when the Yankees threatened to cut loose. In the third inning McBride made a stop of Hemphill's hard liner as it caromed off Elberfeld's shins and kept the Yankee outfielder out of the hit column. In the fourth inning Summerlott raced half way to second base and knocked down a fine bid for a hit by Knight, getting Jack at first base, with Johnson covering the sack. Summerlott also made a gloved-hand catch of a high foul from Blair's bat in the third inning after sprinting all the way to the New York bench.

A single, a steal, and an infield out put Elberfeld on third base in the opening inning, but he was left. Schaefer opened the second inning with a single and McBride sacrificed, but "Germany" was also marooned. In the third inning Milan, after being hit on the hand by a pitched ball, retired in favor of Lelivelt, and the latter immediately stole second base, continuing on to third, when Blair's throw rolled to the outfield. Cunningham walked and a double steal was attempted. Knight's return throw got Lelivelt at the plate. Knight's error and two infield outs put Summerlott on third base in the fourth inning, and Vaughn fanned Ralston. Vaughn passed Lelivelt and hit Elberfeld in the fifth inning, but two were out when the generosity developed and it did not prove costly.

The scoring began in the sixth inning. Schaefer bounded a hot one off Gardner's shins for a hit and raced around to third base when Vaughn threw over Wolter's head in an attempt to catch him napping. A wild pitch sent in the run. In the sixth inning Ainsmith hit safely off Caldwell, Johnson struck out, and Lelivelt hit to Caldwell, who threw to second base too late to get Ainsmith. Hughes came in and after filling the corners by passing Elberfeld he threw low to second base, and each runner advanced. Cunningham planted a triple in left centre field, which drove Lelivelt and Elberfeld home. Hughes fanned three successive batsmen in the eighth inning after McBride had opened with a single and had stolen second base.

Wolter reached third base in the first inning on his double to left field and Milan's error, and Daniels did the same trick in the third on a pass, a steal, and Ainsmith's poor throw. No other Yankee got as far as second base up to the ninth inning. In the closing chapter Mitchell, batting for Hughes, hit safely and Daniels walked. It looked like a rally, but Hemphill popped to Summerlott and Wolter lined to Elberfeld, who threw to Cunningham, doubling Mitchell.

CHANCE PROUD OF CUBS.

Able to Overcome All Obstacles and Win National League Pennant.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Oct. 3.—After playing the game which gave the championship of the National League to the Cubs yesterday, Manager Frank L. Chance reviewed his troubles of the last few weeks.

"I am prouder of the Cubs than I ever have been in my life," he said. "They have beaten all records for overcoming obstacles. Never in the history of baseball did a team win out under such a heavy handicap of sickness and injuries.

"Our regular team has been available only at infrequent intervals. But the utility men have more than done their duty. But for Archer, Zimmerman, Kane, and Beaumont we would not be celebrating. I am proud of every one of them, and I would not trade my substitutes for the regulars on any other club.

"While the injury to Johnny Evers is a blow, we have been receiving similar blows all year, and we can't quit and give up hope of landing the world's championship just because he is out. Zimmerman will play second base in the big series, and, mark my words, he will acquit himself well."

Benefit Game for Fred Buelow.

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 3.—The Detroit American League team this afternoon defeated a team composed of league ballplayers making this city their home, by the score of 10 to 3. The contest was for the benefit of Fred Buelow, the former major league catcher, who will devote the proceeds toward medical attendance at the hands of a Chicago specialist. Upward of $1,000 was realized. Score by innings:

Yale's Call for Crew Candidates.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 3.—Candidates for the crew were called to-night at a meeting in Yale gymnasium. The response indicated that the interest in athletics has taken a boom, coincident with the completion of the new university boathouse. Considerable of last year's material will be available for the 'Varsity squad. Several new shells were received to-day.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 3.—It required ten innings for the Giants to defeat the Doves to-day, but they did it, with the aid of three pitchers. The local players hit Wiltse rather freely, and Ames displaced him in the fifth inning, only to give way to Crandall in the eighth. Score, 4 to 3.

Two batsmen were out in the tenth inning when Wilson doubled to left field, and Crandall followed with a single, on which the former crossed the plate. Devore, not to be outdone, also hit safely, but Doyle popped to Shean.

The Doves began on Wiltse early, scoring twice in the initial inning. Collins walked, Goode hit to Wiltse, who threw poorly, and both men were safe. Shean then sacrificed, Devlin to Merkle, and Beck's single to right field brought in both men.

The Giants came near scoring in the second inning, but Goode's great catch retired Murray. Bridwell walked, and reached second base when Devlin tapped a lucky hit past Sweeney. Both worked a double steal on Merkle's third strike. Wilson flied to Shean and the side was retired.

Sweeney scored for Boston in the fourth inning, starting with a single to right field. He then stole second base. Burg got a hit which Wiltse and Merkle let fall between them, and Sweeney ran home.

The Giants' first run came in the fifth inning. Up to this time they had not gauged Brown's delivery properly, and they did not do it this time. Merkle and Becker, the latter batting for Wiltse, were passed, and Devore bunted, filling the bases when Raridan's throw was too late to get Merkle at third base. Doyle forced Devore, Shean to Sweeney, Merkle scoring. Collins's great catch off Snodgrass prevented further trouble.

The score continued 3 to 1 in Boston's favor until the eighth inning, when both Snodgrass and Murray cracked out two-baggers, the former scoring. Bridwell sacrificed, and Brown's throw failed to get Murray at third base. Devlin then scored Murray with a fine drive to right field.

After this the Doves did no batting, Crandall being more of a puzzle than either of his predecessors, while the Giants fell before Brown until the eventful tenth inning.

Zimmerman's Record Drives.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Oct. 3.—Zimmerman performed a feat during the game between Cincinnati and Chicago to-day that never has been equalled in the local league park grounds. He knocked two balls over the left field fence for home runs. Previous to to-day there had never been a ball put over the fence during a game on these grounds. There were several such hits before the present grounds were reconstructed. He scored all three runs secured by the visitors. The score was 5 to 3 with Cincinnati as the winner. Score:

GIANTS AND YANKS' GAMES.

First of Manhattan Series to be Played at Polo Grounds Oct. 13.

At a conference between Presidents Frank J. Farrell and John T. Brush of the New York American and National League Clubs last night the dates for the first three games between the New York teams for the championship of Manhattan were decided on. The first game will be played at the Polo Grounds on Thursday, Oct. 13; the second at American League Park on Friday, Oct. 14, and the third at the Polo Grounds on Saturday, Oct. 15. These dates have been submitted to the National Commission for its approval.

The New York magnates are willing to let their teams be idle on Monday, Oct. 17, which is the date selected for the first battle between the Philadelphia Americans and the Chicago Nationals for the world's title. The series here will end when one team has won four games. There will be no increase in the regular prices. The National Commission will select the business representatives and the umpires.

The National Commission, in session at Cincinnati yesterday, selected Umpires Klem of the National League and Mr. Evans of the American League to officiate in the New York games. Hugh McBreen of Boston for the American League and William Locke of Pittsburg for the National League were chosen business representatives.

AMATEUR BOXERS IN RING.

Metropolitan A. A. U. Champions Best in Garden Bouts.

Boxing bouts of the slam-bang style were in the order of things last night at the amateur series held by the Madison Square Athletic Club in the concert hall of Madison Square Garden. Several champions turned out and worked their way into the semi-final round.

There were knockouts a-plenty, with science a secondary consideration in most of the bouts. Barry Hill and W. Adams, respectively the 105-pound and 135-pound metropolitan champions, put their opponents to sleep in short order. J. J. Reiss and Mike Asellta, both of the New West Side A. C., showed to advantage in the middleweight class, each putting his man out.

John F. Macklin, St. Peter's C. L. A., and Lawrence Dwyer, Knights of St. Anthony, scored knockouts in the 125-pound class.

The bantams were the first to do business, with the result that in this class of the four bouts decided two resulted in practical knockouts. Frank Gass of the Grace A. C. gave John Cleary, St. Gabriel's A. C., a drubbing in two rounds, and the referee stopped the bout, to the apparent satisfaction of the latter.

There was plenty of action in the middleweight class. Mike Ascelta, N. W. S. A. C., was the first to get busy to the end of puting his man out. The result that Joe Williams, Madison Square A. C., had all he could do to get through the ropes back to the dressing room. Jack De Maro of the Carroll Social Club, Brooklyn, gave Oscar Anderson, Swedish-American A. C., an awful "doing," putting him out practically twice before the referee ended hostilities.

The fereree, Tim Hurst, gave the spectators a run for their money by making some of the boys "go through" once they had started, and only stopping some of the bouts when it was apparent that the ultimate loser was outclassed.

PLANS FOR WORLD'S BASEBALL SERIES

Philadelphians to See First Game with Chicago Cubs on Oct. 17.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Oct. 3.—A toss of a coin to-day decided at the meeting of the National Baseball Commission that the first game of the world's baseball championship between the Philadelphia Athletics, champions of the American League, and the Chicago Cubs, champions of the National League, would be played in Philadelphia. A few moments later the Supreme Court of Baseball announced that the contests would begin at 2 P. M. on Monday, Oct. 17.

It has always been a superstition among baseball followers that the team winning the toss for the first game loses the series. For this reason President Murphy of Chicago was not much downcast when President Ben Shibe of Philadelphia called the turn of a half dollar to-day. The series will be played off according to the following schedule:

First game—Monday, Oct. 17, at Philadelphia.

Second game—Tuesday, Oct. 18, at Philadelphia.

Wednesday, Oct. 19, train trip from Philadelphia to Chicago.

Third game—Thursday, Oct. 20, at Chicago.

Fourth game—Friday, Oct. 21, at Chicago.

In case other games are required to settle the supremacy, a fifth game will be played Saturday, Oct. 22, after a fast run in a special train from Chicago to Philadelphia, and in case another game is required, another hurried run in a special train will be made from Philadelphia to Chicago in time to play the sixth game in Chicago on Sunday, Oct. 23. If the series should not be settled by this time, the place of playing the seventh game will be determined by the toss of a coin.

The umpires who will officiate in the big series will be Rigler and O'Day for the National League and Connelly and Sheridan for the American League.

The players eligible to take part in the series are:

Chicago National League Club—Archer, Beaumont, Brown, Cole, Chance, Evers, Foxen, Hofman, Kling, Kane, McIntire, Needham, Overall, Pfeffer, Pfeister, Richie, Reulbach, Sheckard, Steinfeldt, Schulte, Tinker, Weaver, Zimmerman.

Philadelphia American League Club—Atkins, Bender, Barry, Baker, Coombs, Collins, Donohue, Dygert, Davis, Derrick, Houser, Hartsel, Krause, Lapp, Livingston, Lord, Morgan, Murphy, McInnis, Oldring, Plank, Thomas, Strunk.

The scorers selected by the National Commission are Francis Richter of Philadelphia and Taylor Spink of St. Louis.

John Heydler, Secretary of the National League, and Robert McRoy, Secretary to President Johnson of the American League, have been selected as business managers of the series.

Reserved seat prices were fixed at from $1 to $3, while the price for general admission will be 50 cents.

As is usual, the players will receive 60 per cent. of the proceeds of the first four games, but in order to allow the players to partake of the benefit of a Sunday game, the commission put a provision in the rules that if none of the first four games' receipts equals those of the Sunday game in Chicago, in case the latter game is played, that the players' proportionate share shall be made on the basis of the Sunday game in Chicago.

The commission also called attention to the rules of the series which forbid the teams to give any part of the world's series proceeds to former team mates who have been released to clubs in the same league this season, and prohibits the giving of bonuses by the owners to the players of the two clubs.

All press tickets are to be issued only after application to William Weart, Secretary of the Sporting Writers' Association of America. These applications must be passed upon by that body and then certified to by the commission, which will issue the tickets.

In case any of the games are postponed by weather conditions, the succeeding games are to be moved ahead except that in any event the game scheduled for Sunday, Oct. 23, is to be played in Chicago.

Having in mind the trouble with ticket scalpers during past world's series, the commission to-day added the following warning to its announcements:

"The public is cautioned against paying any higher prices for tickets than those fixed in the official schedules. Every effort will be made to prevent ticket scalping, and the licenses granted to the ticket sellers will be revoked if they are found in the hands of scalpers.

"The commission requests the co-operation of the public to bring about proper results and has the assurance that the various municipal authorities will assist them in their work.

"The management of the respective clubs will announce immediately after the promulgation of this order, at what time and at what places reserved seat tickets will be put on sale and the conditions applying to their purchase, the conditions of sale, however, to be subject to approval by the National Commission.

"Both clubs have been limited in their sale of reserved seats, and as each ground has a capacity of over 30,000 the public need have no fear as to gaining admission."

The commission also provided that rain checks shall be issued each day, regardless of weather conditions.

The post season series between the Cincinnati National League team and the Cleveland American League team will start on Oct. 11 at Cincinnati. Oct. 12 is an open date. The second game will be played in Cleveland on Oct. 13. Oct. 14 is an open date, and the third game will be played in Cleveland on Oct. 15. The fourth game will be played at Cincinnati on Oct. 16 and the fifth at Cincinnati on Oct. 17.

Frank Bancroft, Cincinnati, and Ernest Barnard, Cleveland, will be the business representatives. Brennan of the National League and O'Loughlin of the American League will umpire. The scorers will be Jack Ryder of Cincinnati and Edward Bang of Cleveland.

Chase Wins at Billiards.

Hal Chase, Manager of the New York American League baseball team, defeated Al Sanders in last night's game of the Class B amateur three-cushion carrom billiard tournament at John Doyle's Forty-second Street Billiard Academy, by the score of 25 to 24. It was a close match throughout. Tonight in the league preliminary three-cushion carrom billiard tournament J. Manahan will meet William Blumenthal.

TIGERS' GOAL IN DANGER.

Scrub Team Nearly Scores Again on 'Varsity in Scrimmage.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 3.—The Princeton scrub team nearly repeated last week's defeat of the 'Varsity football team to-day by holding them to a 6 to 5 score at University Field this afternoon. In the early part of the scrimmage Ballou, 'Varsity quarter back, let a scrub player block a kick near the 'Varsity goal line, and Dunlap, scrub end, picked up the ball and went across the line.

After fighting up and down the field for quite a while Bredemus sprinted 25 yards through the scrubs for a touchdown and Pendleton kicked an easy goal. After that Coach Roper made both teams kick incessantly for half an hour in an effort to perfect the punting game.

The main topic of conversation in football circles is the Princeton-Villanova game, which is to be played here Wednesday afternoon. The general impression is that this will be a game full of interesting features, because of the showing that Villanova made against the Indians.

Light practice will probably be held tomorrow in preparation for the game. Coach Roper thinks his team will win, and this belief is shared by the student body, although predictions as to the score are not being generally made.

NEW YORK, TUESDAY, OCT. 4, 1910.

OUR TEN BILLION DOLLAR STATE.

An increase of only a hundred million dollars in assessed valuations will soon put New York State into the ten billion dollar class. The figures were published yesterday, but relate to a period far enough back to entitle us to claim that, at the realized rate of growth, the sentimental round figures mentioned above have been passed actually. The first billion of valuation was recorded in 1851. It took twenty years to double this. The two billions was doubled in twenty-five years, or in 1895. That was doubled in eleven years, making eight billions in 1906. That was the year in which the State was so well to do that direct taxation was abolished, and none has been levied since. In four years we have added two billions more, have emptied the Treasury of an ample surplus, and are talking of reimposing direct taxation, for all our amazing wealth. The $20,000,000 of expenditures which was the record of the opening years of the decade under Gov. Odell has been doubled in the closing year under Gov. Hughes.

It would be well if the State at large would realize its indebtedness to this city for its primacy in wealth, and would act according to its realization. The State which contains the Nation's second city is under no such indebtedness to its local metropolis as New York State is to the National metropolis. Pennsylvania's valuation is a little over five billions, but Philadelphia contributes less than two billions, under 30 per cent. Exclusive of this city the State valuation is $2,779,281,451, or more than a billion less than Pennsylvania exclusive of Philadelphia. In other words, but for this city New York State, instead of being the first in the Union in wealth, would not lead the second class.

It must be remembered that the city contributes disproportionately to the State's population as well as wealth. It might be thought that under such conditions the city would control the policy of the State in matters affecting at least the city itself, if not the State at large. The contrary is true. Instead of deferring to the city's men and money, the State imbedded in its Constitution a prohibition that the city should enjoy the predominance to which its wealth and electorate, to say nothing of its intelligence, might entitle it. It was not so phrased, the prohibition applying to any two counties, but under the conditions New York County necessarily must be one of the two to give the words any meaning. Now the city includes other counties, and the growth of population in those counties will enable a reapportionment of population in such manner that the city will be more powerful in the Legislature without infringing the constitutional limitation that no two counties shall have a majority of the Senate.

In the past the minority of the State has shifted the burden of taxation to the majority of the wealth. The revenues which have made possible the frightful extravagance under Republican administration never could have been collected from property at large, to which the rural districts should contribute ratably either to population or property. On the contrary, merit has been made of the fact that these great burdens have been placed upon the dollars and corporations domiciled here. Mortgage, inheritance, stock transfer, and corporation taxes are leading sources of the dollars cast to the winds in the orgy for which ratification is sought at the polls in the approaching election. The bitterness of this is not merely that the burdens are unjust, or that the extravagance is excessive, but that the extravagance which is supported by the extortion from the city's business interests threatens to cost the option to reform the taxation by which the city pays its quota. It has been hoped that when there was no direct State taxation the localities would be empowered to raise their taxes in their own way, and thus exercise a privilege to exempt personal property from taxation. The farmers see in this something prejudicial to their class, and some sort of exemption to wealth, instead of merely the adoption of a rational system of taxation in such manner as to produce the greatest results with least disturbance to the operations which produce wealth. The reform which has seemed almost in reach vanishes with the growth of the visible wealth on which the looters may levy, and with the extravagance which is expected to bring back direct taxation for State purposes, and thus revive the interest of the farmers in the taxes which they think they make others pay.

These figures come at the time when we are wrestling with our budget. It would be interesting to outline the corresponding growth of the city's wealth and extravagance, for the figures are not less cautionary. But it is only possible to remark that the Legislature in which the city is not adequately represented forces upon the city not only the payment of disproportionate taxation, but compels it to be extravagant with the local taxes it is forced to pay. There is nothing more irritating to the prudent or the burdened than the mandatory increases of expenses. The State taxes the city unfairly, on a bad system, and then orders it to make involuntary disbursements in its local affairs. There is much meat in these figures, which ought to strengthen the Democratic campaign for retrenchment and weaken the Republican claim for an indorsement of their régime of unwise legislation and unfair treatment of the city to which the ungrateful State owes so much.

BACK AT THE CITY HALL.

With respect to their reducing by 10 per cent. the estimates of cost of the departments next year, Mayor Gaynor remarked to one of his department heads: "I'm glad to see that you are disposed to comply with the request." To another, who deemed it "absolutely necessary" to increase his budget, and refused stubbornly to reduce it: "It's not for you to say you won't." To another: "The Board of Aldermen has not yet increased those salaries or wages, has it? The Board of Aldermen alone can do it" And to yet another chief whose subordinate had asked for $800,000 wherewith to reduce "water waste," the Mayor promised to "take up that matter with you myself."

The Mayor is back at the City Hall, and at work. The city rejoices.

LABOR'S DUTY TO ITSELF.

Mr. Gompers sees no reason for believing that the labor unions, or any of their men, caused the blowing up of the building of The Los Angeles Times by which nineteen men, most of them operators of typesetting machines, lost their lives. Labor men everywhere scout the theory that the wrecking of the building was caused by explosives placed in or near it by union men. Mr. Crowley of Cincinnati, the Secretary and Treasurer of the International Printing and Pressmen Assistants' Union, ventures the theory that the managers of the newspaper itself caused their own office to be blown up, thus destroying the lives of their associates and employés.

The theory of Mr. Crowley is so little likely to receive general acceptance that we believe it to be the duty of the men of the labor unions to examine carefully their position in order that they may determine wisely what they ought to do to free organized labor from the suspicion which undoubtedly attaches to it in connection with this dastardly affair. The Los Angeles Times is a newspaper of wide circulation and large advertising patronage. It is one of the most successful and prosperous newspapers in the United States. Mr. Crowley says that the managers perpetrated this outrage "for the creation of public sentiment in their favor." That reasoning is most defective. It is perfectly evident that public sentiment was already "in favor" of The Los Angeles Times. Its success, its prosperity, testify to the great favor in which it was held, to its high standing in the community where it is published. It had been for twenty years or more what is called a non-union newspaper, that is, its employés in the mechanical departments did not belong to labor unions. Its attitude in respect to labor does not appear to have lessened the respect in which it was held in Los Angeles. Manifestly it has the confidence and support of the community, although it has incurred the hostility of the unions.

It was because of this hostility that suspicion was directed against the labor organizations as the authors of the outrage. Not only was the building blown up with this frightful loss of life, but an infernal machine charged with dangerous explosives was on the same night placed under a window of the house of Gen. Harrison Gray Otis, the publisher and chief proprietor of The Los Angeles Times, and a similar deadly mechanism consisting of a clock arrangement and an electrical battery connected with a considerable quantity of dynamite was discovered near the foundation of the house of the Secretary of the Merchants and Manufacturers' Association of Los Angeles, which has been prominent in contests with organized labor. These facts very naturally gave rise to the suspicion that the blowing up of the building of The Times was the work of union men.

Mr. Gompers and the leaders of organized labor all over the country must see that this suspicion was not only natural, but, in view of all the circumstances, is well grounded. It would be unjust, however, to assume that the unions are guilty until their guilt has been proved. Let it be in fairness and candor assumed that they are guiltless, that the union men had nothing to do with the outrage. Nevertheless the leaders of organized labor must see that they have a duty to perform, that they must do whatever lies in their power to free labor from suspicion in connection with the outrage. Rewards now amounting to some $15,000 have been offered for the detection of the assassins. We should suppose that the labor unions of Los Angeles and Mr. Gompers's American Federation would at once and largely increase this reward. It behooves them to exhibit zeal in defense of labor's reputation. They have an opportunity by offering rewards and by joining in good faith in the effort to seek out the guilty. Nobody wants to believe that this monstrous crime has been committed by an organization of wage-earners as a means of frightening employers and compelling them by duress to employ union labor. It is incredible. By such inhuman practices, by such heartlessness the men of the unions would show themselves to be the enemies of society. Nobody believes that they are the enemies of society, and it is, therefore, doubly incumbent upon the leaders of the unions to clear up this mystery.

If fanatical union men should prove to be the guilty ones, the unions must see to it that they are detected and punished, to the end that labor may be freed from the reproach. If the outrage was perpetrated by men not of organized labor, it is to the last degree desirable that labor's leaders should make that known as a most effective answer to current accusations. Not to offer rewards, not to join in the effort to ferret out the guilty ones, would seem to indicate that labor was not particularly concerned about the matter, and in some quarters its indifference would be construed as indicating a disposition to condone if not to approve the crime. That would be unfortunate for labor. The duty of its leaders is so clearly evident that we should suppose that they would act at once and with vigor.

WHAT IT COSTS.

What is the actual definite effect of the "downward" revision of the tariff which the Republicans make the issue in this campaign?

We have before us two samples of cotton cloth, colored and striped staple goods in general use, which have been imported and assessed under the Payne-Aldrich law. They cost nearly the same abroad, 12.78 cents and 13.12 cents per square yard, or about 9.3 cents per running yard. Under the Dingley tariff these goods were taxed 35 per cent. ad valorem, which was already a high protection for the American manufacturer. How are they taxed under "downward" revision? The following brief and simple table will show:

Cost.	Dingley Duty.	Payne Duty.	Increase.
12.78c.	4.47c.	8.25c.	84%

It will be noted that the increase in duty is nearly twice as great in the cheaper goods as in the dearer. This is due to a slight difference in weave largely used by one set of American mills. The net result in this case is that goods which could be imported and sold to American consumers at, say, $10 for a dress pattern, must now cost, at least, $13.78, or, including middlemen's profits, at not less than $15.

This trick is accomplished by the substitution of cumulative specific duties, first 5¼ cents per square yard, then 2 cents, then 1 cent additional, according to weight and peculiarity of manufacture. The complex provisions by which the duties are defined are in themselves an obstacle to business, and one of the most effective and ingenious "restraints on trade." They take up some eight or nine pages of the closely printed handbook of the tariff and some 6,000 words are used in defining them.

These cotton goods are not luxuries. Under free competition they could be imported or made here to retail at some 12 cents a yard. The cost of making abroad and here cannot vary greatly. The high prices extorted are entirely unnecessary and useless for protection to the American working people, while they are practically forbidden to buy for their families the product of their own labor on account of the extravagant profits secured by law to their employers. In face of these facts the pretense of Mr. Roosevelt and his party that they are fighting the privileged classes in politics is cruelly absurd.

THE CITY'S DRINKING WATER.

It tastes bad, it smells bad, it is harmless. The Health Department is sure of its harmlessness. It discourages thirst, too, quicker than the comparatively tasteless Croton water that your used to drink.

Most of New York's population must drink it, and be content. The dealers in bottled spring water are selling about all their product to the population of the towns to the north of us, where there is a real water famine. We have plenty of water such as it is, and good enough, too, what there is of it. True, it is running low. Excepting for purposes of nourishment it needs filtering. But the taste and the odor are due solely to the abundant presence in the reservoirs at this season of the alphanizomenon. Now the alphanizomenon is an alga of the division of cellular cryptogams having chlorophyll—but it won't hurt anybody.

A LOOK AHEAD.

We have already referred to the large increase of officers in the Postal Service brought under the civil service rules by President Taft. We desire now to call attention to the statement in his latest address of the scope that he hopes and plans to give to this essential and vital reform. The full statement was as follows:

> Fourth class Postmasters not requiring confirmation are, many of them, already in the classified service; but Postmasters of the first, second, and third class, Collectors of Internal Revenue, Collectors of Customs, Surveyors of Customs, and Appraisers are not in the classified service and now receive their appointments on recommendation of their Senators or the Congressmen in whose districts they reside. All of those offices ought ultimately to be in the classified service. They would then be more efficiently and economically administered.
> The giving up of the power of confirmation is a great concession from the Senate, and we can perhaps not expect it to be made in respect to all local offices at once. I shall urge upon the Congress a change in the method of appointing Postmasters so that at least the 7,198 second and third class Postmasters can be classified and taken out of the category of political patronage. We can then patiently push on for further progress toward an elimination of all local offices from the field of politics.

Here is the definite advocacy of the extension of the merit system to all the principal offices of the Postal and Treasury Departments. When we consider that it is barely a quarter of a century since every office in the Federal Government and all employments, from Collectors and Postmasters to tide-waiters and charwomen, were regarded as the spoils of politicians, the advance is very great. Let us hope that the final step will be the honest and effective prohibition of all partisan activity.

BRITISH PLAY CENSORSHIP.

The puerilities and inconsistencies of play censorship continue in Great Britain in spite of the weeks of labor devoted to a Parliamentary investigation of the subject and the respect then accorded to the general opinion that the whole system of censorship is antiquated and useless. A play by that most amiable of poets, Laurence Housman, may not be licensed because it treats of the marital relations of preposterous George IV. and his divorced and ill-used Queen. The theory must be that the law-abiding subjects of the fifth George would be harmed by having the wickedness of the fourth George displayed on the theatrical stage. But there is no censorship of literature, and countless books have told the world all about the peccadillos of the fat man who was a noisy Prince of Wales, a discreetly inactive Regent, and a feeble King. Thackeray's pleasant lectures were not suppressed, and he took his facts from authentic records, in print.

The rules of the present censorship are absurd, of course. In an era of many dull plays, a good new piece about Alvanley's "fat friend" and abused Caroline ought to be welcomed, not suppressed. The play ought to be interesting; it may be edifying. The censor permits gross immoralities to escape him, but frowns persistently upon the attempts of the dramatists to put royal personages related to the reigning house and Biblical characters on the stage. The right of appeal from the censor's decisions ought certainly to be recognized.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Accepted Poor Evidence.

Men whose pre-eminence in one or another domain of knowledge is realized by themselves and recognized by everybody else often make amusing and even pathetic displays of overconfidence in their own judgment when they formulate conclusions in regard to matters lying outside the field of their special competency. This curious tendency was well exemplified in the discussion of immortality and the soul by Mr. Edison, which we printed on Sunday, particularly when he told a little experience of his own as evidencing the probable possession by some men of one or more senses lacking in their fellows.

It seems that a mysterious visitor, never seen before or since, once went to Mr. Edison's laboratory and excited his wonder by telling names secretly written by one of the inventor's assistants. To quote from the interview:

> He had him write the names in such a manner that he could not possibly by any trick see what he wrote by means of ordinary vision, and he did not touch the piece of paper. But he put his hand upon the man and read off the names correctly, as if they had been held before his eyes.

Astonished, but not convinced, the Sage of Menlo Park then himself wrote a question—"Is there anything better for a storage battery than nickel-hydroxide?" Without looking at the paper the stranger answered, "There is nothing better," and went away.

Declaring, whether naively or shrewdly one hardly knows, that the man was right, because there is nothing better, Mr. Edison used this performance as arguing the existence of a mystical sense! He, who knows so well how his own experiments should be conditioned, was "astounded" by something that can be done in any of a dozen ways ludicrously simple, not one of which requires the exercise of any power not possessed by any professional magician. And how rash the statement that the man "could not possibly" have seen what was written!—almost as rash as the other statement that for the construction of storage batteries a better material than that now used by Mr. Edison will never be found by himself or anybody else. He did not seem to see that the answer to his own question involved vastly more than the reading of unseen writing, and by its wild audacity hinted clearly that the man was a skillful trickster.

Unmarried Women Teachers.

President Hamilton of Tufts College, in explaining why only men teachers will be employed in the "annex" or associated college for women which has been established there, has made statements which are sure to excite much discussion, and if some of the comment isn't more than slightly acrimonious it will be a wonder. For, not content with saying that men teachers were better for girls of the college age, President Hamilton declared that it was distinctly injurious for such girls to be subjected to the influence exerted on them by the great majority of feminine teachers—teachers whom he described as "highly cultured, middle-aged, unmarried women."

He admitted that this type may be a very fine one, individually, but he insisted that the atmosphere it created was not the right one for girls at the most impressional age, when they needed to have their outlook on life broadened, not narrowed, and when the establishment of abnormal ideals was likely to be most harmful. As will be readily seen, the implications of this argument extend far, and admission of its validity would seriously disturb not only the women teachers of the class mentioned, but their pupils and the great army of graduates which their schools have turned out in recent years.

President Hamilton did not contend, however, that there was no place in the teaching profession for the women whom he does not want in his new college. Their field, he said, was in the lower and preparatory schools, and in "homes" and "settlements," where the girls are different from those in college and in need of different influences. Curiously enough, considering the general inclination to exclude married women from the public schools, President Hamilton expressed a preference for them, or for widows, if for any reason men could not be employed in the girls' college.

Of course, more than one of the older institutions for the higher education of women some time since abandoned the policy of having only women teachers, and the plan of having a man at the head of them is not unknown. Still, the type to which President Hamilton referred controls in most of these schools, and his theory as to the effect it has on the pupils may possibly have something to do with the impression which so many old-fashioned—or old-fogy—people have that a college training somehow interferes with a girl's "prospects," especially her matrimonial chances.

Drowned When in Harbor.

What makes the drowning of the New Hampshire's men hardly less disquieting than distressing is the fact that it occurred in conditions that would naturally be considered those of perfect safety. At sea or when approaching a dangerous coast occasional accidents are in the natural course of events, and are viewed, if not with composure, at least with something of resignation as unavoidable. But this horrifying calamity took place, not in storm or battle, but in a quiet harbor, where there were no human enemies and where even the elements were at peace.

The almost inevitable assumption is that in such circumstances nothing of the sort could have happened without dreadful incompetency or more dreadful carelessness somewhere. That assumption is far from necessarily correct, however, and while it is easy enough, now, to see that somebody blundered and that essential precautions were not taken, one should not be too severe in judging this untoward result of doing what had been done a thousand times with perfect safety.

LIBRARY AIDS CONTESTANTS.

Pamphlets Telling of Bergen's History Prepared for Free Distribution.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

We have noted with much interest and appreciation the prizes you have offered to the pupils of the Jersey City schools for the best essays on the history of Old Bergen. This competition is sure to stimulate interest and study in the history of our city and will be of great educational benefit. In this connection we take the liberty of calling your attention to the work the Public Library is doing along these lines.

We have already issued two circulars on the subject. Of the one entitled "Bergen, 1660-1910" we have already distributed 40,000 copies among the pupils of the public, private, and parochial schools throughout the city. Of the circular entitled "Manners and Customs of Old Bergen" over 6,000 have been distributed among the teachers and pupils.

In addition to these circulars the library has in press a forty-page pamphlet giving a history of Bergen and Jersey City. These pamphlets, which are to be published in a few days, are to be given to the Principals and teachers in all the schools and distributed free of charge to those who are interested in the subject. A copy will be sent to you as soon as issued.

We would be glad to have you call attention to these publications and to the great educational work the library is doing in this connection. These publications should also prove extremely useful to those who are competing for your prizes. Being prepared on entirely different lines from the valuable articles of Mr. Van Winkle, we think they could be used to great advantage in conjunction with them.

As the primary object of all these publications is to stimulate interest and encourage the study of Jersey City's history, the use of our publication in your contest should prove mutually advantageous. B. L. STOWE, President.

Opinions of Roosevelt.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I used to think The Times was a tremendous admirer of Theodore Roosevelt, but lately you have certainly not spared the rod. However, it is very gratifying to see that you are willing to let your readers see both sides of the question, publishing favorable and adverse comment, which is more than can be said of other New York papers, whose bitter antagonism to Roosevelt makes them forget all the rules of fair play. When I read The Times I feel that I am getting a true account of political events and not one colored by partisanship.

In regard to the character of Theodore Roosevelt, being only human, he must have some failings, but where will you find the man who has so few in comparison with his wonderful qualities of mind and heart? I believe there are few people who in their heart of hearts are not proud of this great American.

New York, Oct. 1, 1910. FAIR PLAY.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In view of the Pennsylvania Railroad affair and others too numerous to mention, history is more than likely to chronicle Theodore Roosevelt as the advance agent and disciple of "The New Deadheadism." A. B. H.

Republican Bosses.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As an unbossed Republican who will not bow to either Roosevelt, Barnes or Woodruff, let me register a protest against the action of two little bosses of the New Nationalism in Brooklyn. I mean Postmaster Voorhies and Naval Officer Kracke. How is it that a Navy officer can take part in politics as Kracke is doing? Is Taft letting the navy go over to Roosevelt? He had better look out, for if Roosevelt gets the army too it won't be long before we shall see the Colonel with an army at his back riding us down if we oppose his empire—the New Nation.

Kracke and Voorhies are trying to get up some feeling against Senator Burlingame, who is one of the original "direct nominations Senators," because they want the nomination for their district. Let us have direct nominations and the voters will show these district bosses where they belong.

As an enrolled Republican of the Eighth Senatorial District, I say that if Kracke rejects Burlingame, who voted for 80 cent gas, he will regret it on Election Day. M. C. E.

Predictions.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your editorial article in this morning's issue of your paper commenting on the nomination of John A. Dix for Governor of this State is certainly worthy of great commendation, and it will undoubtedly appeal favorably to all voters irrespective of party affiliation.

It is my firm belief that as the campaign progresses Mr. Dix will become stronger. Still, a relentless and vigorous campaign ought to be conducted. On Nov. 8 next the people will put an end to Mr. Roosevelt's domineering, his pompous and arrogant manner, and the Republican Party will be overwhelmingly defeated. MORRIS MARKS.

History of Bergen Village

Written by Daniel Van Winkle for the guidance of pupils of the public, parochial, and private schools of Jersey City in the competition for The New York Times Prizes for the best essay upon the founding and history of Bergen Village.

SECOND ARTICLE.

After the charter of the New Netherlands Company expired the Dutch West India Company was incorporated in 1621, and it was given the exclusive right of trade with the country of New Netherland, with full powers of government over the territory it should explore and colonize. Active operations were begun at once, and a trading post was established on the Island of Manhattan, near the site of the present Bowling Green. This company was now to all intents and purposes the ruler of New Netherland, although under the supervision of the States General of Holland. By the terms of its charter it was given the right to establish such local governments and appoint such officers as were thought necessary. The governmental control was placed in the hands of a Director General or Governor, who received his commission from the States General, and a Council, the members of which were appointed by the Director. Thus, as may readily be seen, the Director himself had practically full power, and his rule extended to the furthest limits of the territory as claimed by the Dutch. The seat of Government was on Manhattan Island, or, as it was then called, New Amsterdam.

It must be remembered that the great object of the West India Company was to secure all the profit that could be obtained through trade with this country. With this object in view, the early traders made no effort at permanent settlement. They built houses and forts, but these were merely for comfort and protection while trading with the Indians.

It was soon found, however, that this method would not repay the company for the great expense to which it had been subjected, and new measures were determined upon to awaken new interest in the colony. In 1626 Peter Minuit, the then Governor, bought Manhattan Island from the Indians for sixty guilders, a sum equal to about $24 in our currency.

In 1629 the "Charter of Freedoms and Exemption" was granted by the company, which stated: "That such members of the company who should within four years plant a colony of fifty souls upward of fifteen years old" should be acknowledged as Patroons of New Netherland, and were permitted to extend their settlements four miles—equal to sixteen English miles—along the shore of a river, on the one side, or one-half that distance on each, and extending back "so far into the country as the situation of the occupiers will permit." These privileges were granted as expressed to the "Patroons, masters, or private individuals who shall settle any colony or bring cattle therein in New Netherland."

Several members of the company took advantage of this offer and made claims, but none of these interests us at this time save that of Michael Pauw, a Burgomaster of Amsterdam. He laid claim to several plots of land, among them "Aharsimus and Arresick, extending along the River Mauritius and Island Manhatta on the north, and surrounded by marshes, serving sufficiently for distinct boundaries."

Pauw received the patent by virtue of which he became owner of the above described land Nov. 22, 1630, of course subject to the conditions as laid down in the company's offer. This is in effect the present territory of Hudson County, and from this time may be dated the beginning of the settlement of New Jersey. Pauw called his grant Pavonia.

After he became the owner of this territory he seems to have made no effort to carry out his agreement. He sent over from Holland his superintendent one Jan Evertsen Bout, who arrived here June 17, 1634, and settled at Communipaw. He continued there for two years, farming somewhat and trading with the Indians. In 1636 he was succeeded by Cornelius van Vorst, for whom a house was built at Aharsimus, located about the present Fifth and Henderson Streets.

Doubtless both of these locations were chosen, not only because of their attractiveness as home sites, but likewise on account of their convenience for communication with New Amsterdam. The curving shore of the river had formed similar coves at each of these spots, with high banks sloping to the water's edge, covered with trees and shrubbery, and sheltered from the fierce northeast storms that at times beat down upon the water. A few years since some faint idea of the beauty of these locations could have been obtained at Communipaw, but the march of improvement, and the demands for extended traffic have carried out the shore line several thousand feet beyond the original river bank and wiped out all trace of the early beauty.

Even before the occupation of this territory by Pauw's Superintendents, the Dutch West India Company had established a trading post on the point of land afterward known as Paulus Hook, and among its officers there was Michael Paulaz, from whom the name was derived. Adventurous traders had lived among the Indians for convenience of trade with them and for purposes of gain, but the huts they built were only for temporary shelter.

The Patroons, as owners of the soil, leased portions of their grants to those who came to the new land to found their homes. Sometimes these were not able to bring their families at their own expense, in which case they received a free passage and necessary advances from the Patroon. In return they bound themselves to remain his tenants for a certain time, or until the debt was paid, subject to special conditions, one of which was that they must get everything they needed from the Patroon's agent, in exchange for what they raised on the farm. It is not very difficult to imagine that the debt was not wiped out until the Patroon was satisfied with the profit he had received from his tenant, and until this time, he could not leave without consent. But Pauw seemed unwilling to assume any obligations even to secure occupants for his grant, consequently its improvement was very slow.

When reminded of this and the condition of his grant, he was not at all disturbed, but held on to his possessions and refused to give them up. After much controversy the company purchased from him his claim to Pavonia, and thus again became full owner of the soil.

In order to clearly understand the situation during those early times we should become familiar with the topography or face of the country. We can scarcely realize the appearance of things nearly 300 years ago. In fact, in the study of history at any time we must divest ourselves of present surroundings, and get back in imagination to the times of which we study, in order to obtain a full and satisfactory idea of the conditions then existing.

The territory of Hudson County in the early days presented a very different appearance from the present. In place of the busy factories and crowded tenements we now see about us were swamps and marshes and hills covered with dense forests; and instead of the great vessels plying to and fro over the neighboring rivers the canoe of the Indians darted hither and thither, and the wild fowl drifted on their tides, or rose in flocks from the marshes round about.

What we now know as lower Jersey City was composed of a few sand banks rising above the swamp, that oftentimes was covered with the tide. Paulus Hook was a mound extending out into the bay between Aharsimus and Communipaw Coves; the plot is at present marked by York, Warren, and Essex Streets and the Hudson River. At Aharsimus a similar mound rose from the marsh, and here Van Vorst established his farm or bouerie as it was called, and for many years, even as late as 1840, fields of waving corn and grain, covered portions of this section of Pavonia. To the west of Paulus Hook and between the present Rail Road Avenue and York Street, and Barrow and Monmouth Streets, was a third plot of high ground.

The intervening space was marsh and low land, intersected with ditches and creeks, one of which, afterward called the Mill Creek, was of good size. To the north along the shore of the river, the high promontory of Hoboken jutted out, and to the southward the sand hills of Communipaw sloped gently to the river bank. These five prominences were in the early days the only habitable spots east of the ridge on which Bergen was in after days located, and which is now known as Jersey City Heights.

The early traders found the whole country inhabited by Indians, who roamed over the soil in their native wildness. These were divided into different tribes, each tribe living separately and apart by itself and having a chief to whom it was subject. Some of these tribes were inclined to be friendly, but for the most part their savage instincts were given full rein. We have seen the different treatment received by Hudson on his arrival, from the Indians living on the east and west banks of the river.

Fortunately for the early settlers of Pavonia, their lot was cast among those inclined to be friendly, and for some time nothing occurred to disturb this kindly feeling. The natives brought the furs they had secured in the chase to the homes of the settlers and bartered them for the beads and gaudy ornaments awaiting them, and oftentimes the smoke of the pipes of the white man and copper-colored Indian, arose together as they exchanged their goods with mingled "patois."

But human nature in those early times, was very like the human nature of the present day. In their dealing with the natives some of the more grasping of the traders treated them unjustly, and this they very naturally resented. Their instincts taught them self-protection and their savage natures prompted a speedy revenge, hence trouble arose, and constant watchfulness was needed on the part of the whites, to prevent surprise by the crafty Indians.

By and by the advantages of location attracted the attention of others. May 1, 1638, Abraham Isaacsen Verplanck obtained a grant of land at Paulus Hook, and Jan Evertsen Bout, Pauw's former Superintendent, secured a lease of the farm at Communipaw he had formerly occupied. Dirck Straatmacher received a grant of land forming the greater part of what is now the Greenville section, and June 1, 1641, Aert Tunisen Van Putten leased the island now known as Hoboken for twelve years, and the same year Myndert Myndertsen secured a patent to land along the Hackensack extending to Tappan.

In course of time other traders came, some of whom probably landed at Communipaw and followed the Indian trail up over the heights. Others perhaps sailed up the Mill Creek and there found the trail leading up over the east side of the rocks—afterward the "Mill Road" that led to the "maize land." They found here a little spot of ground that had been cleared by the Indians and on which stood the grain and Indian corn waving in the breeze. Doubtless this was to them a welcome sight, as it proved to them the fertility of the soil. They found the whole ridge of ground well suited to the farmer's needs and determined here to found their homes.

Hence after a little time here and there the smoke from the homes of these hardy settlers was seen curling above the surrounding tree tops, and the forest stillness was broken by the sound of the axe as they cleared their home lots. Their houses were rudely built of the tree trunks they had felled, and covered with a thatch or roof of reeds and grass gathered from the nearby marsh. The chimneys were outside the buildings and made from slabs of wood fastened together, a combination that would not be accepted as a fair risk by the most liberal-minded insurance man of the present time, and even in those days considered to be full of danger.

But the increasing number of the whites aroused the jealousy of the savages, and they resented at once any real or fancied injustice. The cattle of the settlers were often missing, and now and again their haystacks were burned. If any attempt was made to redress the wrongs it was seized upon as an excuse for further depredations. Gov. Kieft, who was the Governor over New Netherland at this time, added to the bad feeling that had grown up, by demanding from the Indians a tribute or tax, claiming they were his subjects.

Accustomed to the freedom of their savage life, they resented this action by their increased hostility. The old open friendliness was now supplanted by a hostile sullenness, and the settlers found their cattle slain or driven off and fields laid waste. At last one of them was shot while roofing his house, by an Indian who had been lurking in the woods near by. Keift demanded the murderer should be given up. The demand was refused, but a payment in wampum was offered instead. This was made from black and white shells, cut and polished, on each of which a certain value was placed and which was used as currency and passed from hand to hand, the same as the coin of the present day. The offer was refused and again the punishment of the murderer insisted upon, and so the breach was widened, and the peace and quiet of former days was now displaced by fear of savage outbreak.

THE HEART OF A CHILD IN THIS TENDER PLAY

Abner Simpson	Sam Coit

Emma Jane Perkins would undoubtedly describe it as an "elegunt" play. And this time, for certain, Emma Jane would be right. Not that there is any intention of differing with Emma Jane on that finding in regard to various other things in "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm"—but just by way of beginning somewhere and somehow, which, be it mentioned, is very often the very hardest part about telling people whether the play you saw the night before is good or bad.

And it's harder still when you come away filled with thoughts of a lot of gentle things that you wish you had never forgotten, but which somehow or other have been dimmed in memory. But this gentle play, which had its inspiration in Mrs. Wiggins's book, and on which she and Miss Thompson have collaborated most successfully, will make some of the smoldering mental timbers glow again. And that is a good thing in a play.

"Rebecca of Sunnybrook farm," as it was acted at the Republic last night—and acted most exquisitely—is an idyl of childhood, a fairy tale come true. And yet it is somehting more than that. For there is so much that is real and human in it that it will be well for once to leave the cynical thing unsaid, or better unthought, about "the old mortgage" which has to be lifted in time to promise happiness for the little girl whose misery and poverty form the earlier chapters of the story.

Of course, in stories of this kind and in plays made from them there are sure to be simple elemental things. But the blend here is so sweet, with so many familiar details that are really interesting—instead of merely realistic—and the playing is generally so charming in its naturalness and potent sweetness, that the result is an evening of unalloyed delight, or ought to be so for any one who isn't too grown up and soured to remember that little girls just have to giggle, whether you like it or not.

If Aunt Miranda had seen those gigglers, Emma Jane and Clara Belle and Minnie and Alice, when they were first introduced to Rebecca Rowena, very bashfully scraping her little foot as if she didn't know just whether she dast or dassent, Aunt Emma never would have had the heart to give the little girlie the dreadful scolding that made her answer back and get sent up to bed.

Of course you not being Aunt Emma, but just a stranger outside of the family, whose best lace curtain hadn't been dragged all over the front yard to make a fairy story, you, of course, were in love with Rebecca by that time. But Aunt Miranda hadn't come to know her yet and hadn't heard her tell that lovely fairy story. And, anyhow, how was she to know about the beautiful pink parasol that was only carried on cloudy days, because "the sun fades pink" or the flowers that were to be offered for peace and good will?

You, like Jeremiah Cobb, the stage driver, capitulated at once to Rebecca but then neither you nor he had the responsibilities of her bringing up. Which does make a difference, doesn't it? Though it must be said for Jeremiah that he did know what was best to do when Rebecca ran away and came to the little yellow house on the hill to sob her little heart out until preserves and pie, not to speak of a sly winking tact, showed her which way her duty lay, and sent her back to be a good girl and grateful to the fond old lady who for all her surface crust knew enough to have a pink dress awaiting in the cupboard.

However, Rebecca couldn't know that either, and so she and her little checked gingham and the nice clean stockings and the pink parasol all climbed down together from the second-story window and arrived at Uncle Jerry's kitchen very damp and not a little dirty. And the dampness was especially visible about little Rebecca's eyes until Uncle Jerry discovered the way to bring the sunshine through the clouds and send Rebecca home again.

If Edith Taliaferro had done nothing more than that one scene of childish heartbreak and hysteria, prolonged from the end of one act into the second, and then bubbling over, she would be entitled to no end of qualifying adjectives of appreciation. But from first to last, in the plain little gingham, and in the cheesecloth graduation dress, with her curls down, and with her hair done up, little Miss Taliaferro's Rebecca is an acted symphony of childhood exquisitely lovely. It is as fresh and appealing as Spring itself, a complete impersonation of youth with, in fact, the joyousness of it and the sorrow of its imagined tragedy.

And so you can feel for Rebecca in her little trouble when she is sure her "life is spoiled," and you can rejoice with her in that wonderful sale of soap which is to bring the treasured banquet lamp to poor, miserable Mrs. Simpson who has no wedding ring.

The scene of Rebecca's discovery of this little oversight on the part of the somewhat dubious Simpson is capitally written, and it is beautifully played by Miss Taliaferro and Mr. Ralph Kellerd, whose ingratiating manner and genuinely sympathetic method do much to help along. The scene might easily be maudlin, but fine acting and proper restraint save it—make it, in fact, one of the best features of the play.

The acting, indeed, is almost always good. The children without exception are natural and amusing—sometimes more than that.

As acted by Lorraine Frost almost no child one fancies will fail to recognize Emma Jane among her own acquaintances, if not in the Rebecca stories, and Violet Merserau as Clara Belle Simpson is wholly adorable. Katherine and Etta Bryan, too, are so very good in their rôles that one almost forgives them for being stuck-ups. A word of praise is due Eliza Glassford, Sam Coit, and Ernest Truax for neatly characterized rôles.

Considerably more than that should be said for Archie Boyd, who makes Jerry Cobb live on the stage with wholesome good humor and mellowed tenderness that are most attractive. And as Miss Taliaferro's Rebecca is a perfect symbol of girlishness, so Marie L. Daly's Aunt Miranda conveys with really wonderful artistry the sense of somewhat crabbed, hard-headed age with its practical—sometimes a little too practical—view of things. The finest part of Miss Day's acting is the sense it conveys of a warmth of heart beneath the crusty surface, a very difficult thing to do where lines and substance deal almost wholly with the harsher side.

A little variation of Mrs. Simpson's sorrow and some pumpkins that look "sure enough" are points that might be bettered. But the rainstorm is splendid and the pump squeaks beautifully.

It might be borne in mind that the dramatization comes from the same hand that did so well with Helena Richie. These book plays are usually such dreadful things that Miss Thompson deserves all the credit she can get.

To sum up—though grown folks ought to love Rebecca—it wouldn't be a bad idea to pass a law making it obligatory for parents to take their children to see this play. And there could be a lot worse philanthropy than starting a list for little ones who have to depend on outsiders [illegible] to their pleasures.

Belmont at luncheon yesterday, and afterward visited Mrs. Belmont's Political Equality Association, at 505 Fifth Avenue, and the National and State Suffrage Headquarters in the same building. Mr. Young told the suffrage workers that he had been in favor of the franchise for women for many years, had been a believer in the "cause" before Mrs. Young became interested in it, and gave a practical demonstration by buying a big package of suffrage literature, which he ordered sent to his business address and said that he would distribute it there.

Mrs. Young subscribed to half a dozen suffrage papers. The singer sails from New York to-day for Paris, where she is to sing in opera for the next few weeks, and will then return to New York and be in time to take part in the big suffrage bazaar that is to be held before Christmas, where she will have charge of an afternoon or evening and give a small opera or concert, it is not yet decided which.

NEW CAREER FOR THE CIRCLE

Theatre Begins as Combination House with "The Chocolate Soldier."

The Circle Theatre, at Sixtieth Street and Broadway, began its career as a "combination house" last night, when "The Chocolate Soldier" began a week's engagement there. The size and enthusiasm of the audience indicated that the theatre may be prosperous under its new policy.

"The Chocolate Soldier" company and production were essentially the same as last Spring, when the operetta ended its loong run at the Casino Theatre after having been housed at the Herald Square and at the Lyric.

Hereafter the Circle Theatre will be operated on the same plan as the West End Theatre, with a change of attractions every week, with a list of offerings that will include the productions of the independent managers.

When the orchestra commenced to play something that sounded like the opening of the second act of "Die Walküre" at the Globe Theatre last evening about 8:15 the audience—at least that part of it acquainted with Richard Wagner—fully expected to see the curtain go up on Brunnhilde's descent from the rocks with a wild cry of "Ho-je-to-ho!" Consequently it was surprising to find the curtain risen on a scene in a divorce court with the heroine of the piece standing in the middle of the stage, the Judge on one side, and the chorus, grouped as auditors in the court room, seated on benches on the other.

The scene as it commenced and progressed was novel and surprising enough, even without the shock of the "Walküre" prelude, and even in the emasculated English text, to thoroughly amuse the audience.

Reports from Germany tell us that "Die Geschiedene Frau"—literally "The Divorced Wife"—was very, very naughty indeed in its original version. The court-room scene, even in English, is a bit daring.

Unlike so many of its predecessors in the Viennese operetta line, "Die Geschiedene Frau" seems to lean more heavily on its book than it does on its music. In the original it must have veered pretty close to being a farce of the sort which one sees at the Palais Royal of the Nouveautés in Paris.

The scene with which the piece commences, unhappily, is the most amusing. The idea of excluding the spectators from the court immediately after some particularly unsavory detail has been mentioned by one of the witnesses is very effective, especially as nothing whatever is said while they are out of the room which could possibly shock them. The moment they are brought back, however, by order of the Judge and the librettist, something is said which makes it necessary for them to be removed again.

In the second act occurs the usual entanglement of lovers which seems bound to happen in any of these Viennese operettas, when the jealous woman rushes to another man because she misunderstands. The last act is the mildest and least effective of the three.

The story is of a woman who divorces her husband only to marry again. The Girl in the Train of the title is an actress, who becomes the co-respondent in the divorce suit. It is supposed that she and the husband have traveled together. She continues to disturb the wife's peace of mind even after the divorce, and when the wife returns to her divorced husband's house to discover the actress there at a dance, and is told that he is going to marry her, she throws herself into the arms of the Judge who granted her divorce. Of course, it is all a misunderstanding and, of course, it is all cleared up later.

The music is by no means on the plane of Dr. Fall's "Dollar Prinzessin." The composer seems to have become infatuated with the kettle drum and other percussion instruments. When these do not occupy his pen he puts many black notes on the trombone bars. The result, in a small theatre, is not always pleasant to the ear.

Sometimes, however, dear old Vienna calls him away from Beyreuth, and he bursts into a spontaneous waltz rhythm. There are at least two waltzes in the piece which will take their places in the répertoire of the cafés and restaurants around town. They will not, however, destroy the memory of the waltzes from "The Dollar Princess" and "The Merry Widow."

There is one very merry air which commences in English, "Eeny-Meeny, Miny, Moo," and another, a duet in the last between the actress and the Judge, which is capital. But the kettle drum man always waited with a tense, drawn look on his face and his sticks held in the air ready to commence.

The music would doubtless have gained much in effect if there had been voices among those concerned in the performance capable of singing it. Miss Michelena was perhaps better equipped in this respect than the others, but even she fell sadly below what might have been desired at times. Miss June Grey in the part of Gonda, the actress, is extremely limited in her vocal ability. The men were not even so good as the women in this respect. As for the chorus, it has very little to do.

Claude Gillingwater did much to preserve the original spirit of the piece. To Melville Stewart fell the leading part of the husband.

WEEK'S BILLS AT THE THEATRES.

NOVELTIES IN VAUDEVILLE.

English Dramatic Company in "The Monkey's Paw"—Karno Pantomime.

An English dramatic company, headed by John Lawson and presenting W. W. Jacobs and Louis N. Parker's little play, "The Monkey's Paw," made their first appearance in this country at the American Music Hall yesterday afternoon. The piece was given in New York by Arnold Daly at the Berkeley Lyceum two or three seasons ago and that it would even be received with interest by a vaudeville audience was thought to be out of the question at that time.

Yesterday's audience, however, watched the intense, weird tragedy with the utmost attention, and seemed to thoroughly appreciate the fine acting of the principal characters, the staging of the play, and the story itself. The plot tells the story of an aged couple who come into possession of a mummified monkey's paw that has the power to grant them three wishes. Their first wish is for money to pay off a mortgage, and they receive the sum asked for—as compensation for the death of their only son, killed in an electrical works. Their second wish is that their son be alive again, and their third that he be at peace in his grave.

Mr. Lawson, playing the old father, proved to be an excellent character actor, who knows how to make use of homely details for effect. The rôle of the mother was taken by Lucille Sidney, F. Sheldon played the son, Ogeham Armadale an old soldier, and H. Clermant a messenger. The scenery and effects were realistic.

Other numbers at the American included Johnson Clarke, an English ventriloquist; Jessie Broughton, a pianist and vocalist; Arthur Dunn and Marie Glazier, and Harry and Irving Cooper.

McIntyre and Heath, of "The Ham Tree" fame, came back to vaudeville, at Hammerstein's Victoria Theatre yesterday, presenting a sketch called "The Georgia Minstrels," in which the two comedians supplied twenty minutes of constant merriment. Other acts on the Victoria programme were George Edwards's "Son Review," Ben Welsh, Maggie Cline, Hedges Brothers & Jacobson, Harry Breen, Kessler & Lee, and Shields & Rogers.

Two novelties were offered at the Colonial—a new Karno pantomime comedy and a new Rolfe musical production. The Karno show was called "A Night in a London Secret Society," and in rapidity of action and lively knock-about comedy it equalled the same producer's original "Night in a London Music Hall." The Rolfe production was entitled "The Courtiers," and consisted of an entertaining musical act by a number of people in Colonial costume. The Rigoletto Twins appeared in their mixture of juggling, sleight-of-hand, music, and posing. Others on the bill were the three Leightons, Mr. Hymack, Wilbur Mack and Nella Walker, and Albert Whelan.

"THE NAKED TRUTH" ACTED.

Henry E. Dixey Appears in Role Hawtry Played in London.

Special to The New York Times.

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 3.—The first American pruduction of "The Naked Truth" took place at the Royal Alexandra Theatre here to-night under the direction of William A. Brady. Henry E. Dixey was the star, and was supported by a company including Marie Nordstrom, Ruth Shepley, Isabel West, Dorothy Davies, Lillian Dix, Marie Pert, Blanche Bryant, Kenneth Davenport, Herbert Standing, Spottswood Aiken, Frank Hatch, Frederick Roberts, and George Ives.

Mr. Dixey appeared in the rôle of Bernard Darrell, played in London by Charles Hawtrey. He was called before the curtain at the end of the second act and responded with a humorous speech.

"The Naked Truth" is the work of George Paston and W. B. Maxwell, two London playwrights. Charles Hawtrey sent his congratulations from the Prince of Wales Theatre, London.

SIR JOHN HARE COMING HERE.

Charles Frohman to Present English Actor in His Old Repertoire.

Charles Frohman completed arrangements yesterday by which Sir John Hare, the distinguished English actor, will come to America next Spring for brief engagements in New York and Chicago. He will bring most of his London company, and will start for this country immediately after the close of his season on the other side, about the second week in April.

Sir John Hare will have a repertoire of his old plays, including "A Pair of Spectacles," "A Scrap of Paper," "The Gay Lord Quex," and J. M. Barrie's "Little Mary," all of which he will present at the Duke of York's Theatre, London, during Mr. Frohman's repertoire season at that house.

His Chicago engagement will be played at the new Blackstone Theatre, which will be in running order by Spring. The theatre he will occupy in New York has not yet been determined upon.

New Theatre to Open Top Balcony.

The New Theatre decided yesterday to throw open the entire top balcony of the theatre for the east side subscription performances that are to be given this season. When the auditorium of the theatre was remodeled this Summer, arrangements were made to cut off the top balcony by curtains, but the demand for the low-priced subscription tickets has been so large that the extra seating capacity will be required.

AMUSEMENT NOTES.

The Shuberts announced yesterday that Amelia Summerville has retired from the cast of "He Came From Milwaukee," in which Sam Bernard is starring at the Casino Theatre, and has been appointed to a leading role in another Shubert musical play soon to be produced.

Monckton Hoffe, the English actor-dramatist, and author of "The Little Damozel," is on his way to America to witness the presentation of his play here. Next Monday the piece will be moved from the Comedy to Nazimova's Theatre, where the seating capacity is larger. It is to be presented in Vienna early next month under the title of "Das Kleine Fraulein."

Avery Hopwood, co-author with Mary Roberts Reinhart of "Seven Days," and author of Marie Cahill's new musical play, "Judy Forgot," was brought to New York yesterday suffering from an attack of ptomaine poisoning. Last night it was reported that he had passed the danger point of his illness and that he would be able to be out in about a week.

BEECHAM'S SEASON OPENS.

Clarence Whitehill and Mignon Nevada Win Favor in "Hamlet."

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 3.—Thomas Beecham's season of opera at the Covent Garden opened to-night with Ambroise Thomas's opera "Hamlet."

The opera itself failed to enthuse the audience, but Clarence Whitehill, American tenor, scored an unmistakable success in the title rôle, and Mignon Nevada, daughter of Emma Nevada, was equally successful as Ophelia.

FORBES-ROBERTSON RETURNS

1,000th Performance of "The Passing of the Third Floor Back."

The return of Johnstone Forbes-Robertson for a brief engagement in "The Passing of the Third Floor Back" should prove a welcome opportunity for lovers of fine acting and those who have not yet seen his highly impressive and spiritual interpretation of "The Stranger" in Mr. Jerome's unusual little play.

The present engagement, for two weeks only, should attract large audiences to the Maxine Elliott Theatre. The optimistic spirit of the play is such as to encourage and stimulate, the acting by Mr. Forbes-Robertson and several of his associates is exceptionally fine, and all in all the enterprise represents what is best and most uplifting in the playhouse.

In the present company Miss Haidee Wright again repeats her exquisitely beautiful performance of The Painted Lady, while most of the players seen here last season remain.

The 1,000th performance of the piece was celebrated last night and souvenirs were provided.

EX-SENATOR BLODGETT DEAD.

Superintendent of New York & Long Branch Railroad for 25 Years.

Rufus Blodgett, ex-United States Senator from New Jersey, for twenty-five years Superintendent of the New York & Long Branch Railroad, and seven times Mayor of Long Branch, died yesterday morning at his home in Third Avenue, Long Branch. He had been ill for more than six months.

Blodgett was born in New Hampshire in 1834, and he started work in the humblest positions of the railroad business, serving variously as brakeman and conductor, until, through a series of promotions, he was made Superintendent of the New York & Long Branch at the time of its formation, moving to that position from the Superintendency of the old Jersey Southern.

It was in 1877 that Blodgett's political career began with his election to the Assembly by his neighbors in the pineneedle regions of Ocean County, and in 1886 he went to the Senate in Washington after a contest that was as sensational as it was funny. It was in 1886, the days when Leon Abbett was aspiring to the Senate, that the most picturesque scandals attended the contests for seats in the Legislature which would do the choosing.

Even so, the Democrats were a vote or two shy of the majority in joint ballot, and two Republicans were unseated in the House to give them the lead. This point gained, an irrepressible opposition to Abbett broke out, and things became riotous. Baird, the Speaker, had to fight his way to the chair, one member hurling a copy of the Revised Statutes at his head, and another trying to draw him from the dais. The Speaker was a "Kid Glove" Democrat, and one of those opposed to Abbett on general principles.

Five Kid Gloves bolted the caucus when Abbett was nominated, and being friendly with the country district Railroad Superintendent, they suggested his name when the Republicans asked for one. "Why Blodgett?" asked the Republicans, who wanted a man some one knew. "Why not Blodgett?" answered the five Kid Gloves doggedly, and Blodgett was elected to the Senate, all the Republicans voting for him without at all knowing why. Blodgett gave a war whoop of surprise when he heard the news.

He served only one term, and since then had been contented with such an office as the Mayoralty of Long Branch, to which he was elected seven times. He became President of the Citizens' National Bank there in 1906, and he was President of the Tintern Manor Water Company. He leaves a widow and one son, Harry T. Blodgett.

Rev. Dr. Samuel P. Sprecher.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Oct. 3.—The Rev. Dr. Samuel P. Sprecher, renowned for having brought about the revision of the Presbyterian creed, was buried here today. At the 1900 convention of the Presbyterian Church in St. Louis he made a speech that brought the conservative section over to the progressives' side. Later, with former President Benjamin Harrison and others he revised the creed. He died Saturday.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Active and Strong—Call Money Rates, 2¾@3 Per Cent.

ADVERSE FACTORS IGNORED

Poor Cotton Report, Weak Bank Return, and Unfavorable Railroad Statements Without Influence.

Yesterday's sharp rise in prices on the Stock Exchange was to all appearances self-generated. At the opening a considerable volume of selling carried quotations off, but it became evident before the movement had run far that offerings were coming only from traders who were either realizing on purchases made last week or taking the short side of the speculation because of the unexpectedly poor showing of Saturday's bank statement. The stocks offered were readily absorbed, after the fashion set in practically all of last week's sessions, and as soon as this state of affairs impressed itself upon the traders concerned they promptly turned about and bought heavily for the rise. Thereafter prices moved up generally and rapidly, unchecked by such considerations as the bank showing, the unfavorable September report of the Government on cotton, the higher time money rates, the distinctly poor railroad earnings statements submitted during the course of the day, and the apparently authentic reports of reductions in certain steel products: although it seems that these have involved only iron pipe. At the close advances of from 1 to 2 points were numerous, and in many cases the gains ran much beyond these figures.

According to the cotton report the condition of the staple stood at 65.9 on Sept. 25, as against 72.1 on the corresponding date in August, 58.5 in September, 1909, and a ten-year average for the season of 66.6. The comparison with the average for the ten years is fairly good, as the figures show, but the loss from the August condition is greater than had been expected, and the actual figure stands well below that which might promise a crop adequate to the probable world demands following the short harvest last year. These were the points upon which the Cotton Exchange centred its criticism of the showing and which, of course, led to the advance of around 30 points in many options. As for the day's railroad returns they included the Louisville & Nashville and New York Central figures for August, the first-named property reporting a loss of $257,000 in net operating revenues following a gain of $303,000 in gross, while the Central system's similar returns were, for all lines, an increase of $2,159,000 in gross operating revenues, and a loss of $891,000 in net, this involving, of course, an increase of $3,051,000 in operating expenses and taxes, less net from outside operations, for the single month of August. As in the case of the Pennsylvania return a few days ago this statement is so poor as to justify bewilderment.

In the money market the only reflection of Saturday's bank return was found in the somewhat firmer rates established for time money. Call money failed to get above 3 per cent., but time quotations went as high as 4½ per cent. for certain maturities which commanded only 4 per cent. last week. Foreign exchange was fairly easy, demand sterling selling off a trifle on the day, while satisfaction was taken in the cabled information that the Bank of England had secured all of the gold arriving in London from South Africa, this amounting to $3,750,000. After all allowances have been made for the cross currents running in the local money market last week, comprising the financing of the October disbursements and syndicate operations, it is nevertheless apparent that the tendency is distinctly toward strength.

Curb Stocks Share Better Tone Evidenced in Trading on Stock Exchange.

MANY COPPERS HIGHER

Gains at Close in Nearly All Active Issues, Though Last Prices Are Below High Levels.

Curb stocks made substantial gains in most instances yesterday, and trading was livelier than it has been in some time. Chino rose from 19¼ to 20, closing after sales of 6,100 at 19⅝. Butte Coalition sold sold up from 19 to 19½, and British Columbia gained ⅛ on the day's trading. Miami sold 1,000 between 19⅞ and 20¼, the close being at 20¼. Ray Central was one of the exceptions to the generally strong tone. The price declined from 2 to 1¾, and after sales of 4,500, the close was at 1 13-16.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Monday.

The market on the Consolidated Stock Exchange continued to broaden out, reflecting the revival of public interest. Commission houses were buyers of stocks from the opening of business. To a considerable extent their wants were supplied in the early dealings by the floor operators, who were working for a reaction, and who later turned active bidders to cover the short lines they had put out. Transactions totaled 78,720 shares, distributed among sixty-five different stocks, this being the broadest market witnessed on the Exchange since July 28 last.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Converting Bears.

Yesterday's market probably converted more bears to the bull side than any which has gone before. Traders with bearish leanings figured out every reason why there should be a reaction. Prices had gone up two points on the average in the week which closed on Saturday. The bank statement was one of the poorest made in a long time, with loans finally overtopping the deposit item, and in the financial community, at least, people were considerably less hopeful regarding the outcome of the political situation in this State. Here were grounds enough both for realizing sales on any stocks taken last week, and for those who never buy when they feel bearish, no matter how strongly they believe in a temporary rally, here was also an occasion for selling short. Something of the kind was tried plainly enough in the first half hour, but it didn't pay. The stocks were taken with consummate ease; they continued to be taken with equal readiness even after the appearance of a series of poor railroad earning statements, announcement of the cut in iron prices, and a dubious report on cotton condition. Obviously it wasn't on the books that the market should go down, and the thing to do, therefore, was to buy. Sometimes the converted bear makes a good bull, but generally it is the other way around, this being particularly true when the bear, like the fabled woman, has been convinced against his will.

⁂

Western Union Reacts.

Western Union was a rather conspicuous example of weakness in a generally strong market. In casting about for an explanation of the behavior of the stock, which was decidedly in contrast with its course for a fortnight or more, traders hit upon the evidence of a renewal of the fight between the Western Union and the Postal Telegraph, offered by the appeal of the Postal to the Public Service Commission to make the Western Union reduce its charges on messages originating on Postal lines, but reaching their destination over Western Union wires. It was a favorite theory of Wall Street up to a year ago that a combination of all the telephone and telegraph companies was among the few certainities of the near future. The sale by the Postal of its American Telephone and Telegraph stock after the American had secured a big block of Western Union and put its officers in charge, was accompanied by a rather vigorous statement of the independence of the Postal, issued by President Mackay, and the present carrying of a grievance to the Public Service Commission is construed as evidence of the good faith of that statement.

A Twist in Sugar.

The movements of American Sugar resulted in some very substantial losses to the traders on the floor who attempted to take quick profits on quotations. The stock had been weak for some little time and sold down in the early trading yesterday from 113¾ to 111⅛. Traders followed the fall, particularly those who found no other corner of the market in which to indulge their bearish proclivities, but they had reason to regret this almost immediately. The stock sold up to 111¾, and then jumped to 114⅞ without any intervening transactions. It closed at 115⅞, up 2⅝ on the day, after dealings in 5,500 shares or so.

⁂

The New Haven's Rate Showing.

President Mellen, in his report to the stockholders of the New York, New Haven & Hartford, produces figures to show that the passenger rate increases about which there was so much complaint on the part of commuters, have only about half paid for the increases in wages granted by the road, and that the other 50 per cent. must be looked for in the increased freight rates, which are now being argued. The advances in wages were not effective long enough in the last fiscal year to make absolute figures possible, but on the basis of the same sized force being continued throughout the year, he figures the cost of the advances to be $1,757,506, of which $1,536,106 goes to the operating department. Offsetting this the increased passenger rates bring in only $858,753. Theoretically the increased passenger tariffs put in effect in June and July should bring in $1,058,753, but President Mellen says that an allowance must be made for shrinkage of 20 per cent., due to the increased use of mileage books. Speaking of the freight advances by which the company will profit, he says: "It is believed that such advances will ultimately be allowed, though after considerable delay. The above advances with such economies as are yet possible in the operation of the property, should enable the company to maintain substantially the same net results as heretofore, and pay the usual rate of dividend upon its stock."

Erie's Appeal.

Commuters arriving at the Erie Station in Jersey City yesterday were greeted by large posters bearing the question, in letters half a foot high, "When the company is not making money can you?" The query is addressed "To the Public and Erie Railroad Employes." The publicity department of the road professed yesterday not to know anything about the origin of the posters, but they bore the Erie monogram. Commuters wondered if they, too, like the trainmen, were to be enlisted under the higher freight rates banner.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

Stephen C. Markoe, a member of the New York Stock Exchange; Charles Morgan, and George Whitney formed a copartnership yesterday under the firm name of Markoe, Morgan & Whitney to transact a general Stock Exchange business.

At a meeting of the Directors of the Southern Railway in Washington, R. D. Lankford, who has been Secretary, was elected a Vice President as well. E. H. Coapman was made Vice President and General Manager, in charge of operation and maintenance.

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Oct. 3.—Trading in the local market appears to be gradually increasing in volume. Orders to-day were well distributed throughout the list, and, while there were no very great changes in price level, nearly all the mining issues were represented in the day's transactions. The undertone continued strong throughout the session, and the close was steady at a slight advance all around.

THE EUROPEAN MARKETS.

Happenings of a Day in London, Paris, and Berlin.

LONDON, Oct. 3.—Money was fairly plentiful and discount rates were firm to-day.

The Bank of England obtained the bulk of the $3,750,000 South African gold consignment.

The stock market was quiet and irregular. Copper shares and foreign bonds were firm, and home rails advanced, on the prospects of a settlement of the cotton dispute; but Kaffirs were easy and rubber stocks weak on the decline in the prices of crude rubber.

American securities opened a trifle higher. Trading was light and prices eased off during the forenoon. New York offerings caused further losses in the afternoon, and the market closed uncertain.

Bar silver steady at 24⅝d per ounce.

Money, 2@2½ per cent.; rate of discount in the open market for short bills, 3⅝ per cent.; for three months' bills, 3¾ per cent.

Gold premiums are quoted as follows: At Madrid, 7.05; at Lisbon, 3.

PARIS, Oct. 3.—Prices moved irregularly on the Bourse to-day.

Three per cent. rentes, 97f 5c for the account.

Exchange on London, 25f 24c for checks.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 3.—Lehigh Valley opened well above last week's final figures, but the gain was not maintained. About the only feature was a sudden influx of buying orders for Philadelphia Company of the common and preferred. The market suddenly developed a greatly increased volume of dealings shortly after noon.

The traction shares were again in demand. During the first three months of the present fiscal year Rapid Transit shows gross earnings of $190,000 greater than the corresponding period last year.

STEEL PRICE READJUSTMENTS

Wrought Sheet and Iron Pipe Lowered in Many Sizes.

News of readjustments in the prices of wrought sheet and iron pipe, which left most sizes substantially lower, although some were increased in price, was received in the Street yesterday with considerable interest in view of the statement last month issued by Judge Gary of the Steel Corporation that there was no basis for the stories of an immiment cut in steel prices.

The price sheets received by steel salesmen here from their principals in the Pittsburg district in their morning mail yesterday showed cuts on some sizes of pipe of from $2 to $4 a ton, and advances of $2 a ton on some sizes of which the output is smaller. The independent pipe makers attributed the change in prices which they had all made to the initiative of the National Tube Company, a subsidiary of the United States Steel Corporation.

At the offices of the United States Steel Corporation it was said yesterday that there was no significance in the price changes in pipe. It was said that the question was of so little importance that it had not come up for discussion among the higher officers of the company.

CONTESTED FIGURES IN ATCHISON REPORT

Items Included in Annual Accounting That Shippers Disputed at Chicago Rate Hearing.

OPERATING COST DOUBLED

Question Raised About Concrete Work Charged Under This Head—Increase in Fuel Reserve Charges.

The Aachison, Topeka & Santa Fé Railway report for the year ended June 30, made public yesterday, carries more than usual interest because of the testimony of President Ripley at the rate increase hearings in Chicago during August, in which he painted a black picture of conditions under which his road is trying to do a profitable business. Incidentally the details of the report made possible a scrutiny of some of the charges of the shippers that the Atchison was trying "to make a lean showing for 1910 which might affect the success of establishing the desired increased rate."

The report makes this comment on the general situation:

> Your property is in excellent condition physically, and the company has made provision for its present financial needs. However, in view of the unsettled economic conditions of the country and the impossibility of accurately forecasting the trend of current events, especially as applied to the railroad interests, your Directors feel that it is necessary to proceed with caution even as to those improvements and extensions which are most desirable from the standpoint of the public welfare and which are imperatively demanded.

At the hearing in Chicago President Ripley estimated the increase in operating expenses for the fiscal year 1910 at $5,200,000, and put the increased cost of labor at $2,000,000. The increased cost of maintenance of way was one of the items on which he commented. He put this at $1,600,000. He said that out of each dollar received by the road about 70 per cent. went back to the public in one way or another. The income statement in the report makes these comparisons for two years:

Total operating revenues	$94,265,716	$104,993,194
Inc. from other sources	1,158,375	2,550,055
Inc. from all sources	$95,424,091	$107,543,250
Expenses, including taxes, rentals, and other charges	61,458,019	75,133,314
	$33,966,072	$32,409,935
Fixed charges, including accrued interest on adjustment bonds	13,548,081	11,984,151
Balance	$20,417,990	$20,425,784

After the payment of $5,708,690 on the preferred stock and $9,648,030 on the common, there were appropriations made for "fuel reserve" of $703,218, and for "additions and betterments" of $4,000,000. The former was one of the items which excited criticism on the part of the attorneys for the shippers. It was pointed out that in 1908 only $158,000 was spent for this purpose, and in 1909 only $191,000. With the dividends and these appropriations deducted, a total of $20,059,938, there remained of the balance, after payment of fixed charges, only $365,846 as a surplus to be carried to profit and loss.

Premiums on convertible bonds sold added $1,066,930 to the profit and loss account during the year, and at the close of the year the surplus to the credit of profit and loss was $20,231,803, against $18,821,250 at the close of the previous fiscal year.

The criticisms leveled at the Atchison's accounts, especialy of the heavy charges to operating expenses, took note of the inclusion in the sums charged to maintenance of way and structures of some $700,000, the cost of converting a timber supported tunnel into one of concrete, which the shippers contended was not a proper charge against operating expenses. The extent to which operating expenses ate into earnings by reason of increase in maintenance of way and maintenance of equipment charges is shown in the figures of the report. Maintenance of equipment increased from $13,903,897 in 1909 to $15,560,047 in the year just closed, the expenditure per mile being $1,563 against $1,419 in 1909 and $1,513 in 1908. The next heaviest payment for maintenance of equipment was in 1908, when the item was $14,246,621.

Maintenance of way increased from $12,-[illegible],406 in 1909 to $17,807,136 in the year just closed, a rise in the expenditure per mile from $1,315 to $1,795. The next heaviest year in the matter of maintenance of way charges was in 1907, when the figure was $15,286,062, or $1,648 per mile.

BANK CLEARINGS INCREASE.

16 Per Cent. Under September, 1909—New York Chiefly Affected.

Again last month bank clearings made a smaller total than in the corresponding month last year and with 1906. The total bank exchanges at the 116 leading centres in the United States whose figures enter into the statistics compiled by R. G. Dun & Co. were $11,279,480,258, which is a loss of 16.3 per cent. as compared with September, 1909, and of 13.1 per cent. as compared with September, 1906. Dun's says:

> The losses are due, in great part, to the pronounced decrease at New York city, as the majority of cities outside that centre report gains over both years, some of which are quite large. The total outside of New York shows a trifling gain in comparison with last year, but there is a large increase over 1906.
>
> By far the best returns are made by most of the cities in the central West, and by the leading cities in the middle South; but the volume of exchanges at all cities in New England, the Middle Atlantic States, and the central West is reduced under last year, chiefly because of losses at Boston, Philadelphia, and Chicago.

ERIE SEEKS BOND ISSUE.

Asks Authority to Issue $1,000,000 to Pay for Coal Cars.

ALBANY, Oct. 3.—The Erie Railroad Company to-day asked authority of the Public Service Commission to issue $1,000,000 general lien bonds to reimburse the company's treasury for amounts expended for coal cars.

Under the terms of the company's first consolidated mortgage, dated Dec. 10, 1895, these bonds were reserved for future needs in amounts not to exceed $1,000,000 per year. The commission reserved decision.

THE COMMODITIES MARKETS.

Although the wheat market was higher during the greater part of the session, the decline in the last hour was of large enough proportions to term the undertone weak. Prices reacted over a cent a bushel from the high, with the close at the bottom, and sentiment bearish. The early steadiness was the result of better Liverpool cables than Liverpool had anticipated, which market was reported influenced by improved demand for cash wheat there and an oversold condition. Shorts continued good buyers in local circles, while offerings were limited. Other factors toward the advance were the decrease in receipts, which were less than half of last year, and also about half of two years ago. This refers to the movement at Northwestern points, but at all interior stations receipts are light, except at Winnipeg, where a heavy movement was reported. Exporters claimed that bids were on a better basis, and that prospects of business doing was fair. On the issuance of the visible supply statement, however, traders again became aggressively bearish. Toward the close of last week it was predicted that stocks would make a comparatively bullish showing, but the statement was bearish, indicating an increase in this country of 2,725,000 bushels and in Canada of 2,698,000 bushels. This compares with an increase in the United States last year of 2,982,000 bushels. The fact that cash demand was quiet at nearly all points except Minneapolis, and that export business was at a standstill, had a good deal of effect, and was largely influential toward the closing decline. Cash wheat quoted: No. 2 red Winter, $1.01¾, elevator; No. 2 red spot, nominal; new, $1.01, free on board, afloat, for export; No. 1 Northern Spring, $1.19½; No. 2 hard Winter, new, $1.03¾, and No. 1 Northern Manitoba, $1.07½.

The corn market was quite firm early, as a result of an oversold condition. Shorts were inclined to cover, influenced by prospects of less favorable weather, with indications pointing to rains in some States and frosts in others. While it is generally admitted that the crop is too near maturity to be affected by unfavorable weather conditions, as regards the quantity, operators evinced some nervousness. Country offerings were light, but this was more than offset by the complete absence of export demand, and quite quiet cash interest. The late weakness in wheat was reflected in this market, with offerings more liberal, and on the increase of 403,000 bushels in the visible. Cash corn quoted: No. 2, 59½c, to arrive, c. i. f., elevator, domestic basis, and steamer, nominal, elevator, export basis.

The market in oats was steadier in the morning on predictions of a falling off in country selling. It was pointed out that farmers on the present basis of prices are receiving only from 27c to 31c for oats in different States, and it was expected that they would show some hesitation in selling. The visible supply statement was rather bullish, showing a decrease of 59,000 bushels, against an increase last year of 1,009,000 bushels. The close, however, was easier, with other grain. Standards, 38½c; No. 2 white, 39c; No. 3 white, 38c; No. 4 white, 37c; natural white, 38½@40c; white clipped, 39½@42c.

Provisions were heavy during almost the entire session, in sympathy with the lower hog markets. The monthly statement of stocks was about as expected, showing a fair decrease in lard, but outside of scattered buying by packing interests and shorts demand was poor.

The cottonseed oil market was active and firmer, with offerings limited. The strengthening features were firmness in cotton, with some speculative buying on the crop report and crude situation. Offerings are said to be lighter from the South, and buying, due to the development of a good export demand for the past ten days, has taken a great deal of oil from the market.

COTTON.

Trading in the cotton market was enormous, and prices during the entire day were strong. The Liverpool cables furnished the stimulous toward higher values at the outset, with the market abroad favorable, influenced by predictions of a satisfactory termination of the Manchester strike. These predictions were substantiated, to a certain extent, by the increase in spot sales there, and by a more favorable outlook in trade conditions there, as reported by private advices. The opening was at five to twelve points advance with commission houses active buyers. The amount of cotton ginned, as reported by the Census Bureau, was in line with expectations, amounting to 2,302,000 bales. This is about 265,000 bales less than last year's figures for the same time, and also in line with the amount of cotton received this year, as compared with last. Trading, prior to the Government report at noon, was in good volume, with the market advancing to new high levels for the movement when the condition was given. The figure was 65.9 compared with 72.1 a month ago, 58.5 last year, and a 10-year average of 68.6. Different authorities arrived at various conclusions figuring the expected yields on these conditions, with estimates ranging from 10,500,000 to 11,000,000 bales. Taking the average yield per acre, however, during the past ten years, with no further damage during the picking season, the indications are for between 12,000,000 and 12,250,000 bales. The condition would have to be below 60, on this year's acreage, in order to arrive at some of the minimum estimates, but nevertheless the small crop ideas are receiving the most favor, with the possibilities of frost and the high prices now prevailing having a sentimental effect. While there was some reaction during the early afternoon, on the unfavorable labor situation at Manchester, where a continuance of the lock-out was decided upon, contrary to the confident predictions, and on heavy selling by short interests, the market again recovered near the close, on covering by operators who had expected a heavy realizing movement to set in, and were disappointed.

COFFEE.

There was active trade in the coffee market, total sales for the day amounting to 77,000 bags, and prices were firm, closing at a net advance of 4 to 6 points. The European markets were much firmer than expected, Havre showing an advance of ½ to ⅝f, while Hamburg was ¾ to 1½ pfennigs higher, and notwithstanding the fact that there was heavy liquidation on the advance offerings were well absorbed, with good general buying, and sentiment was bullish. The Brazilian markets were steady at 25 reis lower for Rio and unchanged for Santos, but firm offers were higher, and a private cable from a prominent Santos commission house said that the weather is cold and wet and that the next crop is reported damaged. The spot markets were firm, but the spot demand has fallen off somewhat recently and warehouse deliveries last week were smaller, amounting to 144,734 bags, against 196,899 the previous week and 156,939 last year. The country appears to be well supplied with coffee for immediate requirements, at least, and is showing little disposition to stock ahead.

The local spot market was quiet, but firm, on the basis of 11c for Rio No. 7. Contract prices follow:

TERRA MARINE RECEIVERS.

Affairs of Staten Island Hotel Co. Will Be Continued Three Months.

Judge Holt, in the United States Circuit Court, yesterday appointed George R. Stone of this city and Daniel H. Hanckel of Brooklyn receivers for the Terra Marine Company, which operated in real estate and carried on a hotel at Huguenot Park, S. I., and eight other companies which are affiliated with it. The bond of the receivers was fixed at $50,000, and their continuance of the business is restricted to three months.

The companies are the United Contractors' Corporation, Bankers' Realty Securities Company, Intercity Realty Company, Connecticut Realty Corporation, Maine Coast Realty and Improvement Company, Greater City Land and Improvement Company, Gotham Estates, and the Estates Company.

The receivers were appointed in a suit brought by George R. Stone, Stephen S. Taft, Jr., and Harry P. Eastwood. A petition in bankruptcy was filed in Brooklyn on Sept. 8 against the Terra Marine Company, and Daniel H. Hanckel was appointed receiver then for that company. The receivers appointed yesterday are ancillary, as far as they relate to the Terra Marine Company. It is said that the amount involved is over $1,750,000.

Authoritative Fall Fashions

In addition to its usual sections next Sunday's New York Times will include two special sections devoted to the newest fashions for the coming season.

One of these will contain

Fine Photographs of French Gowns

Personally selected by Anne Rittenhouse in Paris from hundreds of creations by famous dressmakers. They will show what will be

The Smartest Things in Evening Gowns,
Frocks for the Afternoon,
French Hats for Winter,
Fur Coats in Smart Shapes,
Gowns and Turbans for Young Girls,
Costumes for the Restaurant.

They are by such masters of French dress as Paquin, Bernard, Buzenet, Martial & Armand, Weeks, Doeuillet, Laferriere, Jenny, Bechoff-David & Giraud.

What Creators of Fashions Say

Will also be told after personal talks with them. These dictators of what the well dressed women of the world wear guard their choicest gowns and their pronounced novelties until the near approach of Fall. Among the new things told about will be choice creations of Worth, Callot, Carlier, Drecoll, and Jean Halle.

No woman who wishes to keep in touch with fashions should miss this complete and authoritative presentation of the styles of the coming season. Be sure to order early

IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Office Building Planned for 33d Street Plot Adjoining New Greeley Square Hotel—Times Square Lease—Good Private House—Bronx Realty Shows Activity.

The purchaser of the Thirty-third Street property adjoining the McAlpin block turns out to be A. P. W. Kinnan and not representatives of the Greeley Square Hotel Company, which has leased the McAlpin block for the erection of a twenty-story hotel. Mr. Kinnan, who is of the real estate firm of J. Romaine Brown & Co., announced yesterday that he had bought the property, 49 and 51 West Thirty-third Street, 44.6 by 98.9 feet. The old houses which a few years ago were used for a gambling house, being fitted up in an elaborate manner, will be torn down in the near future and a high class office building erected. The situation is a very favorable one, as the proposed building will adjoin the new Greeley Square Hotel and will be in close proximity to the great retail centre and all of the important transportation lines. It was reported that $380,000 had been paid for the plot, making a new record for Thirty-third Street property, being at the rate of $8,540 a front foot.

Times Square Lease.

The third store south of the Forty-third Street corner of the new Fitzgerald Building now nearing completion on Broadway, opposite the Times Building, has been leased by S. Osgood Pell & Co. for a term of years to Samuel Jacobs, a tailor, now located in one of the stores of the old Café de l'Opéra. The corner store of the Fitzgerald Building was recently leased to the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad.

Private House Sales.

The four-story residence at 354 West End Avenue, between Seventy-sixth and Seventy-seventh Streets, on plot 19 by 66, has been sold by F. R. Wood & Co. for C. E. Bayne to Mrs. N. J. Erneman.

Marie Laurent has sold 151 West Ninety-fifth Street, a three-story dwelling on lot 18 by 100.8.

The two four-story dwellings at 136 and 138 West Ninety-eighth Street, on plot 33 by 100.11, have been resold by Joseph Burke for a client of the Duross Company.

Buys East 70th Street House.

East Seventieth Street, which figured prominently in private residence sales last Spring, is again showing evidences of activity. The three-story dwelling at 122 East Seventieth Street, on plot 20 by 100.8, has been sold by Mrs. Drayton Burrill through Cammann, Voorhees & Floyd and Post & Reese.

Sells West Side Flat.

Slawson & Hobbs have sold for Philip J. Rudden to an investor 240 West 112th Street, a five-story flat on plot 83.4 by 100.11. They have been appointed agents to manage the property for the new owner.

Deal on Second Avenue.

Joseph F. A. O'Donnell has sold for Sarah A. Binner to a client the southeast corner of 121st Street and Second Avenue, a three-story building on lot 20.11 by 80.

Twenty-ninth Street Sale Denied.

William J. Roome & Co., who represent the Bogardus estate, deny that Albert E. Rosenthal has purchased the property 108 West Twenty-ninth Street.

Many Residences Leased.

Pease & Elliman report the following leases of private houses: No. 49 West Fiftieth Street for E. H. Hedden, 120 East Seventy-ninth Street for Mrs. A. T. Enos, 8 West Eighty-third Street for Alexander Tausky, and 255 West Seventy-third Street for Mrs. O. A. Choate.

Fuery & Co. have leased for G. W. Colton the five-story dwelling at 37 West Sixteenth Street to Bertha Pflieger and the five-story house at 474 West Twenty-second Street for Margaret Jones to Edward J. Dawes.

Alexander Selkin has sold for the Grand Concourse Company the three-story dwelling at 2,431 Grand Boulevard, 140 feet south of East 189th Street, on plot 50 by 90.

W. E. & W. I. Brown, Incorporated, have sold for Joseph Treanor the two-story and basement two-family house 1,225 Tinton Avenue, about 250 feet north of 168th Street. The buyer will occupy the premises.

L. N. Clark & Co. have sold for the Metzler Building and Construction Company 2,015 Heath Avenue, a new two-family house.

Montgomery Maze has sold 685 to 693 Beck Street, three five-story houses, each on plot 33.4 by 125, to an investor.

Stocks vs. Real Estate
Some Food For Thought.
"I take pleasure in replying to yours of the 10th. Just before I purchased the lots at Hunts Point I was undecided whether to buy railroad stocks or put the cash in real estate. I am glad now that I decided on the latter, for when I see the progress these building operations have made in this section since I made the purchase I have nothing to regret.
Very truly yours,
"BERNARD H. EIDEL,

DR. WILSON SAYS HE IS OWNED BY NO ONE

Was the People's Choice and if Elected Will Consult Them Frequently, He Says.

GREAT CROWD HEARS SPEECH

Defines His Position on Jersey's State Issues and Attacks the Stand of Vivian Lewis.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 3.—Before an audience which filled the Taylor Opera House, Dr. Woodrow Wilson, Democratic candidate for Governor of New Jersey, defined to-night where he stood on public issues. He was received with immense enthusiasm. His wife, sitting in a box, joined heartily in the applause.

Unmindful of the fact that "Old Nassau" is only sung or played when Princeton men are in danger of defeat, the band played the air when Dr. Wilson was introduced by Chairman Erwin E. Marshall of the Democratic City Committee, but the audience did not know university ethics, and yelled for five minutes. When Dr. Wilson could make himself heard he said:

"I was given the nomination, your representatives offered me that, but I must win your votes if I am to be elected."

Referring to the position taken by Vivian M. Lewis, the Republican nominee for Governor, that he "will be a constitutional Governor," Dr. Wilson said Lewis meant he would only talk to the Legislature and be bound by the acts of that body.

"If you elect me I will be an unconstitutional Governor in that respect. I will talk to the people as well as to the Legislature, and I will use all moral force with that body to bring about what the people demand. I am going to take every important debate in the Legislature out on the stump and discuss it with them. If the people no not agree, then no harm will be done the legislators, but the people will have their way in things. This is serving the spirit of the Constitution.

"I have heard of such a thing as 'the Board of Guardians.' Is that the constitutional body Mr. Lewis will obey? If it is, the Constitution ought to be changed. The Governor is elected in this State, and if he does not talk the people have no spokesman. I welcome upon the platform any politician who wants to talk. If you elect me your Governor I propose to be your spokesman.'"

Immense applause broke out at this point, and Dr. Wilson was forced to stop for two minutes.

People Are Not Corrupt.

"We are told," continued Dr. Wilson, "that politics is corrupt to the core. Now we are all a part of that core, and we are not corrupt. The trouble is that the interests have grappled us. We must shake ourselves free."

Then Dr. Wilson went into State issues, saying:

"We want a corrupt practices act which first says that no official can contribute one cent to a political campaign. Publicity supplements our conscience. The best thing to do with anything crooked is to lift it up to public gaze. Then it will straighten itself out."

Talking on public utility corporation control, Dr. Wilson said:

"A public service board should have the right to determine for the public interest what is best for both the public and the corporation. If you advise your board to compel public service at a loss then the only honest thing to do is to take them over and run them ourselves."

Discussing the office of Commissioner of Roads, Dr. Wilson said:

"This office is run without the restraints it should be put under. He has the power to disburse an enormous amount of money without let or hindrance, and he is subjected in letting contracts to temptations you should not allow him to face daily. We want business in this office, and we intend to do it if elected."

Dr. Wilson said he understood that the stand-patters nominated his opponent, Mr. Lewis, "but," he added, "they are a negligible quantity. They cannot see the country is going insurgent. They do not see that the insurgents are after a practical method of carrying forward progress in thought. The whole country is going insurgent. Party machines are going out of date. The people are smashing them. But you cannot bring in new ideas with old tools, and therein lies my indictment of the Republican Party.

Owes Nomination to No One.

"I do not know that anybody brought about my nomination, and therefore I feel nothing else but the impulse of public service. The Democratic Party has been purified in the insurgency air, and we want only pure service for the people, not mere party success."

He clased with the prophecy that those who do not see the signs of insurgency and obey them will be ground into political dust.

Dr. Wilson will rest in Princeton tomorrow. He will not speak again until Wednesday night at Woodbury, Gloucester County.

The meeting was called to order by Erwin E. Marshall, Chairman of the City Democratic Committee, who introduced Frank S. Katzenbach, Jr., the candidate defeated three years ago by Gov. Fort, and he made a plea for Dr. Wilson, saying:

"I want the same loyal support you gave me three years ago to go to Dr. Wilson this year." This was received with great applause, and pleased the Democratic managers, because Katzenbach carried Trenton, a Republican city, three years ago. Katzenbach spoke for an hour on the employers' liability issue, advocating employers' insurance.

Slaves of Speaker Cannon.

Col. William A. Libbey, Professor of Archaeology at Princeton, and the Democratic nominee for Congress in the Fourth District, defined his position on public questions, saying:

"The interests have injected into Government so much graft that we no longer have an economical Government. The present House of Representatives has ceased to be a deliberative body, because almost every member grovels at the feet of Spaker Cannon. The tariff is not a means of increasing labor wages. Such wage increases are incorrectly classed as the result of a beneficial tariff, but they are the result of labor wage agitation—nothing else."

"Out of 6,000 rubber workers in this city 5,224 workmen get only $12 a week, and this shows that the tariff has not given the rubber workmen a competency.

"A workman getting $2 a day a few years ago, in Cleveland's day, must have $3.20 a day now to get the same things, and one that got $4 a day then must have $6.40 now."

POSTUM.

BANISHED

Coffee Finally Had to Go.

The way some persons cling to coffee even after they know it is doing them harm is a puzzler. But it is an easy matter to give it up for good when Postum—properly made—is used instead.

A girl writes: "Mother had been suffering with nervous headaches for seven weary years, but kept drinking coffee.

"One day I asked why she did not give up coffee as a cousin of mine had done who had taken to Postum. But mother was such a slave to coffee she thought it would be terrible to give it up.

"Finally, one day, she made the change to Postum, and soon her headaches disappeared. One morning while she was drinking Postum so freely and with such relish I asked for a taste.

"That started me on Postum, and I now drink it more freely than I did coffee, which never comes into our house now.

"A girl friend of mine, one day, saw me drinking Postum and asked if it was coffee. I told her it was Postum and gave her some to take home, but forgot to tell her how to make it.

"The next day she said she did not see how I could drink Postum. I found she had made it like ordinary coffee. So I told her how to make it right, and gave her a cupful I made, boiling it fifteen minutes. She said she never drank any coffee that tasted as good, and now coffee is banished from both our homes."

Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

FOR WOODRUFF'S SUCCESSOR.

Roosevelt Said to Favor ex-Ambassador Francis for State Chairman.

The Republicans will open their State campaign to-day. In the forenoon there will be a meeting of the newly chosen State Committee, controlled by Col. Theodore Roosevelt and the progressives, for the purpose of selecting a Chairman to succeed Timothy L. Woodruff. To-morrow afternoon Henry L. Stimson, the Republican candidate for Governor, will receive the formal notice of his nomination at a meeting at the Republican Club in West Fortieth Street at 5 o'clock.

There was considerable discussion yesterday as to whom the Republican State Committee would select for Chairman. After a conference between Mr. Stimson and Col. Roosevelt at Sagamore Hill yesterday and a subsequent conference between Mr. Stimson and Lloyd C. Griscom, Chairman of the Republican County Committee, the name of Charles S. Francis of Troy, an editor, who was appointed Ambassador to Austria in the last term of Col. Roosevelt in the White House, loomed up as a strong probability. Mr. Francis was seen a great deal in the company of Col. Roosevelt at the Saratoga convention, and at one time his name was mentioned as a possible candidate for the Gubernatorial nomination. He has been allied with the progressive element in the party ever since the Hughes era of reform began.

Mr. Griscom said last night that regardless of any rumors that might have become current, nothing would be settled with reference to the Chairmanship until there had been an opportunity for the fullest discussion of the question with the up-State leaders. Both Col. Roosevelt and Mr. Griscom have been desirous all along that an up-State man should be chosen for the place, as that would serve to allay any suspicion that Mr. Griscom had taken such a strong hand in the fight on the Old Guard to make the New York organization more of a power in the affairs of the State machine.

Among New York men who have been mentioned for the place are Deputy Attorney General Ezra P. Prentice, former leader of the Twenty-fifth Assembly District in this city, and Colin H. Woodward, the present leader of the Twenty-third Assembly District.

Mr. Stimson said yesterday that he would have no statement to make until after he has been formally notified of his nomination, and that the keynote of his campaign would be sounded in the speech of acceptance which he is to deliver then.

"It will be a red-hot campaign," said Mr. Griscom. "Mr. Stimson has expressed his willingness to make an extensive canvass of the State, and I have no doubt that he will make a deep impression on all the voters who are anxious that the State administration shall be kept out of the grip of Tammany Hall with its known record for corruption."

It was stated yesterday that in all probability Col. Lafayette B. Gleason would be re-elected Secretary of the Republican State Committee. He has filled the place for six years.

STIMSON MAY HEAD THE HEARST TICKET

Report Also That the Editor Himself Will Take the Second Place on It.

LEADERS NOT ALL AGREED

Several District Chiefs Withdraw from a Meeting When the Slate Is Under Discussion.

When the State Convention of the Independence League is held to-morrow it is likely that the nominations for the two leading places on the ticket will be slated as follows:

For Governor, Henry L. Stimson of New York.

For Lieutenant Governor, William R. Hearst of New York.

Geographically alone this plan would look like the worst possible play of politics by politicians of the old school. But Mr. Hearst is much given to innovations, and the information comes to THE TIMES on excellent authority. Friends of Mr. Hearst who were asked about it last night did not seem overanxious either to affirm or deny the report.

In connection with the report that Mr. Hearst would accept a nomination for a more inconspicuous place on his own ticket than his political repertory up to date contains, it was recalled last night that in his last dispatch from France before he sailed for this country, he declared that if it would be a help to the cause of anti-bossism he would be quite willing to support Col. Theodore Roosevelt, who once caused him to be denounced as the assassin of President McKinley, in the Colonel's war on the Old Guard—even to the extent of accepting a minor place on any ticket that might be placed in the field with that end in view.

Mr. Hearst is now approaching these shores aboard the Cunard steamship Mauretania, which is due here on Thursday—the day following the Independence League Convention, which will be called to order at Cooper Union at 4 o'clock to-morrow afternoon. One man very close to Mr. Hearst said last night that if the Independence League leader entertained any plan to run for Lieutenant Governor, he had kept it secret to those who ought to be taken into his confidence regarding his political plans generally.

Reports at Saratoga.

When the attention of this man, who is a member of the league, was called to the fact that as early as when the Saratoga convention was in progress there were definite reports about the Roosevelt headquarters that the bellicose Colonel had received assurances from the Independence League leader that he would give his support to Henry L. Stimson, he declared as far as the league leaders were concerned the latest information was all news.

For all that, it is certain that when the members of the Independence League Executive Committee of New York County met at the Park Avenue Hotel last night it was evident that some such plan was under serious discussion behind closed doors. It became definitely known that some league leaders who did not take kindly to the indorsement of Stimson by the league had left the conference to give persons "less biased" an opportunity to represent their districts.

One of these was Deputy County Clerk Charles E. Gehring, who until a year ago was Chairman of the New York County Independence League Committee, and who in that capacity has run two local campaigns for Mr. Hearst. Others were ex-Assemblyman Charles A. Allen, a former Brookfield Republican, who recently has been sitting in the political game Mr. Hearst has been playing. Another was William A. Coakley, a labor man who has tied up to the Hearst fortunes. All three are strong middle of the road men, and intimated that the trend of the discussion at the meeting had impelled them to leave it, coupling that announcement with strong denunciation of Stimson.

"Who will be the Independence League candidate for Governor?" Mr. Gehring was asked.

"Oh, there are plenty of good men," he replied.

"Who will be your candidate for Lieutenant Governor?"

"Well, I would say that Mr. Hearst should be a candidate either for Governor or Lieutenant Governor," said Mr. Gehring.

"So say we all of us," chimed in Coakley.

"Well, I can go with you on the Governor proposal, but not on the other," rejoined Mr. Allen.

May Indorse Stimson.

"If Mr. Hearst is nominated for Lieutenant Governor, that would naturally mean that the League would indorse Mr. Stimson?" asked THE TIMES reporter.

"Not necessarily, and I should say there might be some trouble about getting the League to do that," was the reply.

"There may be men of a much forgiving nature, but I, for my part, will never forget that Mr. Stimson has been more or less closely allied for years with Senator Elihu Root, whom I regard as quite as much of a danger politically as C. F. Murphy. And I will never forgive Mr. Root for making his Utica speech against Mr. Hearst, whom we all love to follow, in the 1906 campaign; nor will I ever forgive Col. Roosevelt for sending Root to make it."

For all that, it is fully believed that if Mr. Hearst should make known to the convention that he desires the scheme of indorsement for Mr. Stimson and his own nomination for Lieut. Governor carried through, the convention will see it through without a murmur. Experiences of former years bear it out.

Agents of Mr. Hearst have been active throughout the State in building up a machine that will do Mr. Hearsts's bidding without question, and it was said yesterday by John J. Hopper, the Independence League State Chairman, that there was an organization in every Assembly district throughout the State and in each of the sixty-one counties. Unlike the older organizations, the State Committee of the league is made up of one representative from each Assembly district, in all 150.

This is the plan that was urged in all the direct nominations bills that were presented to the Legislature and defeated at the last session. All the organization work up State has been done secretly, and the league that will go into battle this Fall for the Hearst principles will practically be a new one so far as membership is concerned.

Mr. Hearst's personal plans with relation to the campaign will not be known until he arrives from abroad.

MURPHY AT TAMMANY HALL.

Believes All Disappointed Candidates Soothed—To Elect Dix's Successor.

Bland and smiling, Charles F. Murphy was at his desk in Tammany Hall yesterday. He announced he would occupy his accustomed place until after election. In addition to the duties that have fallen on Murphy's shoulders in other campaigns, he this year will have those of leader of the State organization. When asked what he thought of the Democratic ticket, the Tammany leader smiled.

"Wouldn't it be a little immodest on my part to make any comment?" he queried, "seeing that I had something to do with the selecting of the candidates."

"Is everybody pleased with the candidates?" Murphy was asked.

"I haven't seen anybody much since the convention," he replied.

Murphy firmly believes that all the rival candidates for Governor went away from Rochester thoroughly soothed, and that even Sulzer, who was the only one to insist on his name going before the convention against Dix, will take off his coat and work for Dix's election. Sulzer, it is understood, will have no trouble with Murphy should he desire a renomination to his seat in Congress.

At Tammany Hall it was said that the campaign would not begin actively until after the meeting of the Democratic State Committee at the Hoffman House on Thursday at noon. At this meeting a successor to John A. Dix will be elected Chairman of the committee. Dix will resign to take up the work of his own canvass.

It was intimated yesterday at the Democratic State Headquarters in the Century Building that Dix would not make any extensive speaking tour, but that the campaign would be conducted on a very dignified plane.

Final plans for the notification of the candidates have not yet been made. Whether the candidates will be notified by letter and will write their acceptance instead of making a speech probably will not be determined until Dix returns from the Adirondacks next Thursday.

Those most prominently mentioned for the place Mr. Dix now holds are George E. Van Kennan, Democratic leader of St. Lawrence County; William H. Fitzpatrick, Democratic County Chairman in Erie, and Winfield A. Huppuch, manufacturer, of Washington County, where Mr. Dix resides. Huppuch was Secretary of the Democratic Committee while William J. Conners was its Chairman.

POLICE DEFY GOV. CROTHERS.

Armed Guard Around Baltimore Headquarters to Resist Suspension Order.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 3.—Gov. Crothers announced to-day that the stand taken by the Police Board in placing an armed guard of policemen around the Marshal's office and headquarters of the police is armed revolt and insurrection against the State.

"It is not against me, personally," said he, "but against the sovereignty of the people. Such a condition cannot be permitted to endure, and I shall take steps to put it down."

The Executive then proceeded to consult Assistant Adjutant Gen. Hutton and Brig. Gen. Macklin, and directed them to have troops in readiness to carry out his orders.

The Police Commissioners would have been suspended to-day but for the serious illness of the President of the Board. Should this Commissioner, who is suffering from appendicitis and meningitis, show any improvement, the suspension order would be issued at once. Counsel for the Commissioners have directed them to resist, and if they do so, the militia and police will clash.

There is undoubtedly a big game of bluff being played by both sides. Charles C. MacGill, President of the Board of Trade, and other representative citizens declare the action of the Governor is uncalled for and is bringing disgrace upon the State, and Mayor Mahool also deprecates it. Gov. Crothers is aroused over the attacks made upon him by the newspapers and citizens generally. The Governor is bitterly denounced for bringing himself and the City of Baltimore into ridicule.

When asked if he would enter into a peaceful agreement with the Commissioners and take the question of their suspension to the courts, the Governor replied emphatically:

"I cannot compromise in a case where the dignity of the State is at issue. The question is too momentous for that. The Police Commissioners, from reports, have stated that they will not submit to an executive order. I do not admit that the courts can interfere in such a case. I am advised that any order of removal or suspension of a civil officer appointed by myself is not subject to review by the courts. I shall enforce the order if they resist."

Against the Governor's charge of insurrection by the Police Commissioners, Attorney General Straus said this afternoon that there had been no revolt on the part of the Police Board nor any of its members.

Capron to be Renominated.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Oct. 3.—Congressman A. D. Capron of Smithfield is to be renominated by the Republicans for Congress in the Second District, although his health is poor. Three other candidates for the nomination were in sight, ex-Gov. George H. Utter, James Harris of Smithfield, and Walter Read.

STIMSON CONFERS WITH ROOSEVELT

Republican Candidate for Governor Goes to Oyster Bay to See the Colonel.

READY FOR SOUTHERN TRIP

Former President to Start on Thursday for Another Long Swing Around the Circle.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., Oct. 3.—Col. Roosevelt talked politics for a time to-day with Henry L. Stimson, Republican candidate for Governor, said good-bye to Representative and Mrs. Longworth, and in the afternoon took an automobile ride to visit near-by relatives.

It was one of the few days of rest which remain for him until after election time. He will go to Freeport, L. I., to-morrow afternoon to speak to the Southern New York Firemen's Association, to his editorial office in New York on Wednesday, and on Thursday his Southern trip begins. On his return from the South he is to start on a campaign tour of the State, which will keep him busy most of the time until election day, except while he is on his trip to New England late this month, and on his Iowa trip early in November.

Col. Roosevelt will go to Freeport by automobile, leaving for home after he has entertained a number of guests at luncheon.

A detailed itinerary of his Southern tour was given out to-day. He will occupy a private car, which during most of the journey is to be attached to regular trains. M., and for the same length of time at Crawfordsville, Ind., at 9:45. On leaving Crawfordsville his carr will be taken over the Monon route to Lafayette, Ind., where he is due at 11:10 A. M., for a thirty-minute stop.

M., and is to remain there until 5 P. M. At 6 o'clock he is to reach Anderson for a stop of fifteen minutes, and at 6:45 he is due at Muncie, where a twenty-minute stop is scheduled.

He will go from Muncie to Richmond over the Chesapeake & Ohio, arriving there at 8:20 P. M. and leaving over the Pennsylvania at 9:10 P. M. for Pittsburg. The Colonel is due in Pittsburg at 6 A. M. on Oct. 14, and will come directiv to New York, arriving there at 8:15 P. M.

Judge C. W. Raymond of Guthrie, Okla., is expected at Sagamore Hill for luncheon to-morrow. He will ask Col. Roosevelt to make several speeches in behalf of the Republican candidates in Oklahoma on his trip from Hot Springs to St. Louis.
